HUNT VALLEY, Md. — Members of the American Guernsey Association from across the United States held their annual convention, sale and business meeting this week at the Marriott Hunt Valley Inn, in Hunt Valley, Md.

As one of the last items of business, the AGA board of directors reorganized. Continuing as president is Cline Brubaker, of Virginia, while John Morrow, of Pennsylvania, has been selected its first vice president. Second vice president is Peter Coon, of New York state.

Other members of the board include Truman Weaver of Indiana, Linda Madsen of California, Clark Viliter of Wisconsin, Kevin Nedrow of New York, Eldon Moss of Iowa, and Edwin Watson of Michigan.

Elections were held for directors for AGA District Three and District Seven.

Edwin Watson, of Hemlock, Mich., was elected for District Three which includes the states Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Michigan.

Linda Madsen, of Temecula, Calif., was elected to the board to represent District Seven, an area that includes the states of Arkansas, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Nevada, Oklahoma, Oregon, Texas, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

The organization is managed by a full-time executive secretary treasurer, a position held by Neil Jensen.

Chairperson of the organization's resolution committee proposed several resolutions to the membership.

Approved was a resolution thanking the Maryland Guernsey Breeders Association for serving as host organization, an honor that coincided with an observation of the Maryland organization's 75th anniversary.

Somerset County Day Draws 2,500

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Some 2,500 visitors descended upon HMS Haven farm, owned by Harold M. and Carol Shaulis, on Sunday, June 23, for the 13th annual Somerset County Day at the Farm.

The event was sponsored by the Somerset County Farm Bureau and coordinated by Jay Shaffer and his wife, Eyvonne.

"I was really pleased with the weather," said Shaffer, a farmer and a minister. "We had it made to order."

The educational event covered information about soil care, animal care, health, and nutrition, and chemical use, crops, and tractor safety.

A number of veterinary doctors readily provided information to visitors and answered their questions. Two vets — D.V.M. David Welch and D.V.M. Michael Carter from the White Oak Veterinary Clinic — showed how an ultrasound is done on an expectant doe goat.

Upon their registration, each person received a small booklet of coupons redeemable for food samples — lamb, beef, potato chips, cheese, milk, milk punch, and maple syrup-topped ice cream sundae.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
JUNE 26, 1996

Grain and soybean bids fell sharply lower on good weather forecasts. Wheat 5 to 13 cents lower. Corn 3 to 7 cents lower. Sorghum 6 to 25 cents lower. Soybeans 6 to 10 cents lower. Good weather conditions in the Plains and Midwest has been forecast through next week. Farmers will soon be back in fields and able to resume winter wheat harvest. Good yields have been reported in Kansas, despite the recent delays. Light foreign sales overnight, limited declines. Favorable planting weather in the Midwest also drove corn and bean bids lower. Bean planting getting close to completion if the weather permits. Some profit taking on the board was nin bean pits today. A bit of export action overnight for corn and beans offered some support.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

WHAT TO DO ON JULY 4

Besides being celebrated as the birthdate of our nation, July 4 is also the birthday of those letter-writing twins, Abigail Van Buren ("Dear Abby") and (Dear) Ann Landers. George M. Cohan, born July 4, 1878, found his own way to celebrate Independence Day. In 1906 he wrote the popular, patriotic song, "You're a Grand Old Flag," followed by the well-known "Yankee Doodle Dandy" in 1908. Cohan was also an actor, producer, and playwright. "Over There" and "Give My Regards to Broadway" were others of his hits. In Hannibal, Missouri, July 4 is Tom Sawyer Fence Painting Day. So, write a letter, sing a song or two, then paint the fence.

You're a grand old flag, You're a high-flying flag, And forever in peace may you wave. . . ." – George M. Cohan

TIP OF THE WEEK

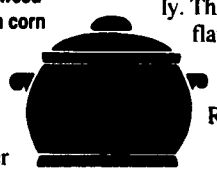
CURRIED CORN AND TOMATO SOUP

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon curry powder
dash of cayenne, to taste
1 cup chicken stock
1 cup canned tomatoes and juice, crushed
1 teaspoon dill weed
5 ounces frozen corn



Melt butter, add flour, and stir with whisk over low heat for 1 minute. Add milk and whisk over medium heat until thickened. Stir in the curry powder and cayenne, then add chicken stock, tomatoes, dill, and corn. Simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. This soup is best when flavors are allowed to blend for at least a couple of hours. Reheat to serve.

Makes 4 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the first of July be rainy weather, twill rain more or less for four weeks together.

Rain on St. Mary's Day (July 2) means rain for a month.

A shower in July, when the corn begins to fill, is worth a plow of oxen, and all belongs there till.

Northern wind brings weather fair.

OPINION

Don't Poison Your Cows

This may be preaching to the choir. But even farmers sometimes poison their neighbor's cows. At least all farmers should be on the lookout for someone who may unwittingly trim their yew bushes and throw the branches over the fence into the pasture field.

According to Walt Wurster, Chester County extension agent, this happens each year and the results are a dead cow, goat, sheep, or horse. Farm animals like to browse on cuttings from ornamental plants, not realizing that they are extremely poisonous.

Generally speaking, there are very few native ornamental plants which are not poisonous to some extent. The safest recommendation is to keep all cuttings from ornamentals away from livestock.

All species of yews are very poisonous. The toxic principal, taxine, is extremely powerful and it produces a slow, weak pulse and violent convulsions. They are also especially dangerous for goats and sheep.

The beautiful house plant Oleander that is often set out along the garden fence for the summer is very deadly. Only 0.005 percent of the animal's body weight is enough to kill the animal.

And the broadleaf evergreens such as the laurels, rhododendrons, pieris, and most others in this group will poison domestic animals.

The warning is appropriate for this time of year. Don't poison your neighbor's (or your own) cows or other farm animals.

To Practice PTO Safety

Power Take Off (PTO) shafts, perhaps the best known farm hazard, continue to maim and kill people.

Advances in shields and housing have reduced the danger on new equipment. However, thousands of old, modified, and unguarded shafts are used every day on the farm.

When working around PTO shafts, remember these safety rules:

- Keep all shields in place.
- Avoid wearing loose, baggy clothing, drawstrings, and long hair.
- Do not go near engaged PTO shafts.
- Turn off the tractor before working on equipment powered by PTO shafts.

To Evaluate Soybean Stands

Many times soybean farmers are faced with the decision to replant their soybean crop because of poor plant populations.

It is difficult to determine when it is economically feasible to replant soybeans or let the field stand as is.

The University of Delaware conducted a two-year study to look at this issue. Soybeans were planted at the rate of 140,000 plants per acre and then thinned to represent a 25, 50 and 75 percent reduction in the number of plants. These thinned plots were then compared to the yield of fields which were replanted.

Even when the plant population was reduced by 75 percent, the original field outyielded the replanted field for single crop beans.

To File For Fuel Tax Refund

Pennsylvania farmers have until Sept. 30 to apply for refunds on taxes paid on liquid fuels used for agriculture.

Many farmers, however, do not take advantage of this refund. The average refund is nearly $200. The refunds are authorized by a state law that exempts farmers from the 12 cent a gallon state excise tax on fuel used for agriculture.

Each claim must include copies of paid receipts or a statement from the fuel dealer indicating the number of gallons bought, the purchase dates, and verification that the tax was paid.

Farmers who applied for refunds during the past two years were mailed claim forms on June 14. Forms are also available from The Board of Finance and Revenue, Room 500C, Finance Building, Harrisburg PA 17120 or by calling (717) 787-6534.

Refunds will be issued for taxes paid on fuels purchased between July 1, 1995 and June 30, 1996. Fill today so you do not miss the Sept. 30, 1996 deadline.

Editor:

In recent weeks much has been said about the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact. The compact promises to bring higher Class 1 prices to dairy farmers in the six New England states and surrounding states that sell into the Compact area.

With all the fanfare and hype surrounding the Compact it is easy to forget the highly effective programs already in place in Pennsylvania that do far more than just increase the producer price. In Pennsylvania dairy farmers enjoy the benefit of an effective premium program, pruchases secured through bonding, audited payments on a monthly basis, and a resale price mechanism which promotes a stable and efficient market.

The Milk Marketing Board mandates a premium on all Class 1 milk, produced, processed and sold in Pennsylvania. At present the premium is at $0.50 per one hundred pounds of Class 1 milk sold. The premium is adjusted periodically to reflect market conditions, cost of production and other factors that may influence the price. Since September of 1981 when the premium program was first in effect Pennsylvania dairy farmers have received more than $161,000.

The Board requires that payment for Pennsylvania farm milk be guaranteed through a bond. This is why the Board requires a bond for up to 75% of 40 days' purchases of farm milk by processors. Without the protection offered by bonding, hundreds of Pennsylvania dairy farmers would be exposed to undue financial risk. Imagine working hard for months, purchasing raw materials and labor to produce a quality product only to find that the purchaser has resold your product, gone bankrupt, and is unable to pay any of its creditors. In today's competitive business environment, this scenario is far from fantasy.

Each dairy plant receiving Pennsylvania farm milk is monitored closely each month. Payment to producers and the general financial vitality of the dairies is documented to insure that each

THE AWFUL NEARNESS

THE AWFUL NEARNESS
June 30, 1996

Background Scripture:
James 4: 1-10, 13-17
Devotional Reading:
I Corinthians 3: 10-15

According to William B. Silverman, the Hasidic rabbis taught: "Everyone must have two pockets, so he can reach into one or the other according to his need. In his right pocket are the words, 'For my sake the world was created,' and the other, 'I am earth and ashes.'"

This ancient saying captures the creative tension in which we must hold our pride and our humility. We must never forget our divine creation or our human failing. Humility tempers our pride and pride elevates our humility.

It is a mistake, I believe, to equate humility with worthlessness. I like the way William L. Sullivan puts it in Epigrams and Criticisms in Miniature: "Genuine humility does not arise from our pitiable kinship with the dust that is unworthy of us but from the realization of our awful nearness to a magnificence of which we are unworthy." One cannot be nothing and humble. Humility is possible only when we realize how wonderfully we are created and how fearfully we fail to live up to it.

OUR HUMBLEST HOUR

James M. Barrie, said: "The life of every man is a diary in which he means to write one story and writes another; and his humblest hour is when he compares the volume as it is with what it was meant to be." No life, no matter how successful in worldly terms is ever totally satisfying when we compare it with the life God has willed for us. But, we see that only through humility. As Henry Thoreau puts it, "Humility like darkness reveals the heavenly light." Many people never see that heavenly light because they are too dazzled by their own limited luminosities.

Some people I've known are truly humble; many more have been humbled by life's storms; but I don't know anyone who has sought to be humble. In the popular perception, there's something seemingly unattractive about humility. It's so...humbling! We all seek recognition in one form or another, but I can't recall ever seeking humility.

Perhaps the problem is that we don't really understand the nature of humility. As I indicated above, some people equate humility with being worthless. It is not. To assume that God has created you worthless is an affront to your Creator. As one of my parishioners informed me many years ago, "God don't make no junk!"

HUMILITY'S ADVANTAGES

James tells us of advantages in humility that may not occur to us. "God opposes the proud, but gives grace to the humble" (4:6). Arrogant pride is an invitation to God to humble us. God doesn't put down the humble, only the proud. And Grace is love that we don't deserve so it is something the proud person cannot experience. Only the humble person can know and enjoy the grace of God.

"Humble yourselves before the Lord and he will exalt you" (4:10).Only those who approach God in true humility will be exalted by him. The true reward of life is not the recognition which the world gives us, but the exaltation that only God can give. Human pride is set upon a shaky foundation. Winston Churchill was once asked by a pushy lady if it didn't thrill him to realize that people flocked to hear him speak. His answer: "It is quite flattering...but whenever I feel this way I always remember that if instead of making a political speech I was being hanged, the crowd would be twice as big."

Boasting, says James, is arrogance and arrogance is a terrible affront to God. "All such boasting is evil," he writes (4:17). Humility, on the other hand, puts everything— ourselves included— in perspective, helping us to perceive and respond to that "awful nearness" of the "magnificence" of the image in which we were created.

dairy processor or manufacturer is meeting its obligations and is fiscally secure.

Besides setting the minimum farm price for milk, the Board also establishes the minimum wholesale price. This is done by verifying dealers' actual costs for processing, packaging and delivering packaged milk, and setting minimum wholesale prices based on those costs. By setting minimums that account for all necessary costs incurred by the milk dealers plus a nominal profit, the Board helps to insure that processors can pay their farmers for the milk they purchase. Also, dealers operate in an environment free of destructive competition. In states without the benefit of price control, milk may be sold at a loss that can eventually cause bankruptcies and market disruptions that hurt everyone. In Pennsylvania, however, competition is based on service and quality.

In general, we have more dealers able to specialize and cater to their individual customer needs.

Once the minimum wholesale price for milk is established, the minimum retail price can be created. By setting minimum prices that account for all costs incurred by the retailers plus a small profit, the Board helps to insure that retailers will continue to sell milk to consumers in an environment free of destructive competition. Like their supplying dealers, stores are highly competitive based on service and their ability to sell a high quality, wholesome product to their customers.

When compared to surrounding markets, the consumer price for milk in Pennsylvania compares quite favorably. Month after month, the reports from the International Association of Milk Control Agencies show that the prices charged in Pennsylvania are at or below those charged in surrounding states.

In Pennsylvania there is no undue price pressure because of destructive competition. This allows everyone in the supply chain, from the dairy farmers through the processing dairies and the retailers, to pursue the highest quality standards possible. Processors that purchase farm milk consistently provide premiums for high quality milk to their producers. The cost of these voluntary premiums is built into the resale pricing system. Processors in Pennsylvania in turn have the highest quality standards to be found anywhere in the world. Retailers pass on that quality product to the consumers.

The legislature, through the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board, has established the most comprehensive and beneficial pricing system to be found anywhere on any commodity. By regulating pricing from top to bottom in a fair and equitable fashion, Pennsylvania enjoys one of the most robust dairy industries in the world. As we look to an uncertain future, the importance of the Board becomes increasingly clear.

We are seeing drastic changes in federal policies, upheavals and bankruptcies in surrounding markets, and continued pressure in international markets from highly subsidized milk products. Were it not for the foresight of our legislative leadership, our dairy industry and the thousands of people that depend on it for their livelihood

Record Exports Help Pork Producers

DENVER, Colo. — Record pork exports in 1995 had a significant impact on American pork producers and allied industries last year, according to a recent study by CF Resources, an independent research firm in Denver, Colo.

Export sales of U.S. pork and pork variety meat products, the study reports, were responsible for 8.6 percent of the wholesale value of total U.S. pork production last year — up from 6.1 percent in 1994 and eight times the figure of just 10 years ago.

"We're very pleased with the results of this latest impact study," said U.S. Meat Export President Philip M. Seng. "Once you've looked back at what has been accomplished in recent years, you can't help but get excited about what the future holds for pork exports."

The study finds that hog prices in the United States benefit substantially from increased demand for high-quality American pork in foreign markets. Given levels of production and demand last year in the United States, export sales of U.S. pork added $11.78 per head to the value of slaughter hogs in 1995.

The American pork industry exported a record 365,289 metric tons of pork and pork variety meats in 1995, valued at $936 million. This is a 500 percent increase in export volume since 1986. The study notes that U.S. pork exports in 1995 were equivalent to 4.26 million hogs.

The industry's growth in foreign markets, said Seng, is just the tip of the iceberg. "We see potential for U.S. pork export sales to top a million metric tons in the year 2000."

Land Planning Workshop Held

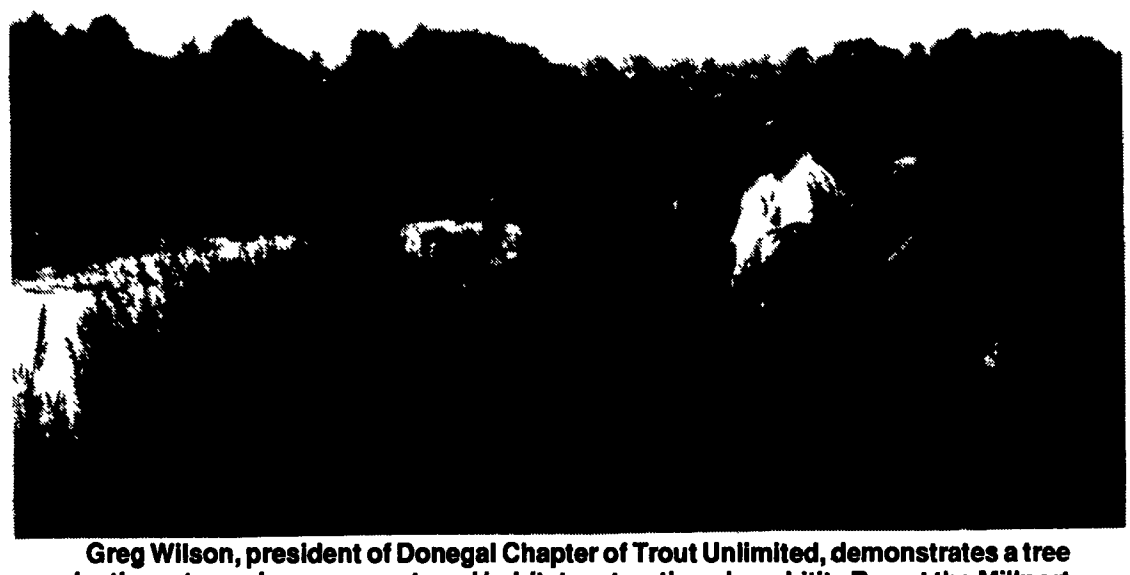
LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Preserving and restoring natural resources was the theme of a workshop held at the Millport Conservancy in Lititz today. More than 40 land planning firms, and municipal, county and state personnel attended the daylong workshop entitled "Where Urban Meets Rural in Lancaster County." Nine experts addressed topics that included the need for sustainable development, the cost of community services, agriculture, and the benefits of watershed-based planning.

"Our goal was to create a forum to discuss the need for flexible local zoning ordinances and to look at alternatives to the uncontrolled development and sprawl we've seen," said Mark Gutshall, of Landstudies, Inc., one of the organizers of the workshop. "Through effective open space management, cluster development, and stormwater runoff planning, the benefits of cohesive planning for the community are clear. And the presentations showed that sensible land use can be economically feasible."

The workshop included a presentation and analysis by Dr. Timothy W. Kelsey of Penn State University about the costs associated with different land uses for residential, commercial and industrial development; agriculture; and open space. His research indicated that residential land generally costs local taxpayers, while open space as well as commercial, industrial and farm land help taxpayers by paying more than they require back in services.

The workshops was co-sponsored by the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, David Miller/ Associates, Inc., Donegal Chapter of Trout Unlimited, Gehringer-Roth, Herbert, Rowland & Grubic, Inc., Historic Preservation Trust of Lancaster County, Kimmel Bogrette Architecture + Site, Lancaster County Conservation District, Millport Conservancy, RGS Associates, Pennsylvania Environmental Council, Rettew Associates, Valley Forge Chapter Society of American Foresters, and Waterfowl USA.

Proceeds from the workshop registrations will benefit the Lititz Run Watershed Planning and Implementation project.



Greg Wilson, president of Donegal Chapter of Trout Unlimited, demonstrates a tree planting, stream improvement, and habitat restoration along Lititz Run at the Millport Conservancy. This is one of the projects associated with the Lititz Run Watershed Plan.

American Guernsey Association Elects Officers, Holds Sale

Another resolution thanked the board of directors for their dedication, attention and willingness to work, while yet another thanked the staff for doing a good job.

Two resolutions approved were aimed at changes desired for membership.

A resolution from the AGA Production Committee requests that all breeders use the top 20 bulls rated in artificial insemination studs, rather than focusing on the top two.

Achieving a healthy genetic diversity and continued breed improvement are at risk given the number of Guernseys in the United States and a prevelance of a sire selection practice that favors popularity of a bull rather than animal improvement.

Another resolution, from the New York Guernsey Breeders Association, requested that members should try to do their best to encourage multiple component pricing with the implementation of Farm Bill provisions that would change the regulation of the milk market in the United States.

In other action, Mellisa Morrow, of Tyrone, was named the national outstanding Guernsey youth, selected from a field of six contestants and five finalists.

Morrow, daughter of John and Karen Morrow, owners of Hillside Acres, is a Penn State student pursuing a bachelor's degree in agricultural business management.

She has also served as the 1995 Pennsylvania Guernsey queen and national Guernsey princess, and is a mbmer of the Penn Sate Dairy Science Club and its dairy judging team.

In other outstanding member recognitions, Ronald Wenger, of Goshen, Ind., owner of Valley Set Farm, was named the recipient of the AGA master breeder award.

In posthumous recognitions, William Lee Moore Jr., Plano, Texas, and Frank D. Brown, Port Deposit, Md., were both honored for their contributions to the Guernsey breed during their lifetimes.

In other business, the convention sale, held at the Maryland Fairgrounds in Timonium, inside the large Dairy Palace building, featured 41 lots including a bull, cows, heifers, springers, calves and frozen embryos.

The sale average was $2,022 and it grossed $86,225.

At $10,500, the top seller was a syndicate bull that provided an unusual investment opportunity for members. It was purchased by 21st Century Genetics.

The bull, Lone Acres E Baltimore, is a Sherma Victory Ellas Enhancer son out of dam 2-year-old Lone Acres Magic Bonita, classified Very Good 86-points.

The Baltimore bull carries predicted abilities of +1,608 pounds milk, +62 pounds fat (+$195), +49 pounds protein (+$191), and CY+195. His PTAT is +2.5 and his PTI was +317.

Frederick and Bruce Kipp, of Lone Acres Farm in North Prairie, Wis., are the breeders of the bull.

For a month prior to the sale, members of the AGA were able to purchase membership in a syndicate that sold semen shares at a rate that came to $10 per unit, or a full share at $200 per 20 units. There were 43 people who purchased a full of half share.

The total invested in bull shares prior to the sale was $6,700, and bidding on the right to market that semen began there.

For being a member of the syndicate, royalties are to be paid, depending on the value of the semen. It still has to prove itself, however, Jensen said he was excited about the bull's potential.

"It's a real exciting pedigree," he said. "The bull offers some very modern genetics and has a deep cow family — the fourth dam was this year's living lifetime award (recipient), presented at annual meeting.

"His dam is a 2-year-old off to a real exciting start," Jensen said. "She was appraised 86 points as a 2-year-old. His ganddam ranks No.33 on the CPI list (cow performance index list)."

The second highest selling lot of the sale was a year-old open heifer out of Excellent 92-point Valley Set B Hally. Wenger Ronald, of Goshen, Ind., consigned and bred the heifer, Valley Set Tom Handy, a daughter of Valley Set Smokey Tom.

She was sold to Spring Walk Farm, in Big Prarie, Ohio for $5,300.

The third highest selling consignment of the sale was a calf owned and bred by Clay Smith, 20, whose parents, O. Clayton and Shirley Smith of OCS Dairy, in Jefferson, Md., also opened their farm to a convention tour.

In 1978, Clay Smith brought Guernseys onto his parents' 240-head Holstein dairy farm, starting with one calf that has served as the foundation of now famous herd. The calf's dam OCS Dairy Diadora Lil Foot has the United State's highest 305-day and 365-day butterfat production record and made 34,220 pounds of milk in 365-days. She also won a number of titles in the showring.

The calf, OCS Dairy Footsies Miss Biggie, a Solum Grand Henry daughter born Jan. 6, was sold for $4,000 to Pleasant View Farm, in St. Thomas, Pa. (Franklin

Sweet Corn, Tomato IPM Info Available

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Sweet corn and tomato integrated pest management (IPM) information will be available to commercial vegetable growers in several forms this year.

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program and the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association have funded IPM research projects at Penn State for tomato disease control and sweet corn insect control for many years.

Growers can obtain the information from these projects to help them time their fungicide and insecticide sprays from a toll-free recorded telephone message, from a "fax-on-demand" service, from a weekly postcard mailing, from their county extension office, and from postings at certain produce auctions.

The toll-free recorded telephone message is available 24 hours a day by calling 1-800-PENN-IPM. While the call can be dialed from either a rotary or touch-tone phone line, to access the specific information about tomatoes or sweet corn from a rotary phone line, the telephone set itself must be able to be switched to a touch-tone phone after the initial call is placed. The sweet corn information is updated weekly while the tomato information is updated twice a week usually.

This toll-free service has been expanded this year to provide the information via fax as well. The procedure will be explained on the phone line.

The Vegetable Marketing and Research Board believes it is important to provide this IPM information to growers during the season when they can use it to time fungicide and insecticide applications. Last year the program worked with extension offices across the state to provide this information on postcards sent to most growers in the state on a weekly basis for a six-week period at the height of the season. Growers overwhelmingly indicated in the Program's grower survey last fall they wanted this service again in 1996.

This series will be offered again this year, but postcards will only be sent to growers who request them. This will insure that the program does not waste money sending it to growers who cannot or choose not to use the IPM information.

The IPM information is also available on request from county extension offices and is posted at some of the produce auctions.

As the public continues to be concerned about the amount of pesticides used on their food crops, it behooves growers to do everything in their ability to limit the amount of pesticides applied. These two IPM programs supported over the years by grower assessment funds have been developed to allow growers to obtain maximum crop protection with the least amount of pesticide applied at the optimum time. Both projects provide information on when the insect pest or disease pressure is the greatest.

In a given year, the programs may indicate more sprays should be applied than what ordinarily would be applied by straight calendar spray schedule in order to fully protect the crop. At other times, less sprays will be recommended. In the final analysis, the grower stands to gain either way. If less sprays are needed, the grower has less invested in pesticides and application costs. If more sprays are needed, the grower has a higher quality crop to sell.

Pennsylvania growers can be proud that they have supported these two IPM programs over the years and should utilize the information they generate. Dr. Alan MacNab's research on tomato disease forecasting laid the groundwork for similar forecasting systems in other states. Fleischer and Spangler's work with sweet corn insect monitoring is fine-tuning this important IPM tool for growers.

Growers who want the postcards sent to them during July and early August should call the Vegetable Marketing and Research Program at (717) 473-8468.

USDA, Pa., Cumberland Conservation District Sign Agreement

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The commonwealth of Pennsylvania signed its first revised agreement to strengthen its relationship with the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and the commonwealth's 66 conservation districts in Cumberland County.

"The signing of this agreement will mark the renewal of a unique partnership that has existed for more than 50 years among federal, state and local leaders," said Janet L. Oertly, state conservationist for the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service. "This partnership has been responsible for some of the most important conservation achievements on private lands in this commonwealth."

The Mutual Agreement replaces the Basic Memorandum of Understanding which have existed between the secretary of agriculture and each of the nation's 3,000 soil and water conservation districts since the 1930s. The new mutual agreement allows for changes that better reflect the expanding conservation partnership and the changing scope and requirements of the conservation program.

The mutual agreement establishes the framework for cooperation among USDA, the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and conservation districts. The one-page document, which serves as an umbrella for all 29 USDA agencies, allows the commonwealth and conservation districts to enter into other dynamic agreements to access USDA's programs and services, expertise, and human and financial resources.

USDA also has a second agreement, called the Cooperative Working Agreement. This agreement replaces the Supplemental Memorandum of Understanding. The Cooperative Working Agreement defines a relationship among Natural Resources Conservation Service or other USDA agency, the State Conservation Commission, and the conservation district. This document is more detailed, flexible, and adaptable to local needs and priorities. It's intended to encourage local decisionmaking. A state committee is developing that agreement to best suit the natural resource needs of Pennsylvania. The Cooperative Working Agreement with all 66 conservation districts will be signed at a later date.

N.Y. Farm Bureau Bolsters Legal Staff

ALBANY, N.Y. — Elizabeth (Liz) Corron Dribusch has been hired to fill the newly-created position of assistant counsel for the 25,000 member New York Farm Bureau.

A recent graduate of Albany Law School, Liz also has a master's degree from SUNY Albany, as well as a bachelor's degree from Siena College.

In her new position, Liz will primarily focus on legal research and writing in support of Farm Bureau's ever-increasing legal advocacy efforts as amicus curiae in important agriculturally-related litigation.

According to Jeff Kirby, NYFB's general counsel, "Liz brings to Farm Bureau not only an excellent academic record, but also very strong legal research and writing skills, and a farming background, all of which I think combine to make her the perfect choice for this position. She gives Farm Bureau's Legal Department the additional skills and resources which we need to better handle our growing involvement in the agricultural legal arena."

A native of rural Clinton County, Liz currently resides in Schodack, N.Y. with her husband, Christian.

County).

"We were all very pleased," Jensen said. "It was a typical sale. You always have some near the bottom you had hoped would sell for more, but overall I was very pleased with the sale."

The average price of more than $2,000 indicated the strength of the sale.

Jensen said the sale was one of the AGA's top two annual sales. He said that during the annual World Dairy Expo held at facilities in Madison, Wis., they hold the International Guernsey Classic sale.

And while Jensen clarified that both sales promote a combination of type and production, the convention sale weighs slightly heavier in production emphasis in consignment selection, while the International slightly tends to consider type over production.

Of the overall convention and sale, Jensen said, "I think everybody enjoyed it a lot. The Maryland GBA did a good job with having a lot of interesting tours and a lot of Guernsey herds to see."

Using Different Milk Tests May Achieve True Protein Value

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — You're making a routine check of each quarter of the cow's udder before attaching the milking machine, and you find flakes in the stripping of milk.

You know that flakes indicate mastitis, yet what do these flakes represent?

Are they from an inflammatory process in the udder tissue? Or from rapidly multiplying bacteria and white blood cell defense? Or something else entirely?

A routine test of the level of somatic cell counts in the milk of cows and/or of the entire tank milk is now accepted as an indicator of the presence or absence of mastitis in milk. And we can distinguish between stages of subclinical and clinical mastitis.

Somatic cell counts are supposed to be more or less equal to counts of white blood cells, or leucocytes, which, of course, are the cow's defense against bacterial invasions and inflammations.

Therefore, milk can have the appearance of normality and still have a subclinical mastitis condition. Flakes in milk indicate severe clinical cases.

In research here at the University of Delaware on the relationship of milk composition versus leucocyte levels in milk, we found some very interesting changes in milk composition depending on leucocyte level.

Not only did chloride and lactose contents in milk change (which we had known for some time), but milk proteins changed too, without altering the "total milk protein" contents.

Milk protein consists of several kinds of proteins and non-protein nitrogen compounds. The major milk protein of commercial interest is casein, with approximately 50 to 85 percent of the total protein.

Casein is the only protein used for cheese production in most countries, with the exception of ricotta, mizithra, gjetost and other specialty whey cheeses.

So if casein is 85 percent of all milk proteins, the yield for cheese making is much better than when casein makes up only 50 or 60 percent of all milk proteins.

Therefore, paying for milk by its protein content really tells cheese makers nothing, whether they are getting one pound of cheese from nine pounds of milk or from 12 or 14 pounds of milk.

When cheese makers buy milk, they want to get maximum yield. They need to know whether the milk has any level of subclinical mastitis, because it could change the casein content within the total milk protein content.

In work at the University of Delaware, we have demonstrated that not only will the proportionate casein content in milk with subclinical mastitis decrease, but the levels of other milk proteins like serum albumin, immunoglobulins and non-protein nitrogen compounds will increase.

Yet these go into waste with the whey.

Now there is some new and exciting related research (Journal of Dairy Science, November 1994, pp. 2375-2381).

A team at Purdue University and in Hungary and Sweden has discovered what actually happens in the udder when there are different stages of subclinical and clinical mastitis, which explains in part the appearance of flakes.

From a herd of 1,020 Holsteins, five groups of cows were identified. These cows had the same California Mastitis Test Score (CMT) in all four quarters.

They averaged 67,000 somatic cell count (SCC) for CMT-0, 118,000 SCC for CMT-1, 401,000 SCC for CMT-2, 1,737,000 SCC for CMT-3 and 6,964,000 SCC for CMT-4.

Normal milk without subclinical mastitis has a CMT of 0 (zero), and that kind of milk in the tested cows had very low levels of free amino acids as part of "total milk protein."

I put the total protein in quotation marks because milk protein in this part of the world is analytically determined from its nitrogen content, multiplied by 6.38, which is the usual nitrogen content in true milk proteins. This means that any non-protein nitrogen is included in the multiplication, even though it is not true protein.

In some states this situation has led to the determination and labeling of "true" protein in milk without including the non-protein nitrogen, because it has no nutritional value for humans, and may even have negative ones.

Actually, this new research strongly supports the separation of true protein from the non-protein nitrogen in milk. It has shown that with each step of increasing CMT score, the contents of free amino acids from decreased casein contents — especially alanine, asparagine, isoleucine, leucine and proline — increase significantly and dramatically, more than 10 times in a linear trend.

Just by measuring contents of these free amino acids in milk, it was possible to diagnose the milk as CMT 1, 2, 3, 4 or 0!

In addition, the same relationships were found for the first strippings before milking; they also contained high amounts of free amino acids versus none in normal milk.

This evidence strongly supports the need for fore-stripping of milk from each quarter to check the appearance of milk, and the need to discard and to exclude fore-stripped milk from the milk tank for sale.

You may think that all this sounds like a lot of academics. Not really. For the cheese makers buying milk, it means more cheese yield and more money in their pockets, if there are no or very few free amino acids in the milk.

For dairy farmers selling to a cheese plant, they should get more money for their milk if their true milk protein content without free amino acids and other non-protein compounds is high.

How is true milk protein measured?

There are several ways. You can test all nitrogen in milk first and deduct the non-protein nitrogen. You can also test the casein contents directly. Or you can test all protein and non-protein nitrogen together (as is the usual routine), check somatic cell counts and deduct from the milk price for high somatic cell counts.

But what about the fluid milk buyer for direct fluid consumption?

Some states are concerned about the non-protein nitrogen content in milk being summarily labeled within the total protein.

The reason is that non-protein nitrogen doesn't have nutritional value for people. Only ruminants like cows, goats or sheep can utilize non-protein nitrogen in their rumen.

Some of these free amino acids may even have undesirable properties. Free amino acids influence the acidity and pH of milk in the same way as the cheese makers work. They may use sour milk for precipitation of casein.

This knowledge makes it more understandable why when we find flakes (i.e., "cheesy" milk) in fore-stripped quarters, we find mastitis. Now we know that these flakes are really mostly precipitated casein.

The new research gives us direct biochemical evidence of levels of udder inflammation, as well as what is going wrong with the casein in milk, independent of counting the numbers of leucocytes.

This method may become a much more reliable and useful tool for evaluating the nutritive and commercial value of milk on the farm and in commerce.

Richard Curan To Be Honored For Extension Work

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Friends, farm families, farm and community leaders, and colleagues from Baltimore County, the Mid-Atlantic area and the nation are honoring G. Richard (Dick) Curran, agricultural agent in Baltimore County for the Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland at College Park. (Curran lives in Westminster.)

Curran will retire officially on June 30 after 26 years of service in that position.

He currently is on personal leave in Poland as a followup to his previous participation in the Polish-American Extension Project, designed to assist Polish farmers through the transition period in adapting to a free market economy.

Curran achieved distinction during his Extension career by organizing or promoting rural-urban events in one of Maryland's most populous counties. Among these activities have been Farm Visitation Day, Maryland Agriculture Week at major shopping malls and the Baltimore Farmers Market.

On the commercial farm scene, Curran organized the Baltimore County weed control advisory board and supervised the Baltimore County Corn Club. He has served as an adviser for the Farmers Produce Association, Central Maryland Beekeepers Association and the county committee of the USDA's Farm Service Agency.

He was the longtime secretary of the county soil conservation district and Extension liaison person with the county Farm Bureau organization.

He was planning committee chairman for the 1978 Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference in the Hunt Valley Inn at Cockeysville.

Curran was instrumental in organizing the annual Baltimore County Field Crops Day, county field crop demonstration plots, tailgate farmers markets, nutrient management and integrated pest management programs, and a countywide grain marketing club.

Curran is a past president of both the Maryland Association of County Agricultural Agents and the National Association of County Agricultural Agents (NACAA). He was selected to participate in the NACAA's 1980 Dow Study Tour of California agriculture. He led a 21-person group of central Maryland farm leaders on a Goodwill "People to People" two-week tour of China in 1983 and a similar group on a corresponding tour of Europe in 1987.

A native of York County, Pennsylvania, Curran holds a bachelor's degree in agronomy from Penn State and advanced degrees in Extension education from the University of Maryland at College Park.

Before joining the Cooperative Extension Service in Baltimore County, he spent 14 years as an agrichemical sales representative for the Olin Corporation and two years as a field representative for the now-defunct Hungerford Packing Company of New Freedom, Pa.

Friends of Dick Curran are invited to a retirement celebration on July 19, beginning at 6 p.m. at Wilhelm Ltd. Caterers along the southbound lane of Highway 140, south of Westminster.

During the program, a book of letters and/or photos from friends will be presented to Dick.

For more information, contact the Baltimore County Cooperative Extension Service at (410) 666-1022.

SRBC To Meet July 8

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) is to meet 3 p.m. July 8 at the Holiday Inn in Oneonta, New York, to consider several business items, including possible adoption of a budget for the 1997-98 fiscal year.

The SRBC operates on a July 1 to June 30 fiscal year for budgeting purposes, mirroring state and federal governments.

The SRBC is a compact consisting of the U.S. secretary of the interior, and the heads of the respective environmental state agencies in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland. Its purpose is to oversee the uses and flows of the Susquehanna River.

Details of the proposed budget were not released with an announcement of the meeting, however, some of the other agenda items were somewhat detailed.

Among items for action are a request for "approval of a contract with USGS for the construction for the construction of certain stream gages which would otherwise be shut down (because of) federal funding cuts.

A request for a voice mail system for the SRBC headquarters building in Harrisburg and a request for modification of the SRBC investment policy to allow "more flexibility and greater returns" on SRBC investments are also on the agenda.

Review for approval of two requests for water usage are also scheduled.

The Specialty Records Corporation has requested approval to consume up to 98,000 gallons of water per day in connection with an undetailed project in Olyphant with compensation made through payment for SRBC purchase of stored water.

Bath Petroleum Storage Inc. has requested approval to pump 1.815 million gallons per day of groundwater from one well, with a total combined withdrawal from another well of up to 2 million gallons per day, on a 30-day average.

The company is also seeking approval to consume 1.568 million gallons per day for industrial uses, with plans to discontinue consumptive use during low flow periods.

In other action, the SRBC staff is report highlights of its activities, and also provide a brief report on hydrologic conditions within the basin.

Simmental Top-Gaining Bull

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Shoemaker's Money Maker, consigned by Miller and Shoemaker's Simmentals of Bedford, was the top-gaining bull overall breeds entered into the Pennsylvania's Performance testing program.

He gained 5.12 pounds per day on the test. This is 20 percent above the average gain of his breed.

Miller and Shoemaker had a second bull in the test, Red Hot Jet, who placed fourth out of fifteen bulls. It should be noted that Shoemaker's Dream Jet, also owned by Miller and Shoemaker's Simmentals, captured the grand champion Simmental bull title and went on to capture the supreme champion beef bull title over all other breeds at the 80th Pennsylvania Farm Show in January.

Dairylea Joins Effort To Help Producer Income

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Concerned with the alarming cost/price squeeze that could force thousands of milk producers out of business, Dairylea Cooperative Inc. has joined with the National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF) in requesting specific federal action from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to help dairy producers deal with record high grain prices, low beef prices, weather-reduced feed supplies and lackluster dairy produce exports.

In a recent letter to Secretary Glickman, Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford urged the USDA to "take action immediately to alleviate the harmful effects of adverse conditions on the nation's dairy farmers."

Rutherford is also standing behind the recommendations of NMPF's chief executive officer Jim Barr, who is calling for the USDA to:

- Make advance government dairy product purchases for domestic food assistance programs;
- Fully implement 1996 Farm Bill provisions to strengthen the Dairiy Export Incentive Program (DEIP) for U.S. dairy export market development;
- Authorize Food for Progress Program purchases of dairy products for overseas humanitarian aid projects and international market development; and
- Release existing Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) stocks of feed grains to alleviate regional feed shortages.

"Dairy farmers must write immediately to Secretary Glickman, describing their own personal situation on, feed costs, cattle prices and profit margins," said Rutherford. "We must urge the USDA to take the necessary actions to mitigate the present price/cost crunch. Such action will sustain the farm operations of many of the nation's dairy producers, and will allow the dairy industry to move forward during this economically challenging time."

Dairylea is a Syracuse-based, dairy farmer-owned cooperative with more than 2,600 member-farms throughout the Northeast. It markets more than 4.5 billion pounds of milk annually and participates and is invested in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Maryland to Ohio.

Dairy Tour To Lebanon, Manheim

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Are your considering changes to your dairy farm? If you answered maybe or yes, then consider attending a tour designed for dairy farmers.

The July 17 tour, sponsored by RISA (Regional Infrastructure for Sustaining Agriculture) and the Penn State Dairy MAP project includes two dairy farms loaded with excellent ideas. The two dairy farms featured are Hershey Brothers Dairy in Manheim and David and Christine Williams Farm in Lebanon. Both farms have high production herds and utilize a variety of management tools and technologies.

Featured at the Hershey Brothers Dairy will be their 200-cow modern confinement facility built in 1992. Learn from the Hersheys how they manage their operation, including their partnership.

At David and Christine Williams 60-cow farm, you will see several improvements to their tie stall barn that emphasizes cow comfort. In addition, the Williams' forage system includes management intensive grazing that is supporting a herd average of more than 28,000 pounds of milk with three times a day milking.

To learn how these two farms are putting all the pieces together, you must register by contacting the Lebanon County Extension Office at (717) 270-4391 by July 10. The tour is free and includes a lunch and transportation. However, registration is limited to the first 30 participants. The tour will be held on Wednesday, July 17, and starts at the Lebanon County Ag Center at 9:45 a.m. and ends at 3:15 p.m. The tour is funded by the RISA On-Farm Demonstration Team with support from Penn State Cooperative Extension and the Penn State Dairy MAP Project.

Does Phosphorus Move In Soil?

NORCROSS, Ga. — Phosphorus is a good news/bad news story. The good news is that it is immobile in the soil. So when a grower fertilizes with phosphorus it stays where it is placed. While nitrogen may be leached below the root zone of crops and could threaten groundwater in extreme cases, phosphorus resides in the root zone. It is not of environmental concern unless it is moved on soil particles by erosion of the soil itself.

Phosphorus is immobile because it is only slightly soluble in soil and rapidly forms insoluble compounds with aluminum in acid soils and calcium in alkaline soils.

The fact that phosphorus is immobile is also the bad news. So when a grower top-dresses a pasture or broadcasts phosphorus on no-till ground, it remains at the soil surface. This isn't necessarily a problem if the crop has sufficient feeder roots near the surface. But without those feeder roots or when the soil surface dries out, phosphorus becomes positionally unavailable. The phosphorus is available all right ... at least chemically available ... it's just that the roots can't get to it. At the least it means fertilizer uptake efficiency by the crop will be less, which requires a higher application rate as compensation. But it could mean lost yield. Ideally, roots should be encouraged to grow deep into the soil so they have the opportunity to absorb nutrients and water from as much soil volume as possible. This is an important consideration in high yield management. Topdressing for many crops doesn't accomplish this.

But let's look a little closer at phosphorus, and not overgeneralize. More accurately, phosphorus does move in soil ... but usually it is so slow and in such small amounts that for all practical purposes we simply say it is immobile. Here is an example of some, but not a lot of movement: phosphorus was top-dressed annually on a commercial apple orchard in the state of Washington at a rate of 80 pounds of phosphate per acre. The soil was a fine sandy loam. After 17 years ... and 17 applications ... the zone of greatest enrichment by far was the top one-inch of soil and accumulation below 12 inches was minor. Some movement of phosphorus was detectable to two feet. But this isn't much mobility compared to nitrogen that would be mostly gone after just one growing season.

Management makes a difference. Applying phosphorus in irrigation water enhances movement of the nutrient, especially when that application is to a localized soil area as with drip or microsprinkler irrigation. Research in California has shown substantial movement of phosphorus applied through drip irrigation ... 10 or 12 inches deep after just one season on a clay loam soil. This is enough movement to greatly enhance phosphorus availability to the growing crop, but not enough that is is in danger of leaching below the root zone. Other research has shown similar results. On a sandy soil, movement was reported to only 36 inches deep. This is certainly good news both agronomically and environmentally.

DMI Provides Update Of Dairy Promo Activities

ROSEMONT, Ill — Dairy Management Inc., the national organization that serves as a central coordination tool for United States dairy promotion activities, has begun providing monthly media dairy promotion updates, in an effort to better inform dairy producers on how their money is being spent and targeted.

The DMI is supported and overseen by a board consisting of members of the National Dairy Board and the United Dairy Industry Association. Those two boards also approved spending by DMI.

Strategic Long-Term Planning

At the May board meeting, the boards of the National Dairy Board and United Dairy Industry Association approved $1.6 million for a DMI strategic long-term planning project. The funds will support a three-year program to conduct customer and consumer research, complete a comprehensive segmentation analysis and develop a strategic business plan to keep dairy products competitive in the marketplace.

Nutrition Education

DMI has partnered with KinderCare, the nation's largest proprietary daycare provider, to use National Dairy Council's (NDC's) Chef Combo nutrition education program in its curriculum starting next fall. NDC dairy consumption recommendations will be incorporated into KinderCare's foodservice program, which serves more than 140,000 children daily. KinderCare outlets serve an estimated 21.5 million pounds of milk and 400,000 pounds of cheese each year.

Nutrition Research

The results of an NDC-funded meta analysis appearing in the April 10 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) indicated that calcium has a positive effect on reducing hypertension, particularly among pregnant women who run the risk of developing preeclampsia (a life-threatening situation for both mother and unborn child caused by pregnancy-induced high blood pressure). Researchers concluded that adequate calcium in the diet — as little as four glasses of milk per day — showed a 62 percent reduction in the risk of developing preeclampsia and a 70 percent reduction in the risk of developing pregnancy-induced high blood pressure. To spread the message to consumers, DMI prepared and distributed news materials that reached 100 million consumers via TV and print media.

Foodservice

DMI has funded cheese promotion campaigns with leading national restaurant chains, including Pizza Hut's triple decker pizza, Wendy's Pepper Jack cheeseburger and several promotional sandwiches from Arby's. To date, nearly 3 million pounds of incremental cheese has been sold as a result ... In addition, an ongoing DMI-funded placement of American Dairy Association point-of-sale materials is promoting a "Fourth Flavor" milkshake at 8,400 McDonald's outlets.

Cheese Retail

During a 12-week cheese promotion last winter, grocery stores participating in customized "Cheese to the Rescue" TV advertising coupled with in-store sampling of cheese enjoyed an 11.6 percent increase in cheese sales compared to non-participating stores.

Cheese Publicity

Mr. Food's "Casual Meals and Cheese" tour of six cities delivered the cheese message to 68 million consumers this spring ... Barbara Smith, a former model now acclaimed as a cookbook author and restauranter, kicked off the "Entertaining and Cheese" 1996 cheese publicity program with an appearance on CBS This Morning, followed by a media tour to five major U.S. cities.

Milk Advertising

In their first six months on national television, "GOT MILK" commercials have scored well with customers. Slogan recall increased to nearly 80 percent among teens and nearly 60 percent among adults ages 20-34. The May 13 issue of USA Today cited a Lou Harris consumer poll reporting "GOT MILK?" as the most popular TV advertising campaign among middle-income adults.

Butter Publicity

In April, a DMI partnered with Mid America Dairymen co-op at the annual conference of the International Association of Culinary Professionals (IACP) to help introduce 1,600 top food editors, writers and cookbook authors trendy new butter recipes and the ButterNet home page (http://www.realbutter.com) on the Internet. DMI media efforts placed articles about the show on nationally syndicated news services.

Milkfat Research

A multi-year partnership between DMI and MONA Industries, a leading personal care ingredients supplier to the cosmetics industry, has resulted in a new line of milk-based ingredients for use in lipstick, lip balm, conditioning agents and baby care products. The company introduced its MONA-LAC cosmetics ingredients to major cosmetics manufacturers at an industry trade show in May.

Exports

USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) has increased its annual allocation to the U.S. Dairy Export Council (USDEC) by 100 percent, indicating its support for the future of dairy exports. USDEC membership has grown to include 39 dairy and export industry interests.

Lancaster Farmland Trust, County Conservancy Preserve Farm

LANCASTER (Lanc. Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust and the Lancaster County Conservancy recently joined together to preserve a 63-acre farm and wooded property nestled next to the Boy Scout's Camp Mack and the former Coleman Estate in Elizabeth Township.

Brother and sister, Richard Minnich and Brooke Minnich, have long cherished the family retreat near Brickerville. The farm features an inviting pond, a small barn and a cottage. Although the property is largely wooded, it affords unspoiled, scenic views of the pond and Christmas tree fields from the Pennsylvania Turnpike. The property boasts what may be the champion Chestnut Oak tree in Pennsylvania.

By preserving their land, the Minnichs are preventing future development of the land, including residential and commercial development, and are limiting future permitted buildings to cover not more than a half acre of land.

The property is the seventh in Elizabeth Township preserved through a conservation easement and is not open to visitors from the public.

Conservation easements allow the landowner to continue to own the property while at the same time placing restrictions against development on the land to prevent it from being developed. There are more than 255 conservation easements in Lancaster County which are held and enforced by Lancaster Farmland Trust, the Lancaster County Conservancy, and/or the Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board.

Penn State Hires MAP Coordinator

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dairy-MAP, a program developed by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences to help boost the profitability of Pennsylvania's dairy farms, has added a new staff member.

John Rutherford, extension associate in dairy and animal science, has been named Dairy-MAP's western regional director.

Rutherford will help to maintain communication with local Dairy-MAP teams, industry partners and faculty at Penn State's University Park Campus. He also will coordinate program scheduling and promotion.

Dairy-MAP, which stands for Dairy Management and Profitability, helps producers learn up-to-date business management skills tailored specifically for the dairy industry. Each Dairy-MAP workshop features six to eight hours of instruction, split over two sessions held one week apart. Between sessions, participants do homework to help them begin applying business concepts on the farm.

More than 1,000 Pennsylvania dairy farmers have participated in Dairy-MAP since 1992.

Rutherford, who works from the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in Indiana County, will assist in producing high-quality materials for marketing and delivery of the Dairy-MAP program.

He also will conduct educational workshops as part of a team, help teach Dairy-MAP personnel, and summarize program evaluations.

Rutherford holds a bachelor's degree in economics from the University of Michigan. He worked for two and a half years as an accounting clerk and marketing assistant for a small manufacturing company, and began to milk cows part time on weekends.

"It became obvious that I needed a career change, so I decided to combine economics with my rekindled interest in dairying," he said. Rutherford attended graduate school at Michigan State University, studying dairy farm management in pursuit of a master's degree in agricultural economics.

"I believe that the future of the dairy industry lies in adapting to the unstoppable changes already under way," he said.

"Dairy operators must realign their production practices to fit the redefined marketplace. While this does not mean every Pennsylvania herd must exceed 300 cows, feed a total mixed ration from a bunker silo, and forward-price all milk, it does mean that some change is necessary," he said.

Refocusing the breeding program or relying more on custom field workers may have enough positive impact on the farm's profitability.

"Dairy-MAP shows managers how to assess their own operation, choose between alternatives, and ensure smooth operation once a decision is made."

Pennsylvania Percheron Assn. Holds Youth Clinic

BARBARA L. DARLINGTON
Association Reporter

COLYER (Centre Co.) — Amber Yearick sat tall in the seat, her blue eyes wide with anticipation. Her carriage was a beautiful black convertible with large maroon wheels, and escorting Amber was a kind gentleman known as Perry. They couldn't have asked for a more beautiful day, with the temperature in the 80s and bright sunshine.

Sounds a little like Cinderella, well close. Amber's escort Perry is a beautiful black Percheron gelding, and Amber was able to fulfill her dream of driving for the first time on Saturday, June 15, 1996, at the Pennsylvania Percheron Association's annual youth clinic. It was a big day for Amber and 23 other children as Perry, Abe, Amos, Barney, and a couple of other Percheron geldings took turns escorting the kids around the ring.

Outside the ring keeping a close eye on this next generation of hopeful Percheron owners and breeders stood the older generation, the leaders. These were the horsemen and women who had once been in the same seat as Amber and her friends. They had been there before, and they had helped many others along the way. Still on this bright sunny day in June, the sparkle in the eyes of the teachers were as bright as those of the students.

Even greater than showing their accomplishments in competition or at exhibitions, was the feeling of knowing that their knowledge and love for the Percheron breed of horse was being passed on to a generation as excited about these gentle giants as they have always been.

This day was not just a day of learning to drive. It started off on the hill at the home of Pennwoods Percherons, owned by John Cole and his family in Colver. Susan Cole introduced the kids to the Percheron breed by helping them to "get to know their horse." She spoke about the charisteristics of the horse from conformation to behavior.

Dr. Nancy Diehl, of Centre Equine Practice, joined the group speaking about general care of the horse from vaccinations to foot care. She answered questions about the effectiveness of different vaccines and demonstrated to the group how to detect hard hoof heads.

The afternoon meant it was time to get out and get some "hands on experience." Rhonda Cole as well as other members of the youth committee pulled out the braiding stands and helped the kids put some of that youthful energy to work. They explained and showed the group how to roll manes and braid tails, then tested the listening skills of participants by giving them the opportunity to practice. According to Amber rolling the mane is the easier of the two tasks, because with the tail there's a lot of "stuff" to do.

Abe Allebach, of Windermere Farms in Spring Mills, showed the kids how to harness a horse. He took the time to explain to them the proper fit of the harness and told them the differences in certain types of harnesses. He also explained some of the problems that can occur if the harness isn't fitted properly. Abe then gave the kids two piles of leather, which when put together would make two harnesses. Then grinning he proudly announced that the test was to harness two of the Percheron geldings waiting nearby. The kids were up to the task, and smiling right back at their teacher as they dove into the piles of leather. A short time later two Percherson geldings emerged, ready to pull the carts waiting for them.

Now that the horses were braided and harnessed, it was time to have some fun. Laureen Knapp, of Knapp Tyme Percherons in Findlay, Ohio, provided the instruction for the driving portion of the clinic. This was the favorite part of the clinic for Amber, although she was quick to add that she enjoyed the whole day. Not only did it give the kids a chance to do something many of them had never had the chance to do before, but it demonstrated to the adults in the group the versatility of the Percheron breed. These massive horses when hitched in the show ring often project a fiery temper, but in the hands of the kids they showed that they could be the gentlest of "baby-sitters."

After a long day of work, both mentally and physically it was time to head home. This next generation of Percheron owners and breeders had spent their day in the sun, laughing and learning. Someday it will be their turn to stand along side a ring and watch as a group of eager youngsters take the reins of a Percheron horse for the first time, and they will know that dreams are being filled right before their eyes.

AJCA Announces Contest Winners

AJCA AMERICAN JERSEY CATTLE ASSOCIATION NEWS

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Maplerow Mercury Aron-PTL-P, E-96%, topped the Leading Living Lifetime Production Contest in both the milk and fat categories. She is owned by Peggy A. Bennett, Albion, N.Y.

Glen Meadows Maple Sweetness, E-90% is the lifetime protein production winner, owned by Glen Meadows Farm, Fultonville, N.Y.

The Leading Living Lifetime Production Contest is sponsored each year by the American Jersey Cattle Association. It recognizes Jerseys alive as of December 31 of the contest year. In order to be nominated, cows must have a lifetime production of 150,000 lbs. milk, or 7,500 lbs. fat, or 5,000 lbs. protein.

Only DHIR production credits are used to calculate the standings. The total lifetime production achieved by the winners of the 1995 Leading Living Lifetime Production Contest is a credit to the producing ability of the Jersey breed.

Maplerow Mercury Aron is currently working on her 12th lactation, producing a total of 247,820 lbs. milk, 8,670 lbs. protein, and 11,346 lbs. fat in 4,188 days. She has a mature average on 12 lactations of 19,035 lbs. milk, 865 lbs. fat, and 780 lbs. protein.

The 14-yr.-old cow has completed nine lactations of more than 18,600 lbs. milk and 680 lbs. protein. This cow also ranked fourth in protein production and was named Grand Champion at the 1996 All American Open Show.

Glen Meadows Maple Sweetness, produced 9,103 lbs. of protein to take top honors in that category. This cow also placed second in milk production and sixth in fat production. She has completed 10 lactations in her lifetime.

Lanis Lexi of Star Jerseys won the Presidents Trophy and Hilmar Cheese Yield Award. She is owned by Raycene Crews, Star, Idaho.

The Presidents Trophy is based on mature equivalent protein production. The Hilmar cheese yield award is based on 305-day actual production completed in 1995, and is computed using the modified cheese yield formula for 38 percent moisture chedder.

Lanis Lexi of Star Jerseys won the awards for her 33,900—1,540—1,465 m.e. and her actual record of 2-11 305 30,000 4.6% 1,387 4.4% 1,320. This record yields a total of 3,952 lbs. of cheese.

The Leading Living Lifetime Production Awards, Presidents Trophy, and Hilmar Cheese Yield Award was to have been presented during the AJCA-NAJ Annual Meetings in Portland, Oregon this week.

A Good-ly 'Big Brother' Takes Home His Last County Hog Championship

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Just think of Justin Good as Big Brother.

No, not the evil Big Brother of the novel "1984" by George Orwell. Instead, think of the guy who has received lots of champion trophies and accolades from his peers and the press.

A guy like Justin Good.

Entering Penn State Berks Campus to study animal science — particularly animal genetics — Justin, 20, had one more show to attend to Tuesday evening to finish up his FFA career before he starts his next one. That next one, as he said, will involve acting as big brother — conveying his knowledge of better pigs to his own brothers Patrick, 16, Chris, 13, and Jon, 10.

Justin's hog was named supreme champion hog Tuesday evening at the Lancaster County FFA Hog Show, competing against seven other exhibitors and 33 hogs.

Justin, son of Amos and Pat Good, Lititz, showed a 270-pound York crossbred out of Dekalb genetics stock to supreme. He brought four hogs to the show and sale.

Hatfield Quality Meats purchased the champion at $2.20 per pound for $594.

The hogs came from a farmer in northern New York, said Justin. Genetics keyed the championship drive.

In college, he wants to learn to work with hog genetics to see what kind of stock he can raise himself.

"It's kind of interesting, being around pigs so many years," he said. "I think it would be interesting to see how they do."

In the meantime, he wants to be around to help his brothers show at the county 4-H roundup in addition to the Denver, New Holland, and Manheim fairs. "I'd like to help pick the pigs for them, give them directions in what to look for," he said.

Justin plans to show hogs himself at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition in Harrisburg in October. He said he will miss the county show ring, especially what he considers his favorite fair, New Holland.

"I did pretty good there in past shows," he said. "I enjoy the people."

Amy Becker, who won reserve champion, had to turn double duty at the show and sale. She was helping at the Free Buyers Dinner stand, handing out pork sandwiches, fruit salad, chips, and cookies for buyers before the sale. But before that, she picked up junior showmanship champion. And of course she had to go back into the show ring during the sale.

Amy, 14, daughter of Marlin and Nancy Becker, Manheim, is in the 9th grade at Manheim Central. This was her first championship at the county FFA show.

Amy showed her 252-pound Hampshire/Duroc crossbred out of the Frank Feeser herd.

Hatfield Quality Meats purchased the champion at $1.60 a pound for a total of $403.20.

Amy, who has been showing hogs for six years, said that genetics played an important part in obtaining a reserve champion. She plans to show at county 4-H roundup, Elizabethtown Fair, Manheim Fair, and at Farm Show.

In all, there were a total of 33 hogs and eight exhibitors. Judge for the show was Henry Holloway.

Following is a list of show placings.

Grange Supports Health Reform Compromise

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "There are many advantages to living and working in a rural community," said Barbara Knisely, National Grange legislative representative. "Unfortunately, access to health care choices is not one of them. Congress needs to pass the latest health reform compromise and give rural health care consumers the same options available to their urban and suburban cousins."

Knisely's remarks were made at a press conference to support the latest GOP compromise proposal on the stalled health reform legislation. She was joined by Communicating for Agriculture and other small business and ag/commodity associations who support the Grange's position on this legislation.

Knisely highlighted three provisions that would help millions of Americans if this legislation were passed: an increase in the tax deductibility for the self-employed, an MSA provision, and health insurance reforms. If passed, the legislation would increase the tax deductibility for the self-employed to 80 percent, phased in over five years. Currently large companies, their employees, and government workers can deduct 100 percent of their health insurance premiums, while the self-employed can deduct only 30 percent.

The MSA compromise would enable Medical Savings Accounts to be available on January 1, 1997, for employers with less than 50 employees and for the self-employed. MSAs will offer a positive, new, flexible option that will be particularly beneficial to rural health care consumers.

"Rural areas generally lack the managed care options available in urban areas to reduce costs," Knisely said. "MSAs will provide rural consumers with a means of contending with the cost squeeze."

Provisions for portability of insurance would also benefit rural consumers by helping eliminate job lock and discrimination against people with preexisting health conditions.

"The Grange appreciates the bipartisan effort to make health care reform a reality in 1996," Knisely said. "We urge Congress to support the MSA compromise and to pass the bill."

Receives Accreditation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius announced that the Pennsylvania Equine Toxicology and Research Laboratory (PETRL) in West Chester has been fully accredited for animal drug testing by the American Association for Laboratory Accreditation (AALA).

"Our laboratory analyzes samples for the presence of drugs and medications in race horses, checks permitted tolerance levels for therapeutic medications, and conducts research in many areas involving the performance of race horses," said Brosius. "This accreditation ensures its testing procedures are of the highest standards in the industry."

PETRL is only the third equine testing facility in the country to be accredited by this organization.

"The racing commissions use drug testing to affirm that the industry is regulated properly," said Brosius.

could be in serious peril. As it is, Pennsylvania continues to gain market share on surrounding states in the milk industry. Pennsylvania is in a position to continue its vigorous growth in the dairy industry shepherded by the Milk Marketing Board.

Editor:

The Surface Transportation Board (STB) is considering the application of the merger between the Union Pacific (UP) and Southern Pacific (SP) railroads.

The Pennsylvania Farmers Union has joined our nation's leading farm and commodity organizations, elected officials and other interested parties to go on record opposing the merger due to the anticipated anticompetitive impact. The United States Department of Transportation, the Department of Justice and the Department of Agriculture have all filed comments with the Surface Transportation Board in opposition to the merger which also support the basis of many of our concerns.

The merger of these two railroads will significantly reduce rail competition heading from Pennsylvania to Mexico, resulting in higher rates for farmers and consumers.

As proposed, the merger would grant UP control over a reported 90 percent of rail traffic into and out of Mexico, 70 percent of the petrochemical shipments from the Texas Gulf Coast, and the 86 percent of the plastic storage capacity in the Texas/Louisiana Gulf region.

The merger would greatly reduce rail competition, even with trackage rights agreements with other railroads. Nothing can substitute for a real railroad company ready to compete and invest in the rural infrastructure.

Conrail has offered to purchase the lines referred to as SP East, i.e. the lines from Chicago through to Houston, the line from New Orleans to El Paso as well as lines to Dallas/Fort Worth, Eagle Pass, Brownsville and Memphis. An offer from an owning railroad has been proposed by Conrail represents the best opportunity to preserve competition, enhance economic development potential, and create jobs in Pennsylvania.

Our organization has always fought for jobs for Pennsylvania. If the Conrail offer for the SP East lines is made a part of divestiture, Conrail has committed itself to large capital investments in agriculture shipping. This could mean more jobs at Philadelphia-based Conrail. Compare this opportunity with Union Pacific's commitment to our state. With corporate headquarters in Bethlehem, UP will move its few dozen employees to Omaha, Nebraska this fall, effectively abandoning Pennsylvania — regardless of the outcome of the merger.

Pennsylvania farmers and their friends in labor would be better served with an additional major railroad like Conrail in agriculture shipping. That's why we oppose the proposed UP/SP merger unless it is conditioned on a property-owning divestiture plan such as the one put forth by Conrail. Rather than to derail the merger, this option is a constructive way to move Pennsylvania's economy forward.

Editor,

As usual, when something new comes along, such as the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact, some people will always raise the red flag, and oppose the new concept.

The Dairy Compact is not new. It has been discussed for nearly eight years. The Compact has been passed by all six New England states and signed into law by the six governors. All these actions received much publicity.

The U.S. Congress also approved the Dairy Compact with some stipulations. One of these stipulations was that U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman had to determine if there was compelling evidence to support the need of the Compact. This determination will soon be made.

Area representatives of Pro Ag, Pa. Farm Bureau, Pa. Grange, Pa. Farmers Union and N.F.O. conducted two meetings to further explain the Compact.

Forty-five people attended the meeting at the Mountain View School and 25 attended the meeting in Columbia Crossroads. Considering the favorable weather conditions that finally surfaced, then 70 people attending the meetings was not all that bad. No one opposed the Compact at either meeting. Actually, there appeared to be strong support for the Compact.

If Secretary Glickman rules in favor of the Compact, then all of us should accelerate our efforts in Pennsylvania and New York State.

However, it is difficult to understand why some people oppose the Compact, when at the same time some of their members are enjoyiong the benefits of premiums established by the Pa. Milk Marketing Board. This is one of the reasons why we need a uniform method of establishing realistic prices to area dairy farmers.

The Northeast Dairy Compact could be one instrument to help stabilize milk prices to area dairy farmers.

Pa. Vet School Seeks Heifer And Cow Donations

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Construction of the Marshak Dairy will be completed in August 1996. It has facilities for 200 lactating animals. The present New Bolton Center Herd consists of 50 lactating Holsteins and accompanying replacement stock. A larger herd is needed to perform studies that will help improve dairy productivity in a changing world of economics and environmental concern.

We are asking for help in populating the Marshak Dairy. Assistance can be provided in the form of donation animals or funds to purchase animals.

The present herd of 50 lactating cows has an average production of 22,000 lb. milk, 750 lb. fat and 670 lb. protein. These cows will be moved to the Marshak Dairy and become its production core. New animals need to have the genetic potential to advance the level of production.

We would like to expand the cow production core with pregnant Holstein heifers coming into their first lactation and Holstein cows coming into their second lactation. For optional operations and cost containment, we prefer two groups of animals: one group of 50 to 75 animals due to calve in September and October 1996; one group of 50 to 75 animals due to calve in February and March 1997. We can start taking cattle as early as August 1996.

If you can assist us by donating a pregnant Holstein heifer or cow that is due to calve during September-October 1996 or February-March 1997, please complete the form with this article.

His appointment became effective June 1, 1996.

Federated Genetics, Atlantic Breeders, Louisiana Animal Breeders Cooperative and Eastern AI Cooperative merged April 1, to form Genex. Simultaneously, Genex members voted to have the cooperative become a subsidiary of Cooperative Resources International (CRI).

Prior to his appointment, Kelly was communications specialist for Federated Genetics, Lancaster, and from 1991-95, he served as region sales manager for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, also of Lancaster. He had also been associated with another AI organization for five years.

Kelly's responsibilities at Genex include directing the public relations and communications programs for the cooperative, coordinating advertising and membership activities and directing the cooperative's writing, electronic publishing and printing staffs.

He will work under the direction of James Leuenberger, vice president, information and public relations, CRI.

"Joining the Genex/CRI team is very exciting," Kelly said. "The information and public relations staff is looking forward to providing producer-members and customers with programs and informational materials to support their herds' genetic improvement.

"This is also an exciting personal opportunity," Kelly said. "Working with dairy producers in the Mid-Atlantic, Northeast and Southern states has been highly-satisfying, and I'm very pleased Genex has brought me aboard."

Kelly, who grew up on a registered Holstein farm near Tyrone, holds a bachelor's degree in Dairy Science from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. He serves as secretary on the Virginia Tech Dairy Science Alumni Association board of directors and is an adult supervisor for the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association.

Somerset County Day At The Farm Draws 2,500

There were animal grooming demonstrations and displays by 4-H clubs, sheep shearing demonstrations, hay rides, hay bale toss, petting zoo, milk chugging contest, barn tours, square dancing, and numerous door prize giveaways.

Both kids and adults enjoyed meeting the 1995 and 1996 dairy princesses, county lamb and wool queen, and state maple queen. The gals teamed up later as milk chuggers.

Old friends and new ones enjoyed the hospitality of the Shaulis family who were delighted by the unexpected appearance of friends Richard Mains and his wife Shelva.

It was an acquaintance begun when Harold and Richard were directors on the state board of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

Having learned through Lancaster Farming that the Shaulis's were hosting Day at the Farm, the Mains decided to attend and drove a few hours west from their Cumberland County home.

Carol Shaulis was not without qualms after agreeing with her husband to open their farm to the thousands.

"From day one, when you realize what you've done, you pray for a beautiful day and no rain," she said. "Rain makes mud and mud ruins the grass and fields."

As it was, not a drop of rain fell on the event and even Harold's mother who is in her 90s was reported to have had a marvelous day enjoying the many people.

"Jay and Eyvonne coordinated everything," Carol said. "They know everyone in the county and knew who to call for everything that needed to be done."

Peering through the rails of the pen to better see the two sheep is little Jennifer Martin.

Nicole Hemminger and her brother Cody are fascinated by the big Holstein cows in the barn of Harold Shaulis, who hosted Somerset County Day at the Farm.

A team of four youngsters try to get the best time in the milk chugging contest.

"Make it Milk" was a good haywagon advertisement at Somerset County Day at the Farm, held June 23.

Dan Geissinger, chaplain.

Following is a brief description of the officers and their activities:

President

Pennsylvania FFA President Andrew L. Young is a member of the Solanco FFA chapter. In a recent feature in Lancaster Farming, Young, from the Red Knob Farm in Wakefield, is the son of Matthew and Linda Young, Peach Bottom. He served as chapter and county vice president.

Before receiving the Keystone Degree honor this year, Young indicated that FFA "offers numerous opportunities for education, competition, and travel that I could not receive elsewhere. The leadership training and real-life experiences I've had to practice, using these skills, has been invaluable."

Young indicated to Lancaster Farming before receiving the Keystone Degree earlier this year that "I am looking toward the possibility of serving as a state FFA officer for one year."

In a story about Young in Lancaster Farming, he said he plans to attend the University of Delaware to study ag economics. He noted he would also like to attend a Bible college or seminary.

Young works on the family owned Red Knob farm, a 240-acre dairy farm with 400 milking cows and an additional 370 acres of rented land. The farm is run by three families — Henry Young and his two sons Matthew and David.

State Vice President

Michael L. Clark is the new state vice president. Clark, son of Gary and Delores Clark, Loysville, is a four-year West Perry FFA member.

Clark indicated before receiving this year's Keystone Degree that he enjoys "the leadership abilities, personal development, public speaking, and other skills I have obtained through FFA."

While in FFA, as chapter reporter, vice president, president, and area president, he completed projects in horse production and farm work.

Clark's supervised occupational experience is employment on the same dairy farm where his brother, Jake, works. He hopes to pursue an education at Penn State in dairy and animal science.

Mike said, "My family feels that a state office is a wonderful opportunity. My family is very supportive, regardless of what road I take."

Eastern Region Vice President

Joy Young, Solanco FFA and Lancaster County FFA president, was selected as eastern region vice president. Young, daughter of David and Carol Young, Peach Bottom, has also served as Solanco FFA reporter and vice president.

Young has been involved on various projects, including on-farm work experience at Red Knob Farm (along with cousin Andrew Young, the state president), dairy heifer, beef finishing, market lambs, and others.

While serving FFA, before receiving this year's Keystone Degree, she indicated about FFA, "I enjoy the many opportunities and experiences, meeting new people, and learning about different agricultural industries."

Like Andrew, Joy is preparing a career in agriculture. She plans to attend Delaware Valley College to study large animal science. She said of her work with Andrew, "We work well together. We got an 18-year start on working together."

An active member of the 4-H Exchange club, she said, "Growing up on a farm, I didn't have a chance to travel much. But through the Exchange Club I traveled to Kansas and Arizona and hosted a 4-H'er from Oklahoma."

South Central Vice President

Kristina Watson, south central vice president, blossomed from a shy ninth grader into the exhuberant and dynamic vice president of the south central region, according to the Pennsylvania FFA Association.

A native of Long Island, N.Y., the West Perry FFA member served as chaplain, secretary, and vice president. Watson, daughter of William and Carol Watson, Shermans Dale, is a member of the West Perry FFA.

Watson's goals are ambitious: she indicated she wanted to be "the U.S. secretary of agriculture to help raise awareness of agriculture and change views worldwide."

She noted, "I enjoy everything about FFA: the contests, friends, and especially the challenge to make a difference in other lives as well as my own."

She served as chapter chaplain, secretary, and vice president and picked up various awards in public speaking and record book contests, and won grand champion in sheep showmanship.

North Central Vice President

North Central Vice President Bobbi Jo Robbins is the daughter of Randall and JoAnn Robbins, Bloomsburg.

Robbins lives on a large dairy and crop farm. She intends to enter the field of animal genetics, working in the area of control genes as a stepping stone to eliminating genetic diseases. She plans to enroll at Delaware Valley College.

Along the way, she is wasting no time. She has served as secretary, vice president, and president of Central Columbia FFA and worked in various capacities at recruiting new FFA members. She started the milking booth at the Bloomsburg Fair and participates in various dairy shows.

Before receiving the Keystone Degree this year, she indicated that "teaching the younger generations about agriculture . . . gives you the opportunity to promote agriculture to the future generations."

Secretary

Elizabeth Hollenbach, state FFA secretary, believes in making FFA a family affair.

Her parents, Dean and Stephanie Hollenbach, are FFA alumni. As Hollenbach said, "They're behind me 110 percent."

Being a state officer has been Hollenbach's gaol since ninth grade at West Snyder High School. Her experiences in growing up on a poultry and commercial vegetable farm have motivated her to major in poultry science at Penn State, where she will begin following her year as a state officer.

Treasurer

State FFA Treasurer Heather Lehman, 18, Mechanicsburg, served as president of the Cumberland Valley FFA chapter and area FFA president.

Daryl R. Schafer, Muncy, right has become the new state FFA executive secretary, filling the position vacated by former secretary Sheila Reiner of Lewistown.

The daughter of Carl and Mabel Lehman, Mechanicsburg, Heather has been involved in dairy cow, swine, sheep, and goat finishing projects.

One of seven children, Lehman will follow in the footsteps of her older brother, Tim, who served as a state officer (southern region vice president) when Heather was a freshman. In addition to serving as the state FFA treasurer, she will be serving as the Cumberland County dairy princess.

A 1995 Keystone Degree recipient, her goals include working as either a veterinary asssistant or in a food science lab.

Sentinel

For John Ewing, state sentinel, it's better late than never.

Ewing didn't join the West Snyder FFA until he was a junior. The two years he did experience as a member were filled with forestry and parliamentary procedure.

Unable to earn his Keystone Degree until he was out of school a year, he postponed running for state office until the 1996-1997 year. He succeeded.

Ewing is the son of Clay Ewing and Arlene Treaster, McClure, Snyder County. Following graduation from high school, he worked as a vocational instructional aide at West Snyder High School. In his words, his duties included assisting students who were having academic difficulties, serving as a chaperone for FFA members to attend various activities, and the "personal slave of ag teachers."

Ewing plans to attend Penn State and major in ag education.

Reporter

Sometimes it takes lots of patience.

A 1995 graduate of Central Columbia High School and school FFA member, Aimee Jo Hauck postponed college one year prior to running for state office. She then postponed college an additional year to serve as state reporter. Her goals include a degree in music followed by a degree in special education.

Meeting lots of people was how Aimee Jo Hauck summed up her experiences in FFA.

Now state reporter, Hauck, daughter of Donald and Brenda Hauck, Orangeville, has met many interesting people through career development events, meetings, conferences, and participation in the national FFA band.

Hauck indicated her ultimate goal would be to incorporate her diverse education into her own center for music therapy directed toward special needs children.

Chaplain

Pennsylvania FFA Chaplain Dan Geissinger, like state reporter Hauck, also has had to summon lots of patience.

It was a second try for Geissinger, Juniata FFA member, but he made it. After seeing a fellow chapter member Ben Ehrhart become a state officer his sophomore year, Geissinger decided he could do that, too.

And he did. The son of Ray and Linda Geissinger, Mifflintown, has had many FFA experiences, including working for a neighboring dairy before his family started their own dairy two years ago.

He has shown dairy cattle for 12 years. Geissinger has also been a 4-H member for 11 years and is president of the youth group at Delaware Mennonite Church in Thompsontown.

Foliar Fertilization Works!

Give Your Plants the Spark They Need!

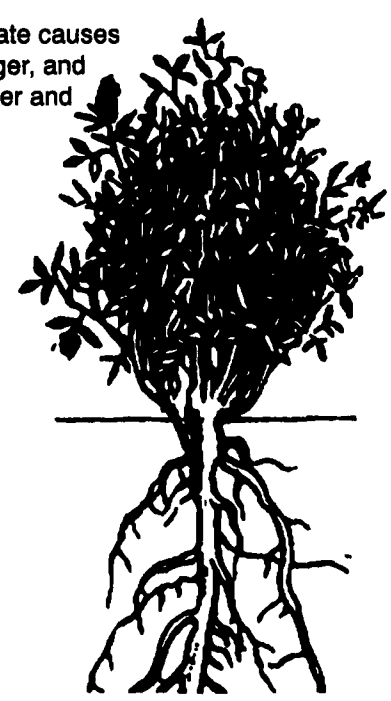
A foliar spray of Alpine liquid plant food concentrate causes a cycle of growth, which helps plants to grow larger, and mature earlier, but most important, provides bigger and better yields.

Here's how it works:

1st: [redacted]
Our plant food is applied later in the afternoon or evening when absorption is greatest.

2nd: [redacted]
The product is absorbed by all parts of the plant and begins moving through the system. As much as 95% of the fertilizer applied to the plant is absorbed, so there's optimum utilization.

3rd: [redacted]
Fertilizer moves throughout the plant, carrying nutrients up and out to the leaves and down to the roots.



4th: [redacted]
Nutrients reach to the most distant roots, helping to stimulate additional root growth. These new roots are able to uptake even more nutrients that are already present in the soil.

5th: [redacted]
The greatest concentration of fertilizer goes where it's needed most: to the young growing portions of the plant, such as new leaves and buds.

6th: [redacted]
(Labor Saving Tip)
Mix the plant foot with your insecticide or herbicide when spraying your alfalfa and soybeans.

Elk Industry Blooms In North America

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Farmers, ranchers, and off-farm investors are turning from their everyday enterprises in record numbers to join the elk industry.

Elk sales repeatedly broke records in the U.S. and Canada in 1995 and the first quarter of 1996, as new breeders entered the business and existing operations expanded and upgraded.

"The farmed elk industry has become a leading 'alternative' livestock enterprise," said Marty Stallings, president of the North American Elk Breeders Association (NAEBA) and an elk breeder from Westcliffe, Colo. "Elk breeding is quickly moving into its own as more and more farmers and ranchers add elk to their business operations."

One sign of that movement was exhibited at the 1996 Denver National Livestock Exposition this past January. An overflow crowd at the elk auction and record sales prices prompted Expo officials to offer the main arena for next year's sale.

The growth in interest and financial commitments being made also was evident at the recent annual convention of NAEBA. Delmont Sunderland and Seth Richards were among the 600 members attending this year's annual meeting of the 5-year-old organization. Sunderland and his wife Bobbi have been raising elk for four years on their farm near Huntingdon, Pa. Richards and Nicole Auman are in their third year raising elk near Petersburg, Pa. The two couples were recognized at the convention for their activities in supporting and promoting the industry.

"Promotion of this industry is probably the easiest part of my job as an elk breeder," said Richards. "People are naturally attracted to these majestic animals. One reason we as an industry have been growing so rapidly is that sharing our enjoyment of elk provides social as well as economic returns."

Richards has 10 cows calving this spring and doesn't plan to sell any animals this year. The Sunderlands have 54 cows expected to calve this spring on their ranch. They market mostly young animals for breeding stock and also sell the velvet stage antlers from their bulls. This renewable resource is highly regarded as a health supplement in many Asian countries and is gaining popularity in this country as well.

An interest in good health, not to mention good taste, is also creating a strong market for elk meat, suggests Stallings. "It fits the health conscious consumer's demand for a low cholesterol, lean protein source that tastes good," he said.

Like many of their fellow breeders, the Sunderlands will be offering a number of animals for sale this year. With the industry setting new price highs, the temptation to sell more animals is high, but Sunderland is reinvesting in the future of the elk industry, one he expects to stay strong for many years to come, thanks to the multiple markets for elk products.

"In the four years I have been involved in this industry, I have been impressed by its dramatic growth," said Sunderland. "It is still a young industry, with years to go before we reach the point where we stop producing animals for herd expansion and begin to seriously market elk products. The exciting thing is that demand for those products from meat to hides to velvet is growing stronger every year."

The Sunderlands and Richards are among more than 900 NAEBA members in the U.S. and Canada. They recognize that elk production with its high return and limited overhead provides excellent opporutunities for farmers and ranchers of all sizes and in all areas of North America.

The North American Elk Breeders Association is the principal industry representative for all registered elk in North America. For information about elk livestock breeding, contact Delmont Sunderland, (814) 643-3557 or write/call NAEBA, 7301 NW Tiffany Springs Road, Suite 1104, Kansas City, MO 64153, (816) 746 5700.

Right B Vitamin Intake May Net Better Return

PRINCETON, N.J. — Pork producers who want to maximize the return on their investment in lean growth should ask themselves whether their animals are consuming enough vitamins to meet their genetic potential.

That's the message from a recent study by Iowa State University animal scientists who measured rate of gain and feed efficiency when pigs' diets contained five B vitamins at various levels.

In the study, the researchers found that optimum performance didn't occur until the pigs received the vitamins at three to five times the level currently recommended by the National Research Council (NRC). The payoff from better performance with optimum vitamin intake: about $40 for a $1 investment, said Dr. Tim Stahly, who headed the research team.

The five vitamins included in the study were riboflavin, niacin, pantothenic acid, B12, and folic acid. All are "critically involved in supporting protein synthesis or accretion in the body," Stahly said.

Diets were formulated and supplemented to contain 70, 170, 270, 370 or 470 percent of NRC requirements for these vitamins, and the pigs were fed from about 18 pounds body weight at the start of the study to 75 pounds at the end.

Further broadening the study's significance, the researchers could analyze the animals' response by genotype. "One group of pigs had a high capacity to grow muscle — these were pigs that would cut approximately 57 percent to 59 percent muscle when they were marketed at 240 pounds," Stahly said. "The other pigs were more moderate in their lean growth rate and muscle capacity.

In the first part of the study, performance in the pigs with high lean growth potential didn't peak until their vitamin intake exceeded five times the current NRC requirements, the researchers estimate. During that same period, the pigs with the lower genetic capacity to grow muscle needed about four or five times the NRC requirement to reach their genetic potential.

As both groups of pigs approached 40 to 60 pounds body weight, their vitamin requirements for optimum performance decreased to about three times the NRC requirements. That's in keeping with previous research showing that vitamin requirements are greater in younger pigs, Stahly said.

When results were averaged for the length of the trial, rate of gain was greatest at 470 percent of NRC requirements for the high lean growth pigs and at 370 percent for the moderate lean growth group. Feed efficiency in the high lean growth pigs was best at 470 percent NRC requirements — but even then it didn't plateau, Stahly said. In the moderate lean growth pigs, feed efficiency plateaued at 270 percent of NRC requirements.

Stahley said he was surprised more by the magnitude of the response to increased vitamin supplementation than by the response itself. "The B vitamin needs were to a large part estimated 20 to 30 years ago. Since then, we've had significant changes in the animal's capacity to grow protein or muscle," he said. "These results suggest that as we increase that capacity, the needs for certain vitamins are substantially greater than what we previously estimated."

The study should encourage a reconsideration of optimum B vitamin nutrition by the swine industry for two other reasons as well, Stahly said. "First, it's been suggested that stressed pigs and other pigs with slower growth will benefit most from increased vitamin supplementation. Yet the pigs used in the study were very clean, rapidly growing pigs, and they still responded positively in both gain and feed efficiency," he said. Because the study didn't include challenged pigs, Stahly can't say how their responses would compare with healthy pigs' responses.

The study also invites a reassessment of the interaction between lean growth genetics and B vitamin requirements, Stahly believes. The differences in the optimum supplementation levels for the two genotypes were especially noteworthy because it has often been assumed that dietary needs for some vitamins increase as dietary energy or feed consumption increases.

"For example, because the high lean-growth pigs actually consumed less total dietary energy, some people might expect their riboflavin requirement to be less than the moderate lean-growth group's. But it took considerably greater vitamin supplementation for the higher lean growth pigs to reach their genetic potential."

The study's design made it impossible to determine how much each of the five vitamins affected performance. Stahly believes the results were probably due to a series of them, with one being more limiting than the others, but won't hazard a guess about any one of them. That will be a topic for further research, he said.

FFA Introduces

New Executive Secretary

Daryl R. Schafer, the new executive secretary from Muncy, served as an FFA officer at Owen J. Roberts. He also served as state vice president in 1979-1980.

With a degree in ag education at Penn State, Schafer worked as a student teacher at Twin Valley and served for a year as agriculture instructor at Garden Spot High School.

For several years, Schafer worked for the local feed industry as a sales representative.

While at Penn State, he plans to pursue a master's degree in ag education.

During a telephone interview, Schafer said that he is suprised at how ag education has changed since he was in high school. At that time, FFA was all "crops, cows, and plows" and now has a diversity of educational opportunites hard to imagine back then.

Schafer predicts a "bang-up year" for state FFA, of which the officers have received extensive leadership training, even beyond their high school responsibilities, as part of the recent achievement days.

Rutter's Dairy Celebrates 75 Years

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — For 75 years, they've been supplying York are residents with milk and dairy products.

In celebration of that achievement, Rutter's Dairy threw open its doors June 19-20 to welcome thousands of visitors to its modern dairy herd and production facilities.

Even before the plant tour doors were officially opened, a line of visitors stretched across the wide parking lot, waiting to watch the dairy's automated processing lines, pet baby calves, observe the production of plastic jugs and, of course, sample Rutter's products.

What began as couple of dairy farmer brothers selling milk to neighbors has grown into a five-division, multimillion dollar corporation regionally known through its retail products and convenience stores.

The Rutter Farm, on the northeast corner of the greater York metropolitan area, was a grant from the great-grandson of William Penn to Jacob Rutter and Nathaniel Lightner. An original deed of that grant, on sheepskin, is a prized artifact of the family.

In recent official ceremonies which kicked off the anniversary celebration, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius presented the Rutter operation with the state's Century Farm Award. Last year, Farming Magazine honored Rutter's as the nation's oldest, continuously family-run farm operation.

Brothers George and M. Ebert "Bud" Rutter decided in 1921 to diversify their farming with customer retail delivery of the milk from their herd of Guernsey dairy cows. With natural cooling provided by a spring on the farm, the Rutter brothers bottled up 15 quarts of their milk production. Their first day's retail sales, at 8 cents per quart, totaled 13 of those 15 quarts.

In the late 1930s, the growing dairy gained notoriety that further cemented an already loyal and growing clientele. Rutter Bros. Dairy was cited by the Pennsylvania milk regulatory agency for having milk that was too rich — the butterfat in Rutter's milk exceeded the state's maximum 8-percent standard. The resulting publicity proved to be a positive boost for the dairy's customer image.

Rutter's incorporated in 1949, and in 1968 opened the first of today's more than 50 convenience stores.

Mike Rutter, an eighth-generation descendant of Jacob Rutter, is president of the Rutter's dairy division. His brother, Leo, and his family continue to manage the family's herd of registered Guernseys and Holsteins, which, along with 30-plus local dairy farms and cooperative, purchased milk supplies the dairy's daily volume of production needs. Leo is also president of the corporations's M & G Realty division. Jay Crist heads up the Rutter's Restaurant division as its president.

Stewart Hartman Jr., president of the Rutter's Farm Stores division, recently announced the imminent opening of two "super" convenience stores in the York area, each featuring a fast food partnership. The new super store at Exit 4, Leaders Heights, of Rt. 83 will feature a partnership with McDonald's, while Pizza Hut Express is pairing with Rutters at the new Haines and Prospect Roads location.

Symbolic of the origins of Rutter's Dairy is this wooden statue of a cow's head carved from a tree trunk near the entrance to the dairy farm.

Crowds lined up the length of the parking lot of Rutter's Dairy even before the 75th anniversary activities were officially under way. More than 5,500 visitors toured the dairy's milk production and processing facilities, as well as the adjacent jug blow mold plant which manufactures Rutter's plastic milk containers.

Farm Bureau Honors Solomon

GLENMONT, N.Y. — At a news conference at the Borden Farm in Schaghticoke, Washington County Farm Bureau presented Congressman Gerald Solomon with a plaque on behalf of the Farm Bureau members in that congressional district for his contributions to New York agriculture — in particular his efforts to save the New York dairy industry during the Farm Bill debate. He also received an afghan depicting scenes of Washington County agriculture from Washington County Farm Bureau.

Delaney Clause Reform Would Help

ALBANY, N.Y. — The New York Farm Bureau is urging Congress to help farmers protect the safety of the nation's food supply by bringing public policy enacted nearly 40 years ago in line with today's science and technology.

According to John Lincoln, president of the 25,700-member New York Farm Bureau and a dairy farmer from Ontario County, "Enacted in 1958, the Delaney Clause directs the Environmental Protection Agency to pull the plug on the use of a pesticide if any residue of that pesticide is found — no matter how minuscule. Farmers are losing the use of some pesticides vital to the production and safety of many foods because today's technology is allowing us to find quantities as small as parts per trillion and parts per quadrillion, as opposed to finding only parts per thousand when this law was enacted."

He noted, "Until Congress reforms this law, we are losing important pesticides because they are detectable in food with modern science, not because they pose real health risks.

"Farm Bureau is backing legislation, H.R. 1627 in the House and S.1166 in the Senate, that would replace the zero-tolerance Delaney standard with a negligible risk standard for food pesticide residues," said Lincoln. "This negligible risk standare was used by the Food and Drug Administration before a 1989 lawsuit forced strict, literal enforcement of the zero-tolerance standard Delaney provision. The legislation, also, would streamline the registration process for pesticides which are desperately needed by fruit and vegetable growers, establish national uniformity for food pesticide residues, and strengthen pesticides benefits consideration."

The Farm Bureau leader said, "The reform measure is sponsored by Congressman Edolphus Towns from New York City and cosponsored by 240 members of Congress, including the following New Yorkers: Sherwood Boehlert, Eliot Engel, Amo Houghton, Thomas Manton, John McHugh, Bill Paxon, Gerald Solomon, and James Walsh.

The Senate bill has 28 co-sponsors, though there are no New York cosponsors to date.

Tales Tell Of Farm Accidents, All Preventable

Despite Injuries, 'I'm Just Another Person . . . Not Someone Different'

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROBESONIA (Berks Co.) — The list reads like a war memorial: Clifford and Dean Roberts, Greg Glodowski, Benji Ortman, George Moyer, and Clyde Myers. There are countless others.

All of them have been through a war of sorts: battling back from injuries they sustained on a farm.

All of them have stories to tell: how they were unaware of the dangers of working around farm equipment. They can tell you how quickly the accident happened. They can tell you how much they suffered.

But what they can't force you to learn, as parents of children working on farms, is that what happened to them could have been prevented.

For Clyde Myers, Berks County extension agent who grew up in Kralltown in northern York County, he was eight years old. He was working a meat grinder, helping his father prepare pork. His left hand slipped into a grinder, tearing away all of his fingers, leaving his thumb exposed.

"At eight years old, I worked that grinder every time we butchered, not thinking too much about it. All of a sudden it happened," he said.

'At eight years old, I worked that grinder every time we butchered, not thinking too much about it. All of a sudden it happened.'

Myers admits he was too young and doesn't remember a lot of the accident. He recalls only stories told to him by his parents and relatives on the dairy and poultry farm he grew up on.

To help him deal with the loss, Clyde's parents, John and Hazel, decided on surgery to help recover use of the hand. A couple of years after the accident, Myers went into surgery to remove a portion of a rib and have it attached in place of the missing fingers, in a sense providing an "opposable limb" that could allow him to grip and pick up items.

Myers said he was thankful for the surgery. He said that it happened when he was young, which gave him an advantage because he was able to adapt to it quickly and easily.

"The body adapts," said Myers. "It learns to adjust." He can play golf, pick up many items, and perform other tasks. "I can do almost anything with it.

"Since I've been teaching, people have learned that I'm just another person. Once they know you, people can understand what you can do. I tell them to think of me as just another person — not someone different."

Myers is also thankful because his parents didn't pamper him. "They made me do things just like any other farm boy who had two hands," he said.

Myers said he is grateful to vocational rehabilitation programs that helped him define his role in life and follow that path.

The important lesson is to teach safety to children at an early age and provide them with ways to avoid accidents as children, according to Myers and many others who experienced farm accidents.

George Moyer, a farmer in Bethel Township, Berks County, was the victim of a farm accident 21 years ago. One day in October he was operating a forage harvester. Somehow, he said, his overalls got caught up with a sheer bolt that drew his overalls into the auger, mangling up his left leg.

The leg turned gangrenous and had to be amputated. Since then, with the help of the county rehabilitation center, he has worn a prosthetic. He learned how to walk again.

But since the accident, Moyer continued to operate his nearly 500-acre dairy farm. As a result of his injury, he has been asked to speak to a large number of groups at dairy meetings about his experience in dealing with the accident and offering help. Next issue will detail some of the work that Moyer has done to help others dealing with the physical and emotional trauma of a farm accident.

Dean Roberts, Robesonia farmer, also realized firsthand that slipups in safety could be deadly at an early age. His father, Clifford Roberts, was caught and killed in a combine one October day more than 20 years ago. Just five years ago, Dean himself climbed onto a grain bin to fix a failing motor, only a mile from where his father had died.

'Since I've been teaching, people have learned that I'm just another person. Once they know you, people can understand what you can do. I tell them to think of me as just another person — not someone different.'

Roberts had made repairs to bin wiring earlier that summer and apparently had cut a neutral wire. When he touched the electrified bin and a grounded auger, the bin delivered a 100-volt shock that could have been fatal. The shock also threw Roberts to a catwalk and the fall broke his neck.

While not all farm accidents are fatal, most people underestimate the danger of working around equipment.

Iowa State University extension safety specialist Chuck Schwab said polls conducted in his state show farmers accurately recognize machinery as the greatest danger in the farming business. Slips and falls and other injuries related to permanent farm features such as bins, manure pits, silos, and other installations are the second most dangerous aspect of farming.

A 1995 American Star Farmer finalist, Darrell S. Glodowski, always knew he wanted to own and operate a dairy farm. It just happened a bit sooner than he planned.

After years of raising and showing cattle and working on the family farm, Glodowski was preparing to finish high school and enter college to study dairy science. His plans changed, though, when his father, Greg, was paralyzed in a farming accident. He learned to adjust to help on the farm while continuing his FFA career.

Some of the dangerous equipment is always not so obvious. Three- and four-wheel utility vehicles are common on a lot of farms. Young farmers take them for granted — forgetting to wear protective helmets and not learning the dangers of travel around the farm.

Clyde Myers

Months of therapy later, Ortman's condition improved, and he had nearly fully recovered by the time he entered high school the next fall. He more than replaced the swine he owned before the accident and began raising crops and cattle. Today, after recovering from the acident, Ortman farms 266 acres — he owns 80 acres and cash rents the rest. He remodeled a large horse barn on his farm to house cattle. He has 29 head on-site and 15 smaller head on pasture. He also raises feeder pigs on a finishing floor at his grandfather's farm.

For victims of farm accidents, help is close by. Next issue will look at where to go for help.

Three- and four-wheel utility vehicles are common on a lot of farms. Young farmers take them for granted — forgetting to wear protective helmets and not learning the dangers of travel around the farm.

Trauma struck another 1995 Star Farmer finalist, Benji Ortman of Westport, Ind. The most painful roadblock to the 22-year-old's dream to own and operate a successful farm came in 1987, when a three-wheeler accident left him brain damaged and forced him to sell his swine herd.

Editor's Note: In part 2 of the series on accident prevention and assistive technology, there are places that farm accident victims can turn to for help. One of them is AgrAbility.

When he touched the electrified bin and a grounded auger, the bin delivered a 100-volt shock that could have been fatal. The shock also threw Roberts to a catwalk and the fall broke his neck.

Committee Releases Ag Injury Action Plan

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A national committee has released an action plan to reduce the problem of children suffering injuries associated with production agriculture in the United States.

An estimated 100,000 children suffer agriculture-related injuries each year. In Pennsylvania alone, agriculture-related incidents claimed the lives of 31 children under the age of 14 between 1990 and 1994.

"Children are not usually found in other hazardous occupations, but many rural kids participate in farm work," said Dr. Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "This creates problems, especially if children are inexperienced, immature or not closely supervised."

Murphy, who leads agricultural safety and health programs for penn State Cooperative Extension, is one of 42 members of the National Committee for Childhood Agricultural Injury Prevention, a joint public/private sector effort to develop a national agenda for preventing childhood agricultural injury.

Over 16 months, committee members generated recommendations for national leaders, research, education, policy and evaluation. Farm and ranch owners, organizations, migrant and seasonal farm workers, farm women and rural youth provided feedback on the strengths and limitations of the proposed recommendations.

The final committee report, "Children and Agriculture: Opportunities for Safety and Health," is now available. This national action plan contains 13 objectives and 43 recommended actions. Among its recommendations:

- Designating the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health as a lead agency responsible for coordinating the national action plan
- Developing age-appropriate guidelines for children's participating in farm work
- Testing voluntary incentives to improve safety standards on farms
- Proposing public policy to restrict youths from using tractors lacking standard safety equipment.

The National Committee for Childhood Agricultural Injury Prevention was initiated with financial support from the Health Resources and Services Adminstration, Maternal and Child Heath Bureau, National Farm Medicine Center, National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health and respective agencies of committee membes.

To request a single copy of the National Committee's report, contact Dennis Murphy at (814) 865-7685 or the National Farm Medicine Center at (715) 387-9298.

A free publication from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences provides more information about agricultural safety issues in Pennsylvania. Homestead Notes

Castoffs.

What a sad word. It makes one think of old clothes or old shoes no longer wanted. Or, far worse, folks deserted and left to fend for themselves, perhaps to die.

I actually started to write that we rarely think of animals as castoffs — and then was mentally smacked with the thought that, in reality, animals are far too often castoffs.

Like the adorable kittens that aren't as cute once they begin to make messes all over the house and shred the living room curtains. The unwanted puppies dumped out at the barn, with a tiny supply of dog food, as was once done here at the farm. Or the iguanas, the pirahanas, the baby crocodiles dumped into ponds, streams, sewers because an owner had a change of heart.

But none of these scenarios had anything to do with our castoffs.

The first turned up several weeks ago, cowering in one of the empty pens in the calf nursery. A rooster. One of our smaller, middle-aged roosters, with golden colored feathers and a stubby tail. In comparison to our arrogant, striking handsome roosters with their long, curling tail feathers, this is a Mr. Milquetoast sort of bird.

Chickens, by habit, will sometimes turn on their own kind to pester and ultimately kill a weaker or sick flockmate. (A frightening human trait, as evidenced daily in the news.) And apparently there was something amiss with this fellow, because two bigger bully roosters were hanging around the calf nursery, waiting for him every time he ventured one step outside the door.

They got the broom treatment every chance I spied their unacceptable behavior, but it persisted. So I made sure that the empty pen had a stack of hay or straw piled in on a regular basis, giving the outcast a place to hide. Eventually his fear seemed to subside. And, in recent days, he began returning to his regular haunts in the old bank barn.

Meanwhile, in the alleyway of the heifer pen, also under the old bank barn, our single black hen was raising her single hatchling, a tiny clone of herself. Even at several weeks old, this mostly bantam chick would have fit into my hand. And its coal-black feathering made it hard to see against the dark of the pen's bedding pack. How it avoided getting stomped by the heifers in there remains a mystery.

But, again, as chickens are prone to do, when the chick had reached a certain age, Mother Nature turned the hen's thoughts from childrearing to more amorous concerns. She began hanging out with those big, handsome, bully roosters.

Feeding the heifers one evening, I heard the chick even before I saw it, peeping away at the top of its miniature lungs. It was perched on the top of the old wooden gate, where hen and chick had spent every night since she could coax it to the upper crosspiece.

But the chick sat there alone, for all purposes, crying in its abandonment. I'd have picked up and cuddled the castoff if it would have done any good. That would have only terrified it more.

Years of dealing with what sometimes seems like hardhearted animal behavior has taught me to just walk away and let Mother Nature be responsible.

(Betcha' you've already figured out the ending to this chicken tale.)

One evening later, I walked back the heifer pen alley to begin feeding. What do you suppose was perched there on top of the old gate?

That's right. Both castoffs. Side by side. The older, picked-on rooster, perched right next to the young, abandoned chick. Both were quiet. Both seemed content. Both had found a friend. Both needed each other. "Friends" is a much nicer word than castoffs.

Don't you just love happy endings!

Babies Who Inhale Topsoil Dust Can Become 'Floppy Infants'

BALTIMORE, Md. — Doctors at the Johns Hopkins Children's Center recently treated a four-month-old baby who developed botulism after inhaling topsoil dust. Infant botulism is a rare, but treatable, neurological disorder caused by bacteria found in many soils and households. It results from ingestion of Clostridium botulinum spores that germinate and produce toxin in the infant's intestines and attack nerve fibers connected to muscle causing temporary paralysis.

Previously healthy infants ages two to four months are at greatest risk; however, cases have been recorded with infants up to 11 months. Symptoms of infant botulism, which generally evolve over several days, include constipation, lethargy, poor feeding (by bottle or breast), weak cry, diminished gag reflex, and general weakness often called "floppy infant." Left untreated, the child could die of respiratory failure.

There is no cure for infant botulism. Most patients must be placed on a ventilator for weeks or even months to allow the toxin to leave the child's immune system. During this time, patients are nourished by nasogastric tube feedings and as the paralysis lessens, physical therapy can help the child regain muscle usage.

According to Tom Crawford, M.D., director of the pediatric neuromuscular clinic at the Children's Center, most cases of infant botulism have unknown causes. "Honey and corn syrup may be a source and are not recommended for infants under a year," he says. "As for aerosolized topsoil, I don't want parents to be so concerned that they're afraid to take their babies outdoors. I suggest keeping them away from blowing topsoil and look for symptoms," he says.

Nationally, 75 to 100 cases of infant botulism are reported each year with clusters of incidents in California, Utah, and southeastern Pennsylvania.

Farm Women Societies

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Lancaster Society 14

On April 10 members of Farm Women Society 14 met at the home of Ruth Krieder. The devotional meditation was led by Edna Groff. No hosting committee was needed to provide the lunch since the program of the day centered on food: Hors D Oeurves by Dana Butt and Dona Good. So many creative and attractively prepared goodies were demonstrated. Members can experiment with their many ideas because they gave us each a booklet of the recipes.

A visit to an Historic 1852 farmhouse was the destination of the May 15th meeting. The Amos Herr Farm House, Nissley Road, Landisville, proved to be an educational and a nostalgic experience. Members were greeted by a volunteer hostess who escored them to an elegant dining room where a nice lunch was served. A tour of the house gave members a glimpse of the rooms furnished with period pieces, many original, from the Herr family.

June 12, members were glad to entertain the Society of Farm Women #23 at the Farm and Home Center. Esther Landis, Mary Louise Landis and Gladys Esbenshade, hostesses, had lovely roses on each table making the lunch, provided by members, very elegant. Mary Louis Landis's devotional honored fathers by likening a father's love to our Heavenly Father's love. Beth Stoltzfus and her friends entertained with a marvelous flute quartet. A to Z Hospitality was the subject of guest speaker, Bernice Wagner, owner of Bed and Breakfast Cricket Hollow. Emphasis was on keeping entertaining simple. Soup and sandwiches can provide a setting for fellowship. The A to Z idea contained so many practical suggestions. C-Company Cupboard with supplies, F-Flowers, H-Humor, O-Organized House, J-Junk Proof, and so forth. Mrs. Wagner was an example of her Z-Zest, humor and enthusiasm. She challenges members with this thought, "You are a personal representative of a living God on assignment."

Sales are held all year long. Some are household sales while others are machinery or livestock ones. There are big sales and small ones.

Some sales are sad ones that must be held due to a death. Others are down-sizing as when a family moves to smaller quarters.

I have helped to empty three houses full of the accumulation of a lifetime. Another house never did get completely emptied. Attics can store valuables from generations past or simply junk. A list of items might include a camel-back trunk, old metal toys, wicker baby carriages or magazines that were saved for years.

Auctioneers can make or break a sale. Some can hold the attention of a crowd better than others. They often have their own individual patter and some have a following of folks who attend all of their sales.

Moving from one home to another can be a traumatic experience. Whether you are young or old it takes some adjustment. Some young people move every year or two as they follow job assignments. My sister and my son both moved many, many times.

When my parents married and moved to the farm where I was born, they only had one wagon-load. I'm told it included a stove, a bedroom suite, table and chairs and a few chickens. A cow was chased three miles along country roads from my grandfather's farm.

But, over the years they bought and inherited so many things. After things are shared with children, there usually is still enough left for a public sale.

Prevent Skin Cancer

Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer. More than 700,000 people get it each year. The American Academy of Dermatology expects the biggest increase in malignant melanoma, the most vicious of skin cancers, will be in women under age 40 — the tanning generation. People who sunburn easily, have fair skin, or have red or blond hair get skin cancer most often. It is less common in people with darker skin tones. However, anyone can get skin cancer. Ninety percent of skin cancers occur on the parts of the body not usually covered with clothing — the face, hands, forearms, and ears. People trying to get tans also get skin cancer on the shoulders, back, chest, or legs.

Skin cancer is easy to detect, and, if caught early enough, almost completely curable. Make sure your physician examines your skin as part of your regular checkup. Take advantage of periodic skin cancer screenings, often held at hospitals.

To detect skin cancer, examine yourself reguarly. Tell the doctor if you see warning signs:

- Small, scaly spots, especially on parts of your body that receive a lot of sun exposure: head, neck, hands, rim of ear, lips.
- A small, fleshy bump, nodule or growth, which bleeds or oozes.
- Any spot that grows or spreads.
- A dark mole or dark spot irregularly colored, or bigger than a pencil eraser.

To protect you and your family, follow the sun protection guidelines below:

1. Avoid long sun exposure, even if wearing a sunscreen. Avoid sun exposure between 10 a.m.-3 p.m., when the sun is the strongest.
2. When outdoors, wear protective, tightly woven clothing and a hat with a wide brim.
3. When in the sun for more than a few minutes, apply a waterproof sunscreen with a Sun Protection Factor (SPF) of 15 or higher. Reapply frequently and liberally, at least every 2 hours, as long as you stay in the sun. Parents should apply sunscreen to their children as part of the morning dressing routine if the child will be outside during the day. The day care center staff can reapply sunscreen if the child is out in the sun longer than 2 hours.
4. Keep babies and toddlers in the shade as much as you can. Begin using sunscreens on children at six months of age, and then allow sun exposure with moderation. Keep children younger than six months out of the sun entirely.
5. Teach children sun protection early. Sun damage occurs with each unprotected sun exposure and accumulates over the course of a lifetime.
6. Choose a sunscreen that protects agaist both UVA and UVB radiation.
7. Don't forget to use sunscreen on overcast days. The sun's rays are just as damaging to skin as they are on sunny days.
8. Lips, nose, and other sensitive areas can be totally protected with opaque sun blocks such as zinc oxide but can look like clown makeup and are messy. Some sunscreens contain sun block ingredients that work just as well.
9. Beware of reflective surfaces. Sand, snow, concrete, water can reflect more than half of the sun's rays onto your skin.
10. If there is an allergic reaction to a sunscreen, change it. There are many on the market.
11. Never use a sunlamp or tanning parlor.

4-H Camp

4-H Camp traveled the journey to the Olympics this summer. Overnight Camp was held at Camp Eder near Fairfield, from June 13 through June 16, with 70 Adams County 4-H members and 19 4-H members from Franklin County attending.

4-H members attended workshops such as recreation, bug's, nature/wildlife, rocketry, and crafts. Friday night campers got the chance to participate in a wild and wacky olympics. Saturday brought cheer and laughter with the campfire program involving each camper participating in commercials, making banners, and ended with a candlelighting ceremony.

Sunday morning provided campers with the opportunity to choose an intensive workshop where they could make bird houses, learn about tracking, archery, or make single bed comforters for the homeless shelter. 4-H Camp ended with a rocketry program where each member launched the rocket they made during the rocketry workshop.

Overnight 4-H Camp was conducted by county extension staff and volunteers. 4-H teens served as group counselors and workshop counselors.

Special thanks go out to these counselors and two adults from Adams County: Denise Green, Gettysburg; Kelly Rockafellow, Littlestown; Jessica Dayhoff, Gettysburg; Matt Linebaugh, New Oxford; Jeana Rothhaupt, Gettysburg; Jesse Murren, New Oxford; Matt Helm, Biglerville; Zeb Eckert, Gettysburg; Brad Black, Aspers; Heidi Miller, New Oxford; Nichole Bodenberg, Gettysburg; Sadie Bucher, New Oxford; Scott Clowney, Gettysburg; Richard Rudolph, Hanover; Sharon Baker, Littlestown; and Abe Bucher, New Oxford.

Final June Dairy Month Celebration

This is it! The final installment of recipes from the Cow Mania Recipe Drawing.

Thanks to hundreds of readers who sent in their favorite recipe using at least one dairy product. Special thanks to those who included a little glimpse into their lives by writing a few sentences about themselves or their families. And, thanks to those who included a picture.

This is the week the winners are announced. Look for the write up on the winners in a separate article in this section. Remember, winners were selected by drawing and not by taste-testing since we do not have the facilities to test the recipes.

Sorry, we can't send every one a prize, but we feel confident that after reading all the entries during the past month, you feel as if you've made new friends and discovered some new tasty recipes through this column. That means the pleasure of participating in the contest will continue for many years as you pull out all those recipes you clipped. Also, using these recipes is a great way to say thanks to a dairy farmer who works hard year-round to provide nutritious dairy products for our pleasure.

Happy Cooking!

BROWNIES

¾ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 cups flour

Cream butter and sugars. Add remaining ingredients except egg whites. Spread evenly and thinly in a greased 13x9-inch pan. Beat egg whites and add 1 cup brown sugar; beat together for three minutes or until it holds a very stiff peak. Spread on batter and sprinkle with 1 cup chocolate chips. Bake at 350 degrees for about 45 minutes.

We live on a dairy farm and milk 34 cows. I have two brothers and two sisters. I enjoy looking at the Lancaster Farming, especially Section B.

STRAWBERRY SOUR CREAM GELATIN

2 packages frozen strawberries, thawed
2 3-ounce packages strawberry Jell-O
16-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup chopped nuts
1 pint sour cream
3 bananas, mashed

Dissolve gelatin in one cup boiling water. Drain pineapple. Ad to gelatin. Add strawberries with juice, nuts, bananas, and sour cream. Mix all together and pour into a 13x9-inch glass dish. Chill overnight or eight hours.

I live in Armstrong County on a 90-cow dairy farm. There are four generations living at the farm. My grandpa, Roy E. Bowser, owns the farm but my family, the Freelhlings do the farming. We farm 650 acres of land and work from morning to night.

My gelatin dessert is so simple to make and refreshing at meal time.

During the day, I work for a local surgeon; other times, I help on the farm. I love to cook and bake.

Happy Farming!

Farmer's wives who churned their own butter were the first to discover that this laborious and tiresome task had one redeeming reward: it produced a liquid by-product with a unique, tangy flavor. This buttermilk was both nourishing and refreshing, and came to be recognized as a special treat for deserving members of the family.

Modern buttermilk, while produced in a completely different manner, offers the same refreshing flavor and goodness as its old-fashioned counterpart. Try this recipe from Butler County Dairy Princess Kelly Ann Fowler.

CHEESY CHICKEN LASAGNA

2 cans (12-ounces each) evaporated milk
1 package Ranch buttermilk dressing mix
3 cups cubed cooked chicken
¼ teaspoon pepper
16-ounces lasagna noodles, uncooked
1½ cups each shredded cheddar and shredded mozaarella cheeses

Combine evaporated milk and ranch dressing mix in 3-quart heavy saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring frequently, until dry ingredients are dissolved. Stir in chicken and pepper. Simmer, uncovered, 25 minutes, stirring frequently. Meanwhile cook lasagna noodles according to package directions. Rinse, drain; set aside. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Layer half of lasagna noodles, poultry sauce, and cheeses in well-buttered 13x9-inch baking pan. Repeat layers. Bake 35 to 40 minutes, or until hot and bubbly. Let rest 10 minutes before serving.

Keep Food Safe When You're 'Powerless'

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Those thunderstorms so common during the summer months can do more than spoil a Fourth of July picnic. Heavy winds, excessive rain, and lightning can wreak havoc with utility lines, causing power failures that leave consumers without electricity for hours or even days.

Although you may be powerless to prevent such incidents, you can take actions to ensure the safety of your food supply when the lights go out, according to Dr. Mark A. Kantor, a nutrition and food safety specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

"First of all, purchase thermometers for the freezer and refrigerator so you can keep track of the temperature in case the power fails," he said. "The thermometers should be sturdy and designed specifically for this use. Many hardware stores and supermarkets carry them."

If your electricity is off for only a few hours, you don't have to take any special steps to protect your food supply, except to avoid opening the refrigerator and freezer doors. But a longer power failure will require some extra precautions.

If you're lucky enough to have a full freezer, Kantor said, you can expect food to remain frozen for two days. A half-full freezer will keep food frozen for about one day, although you may be able to extend this time by grouping packages together so they retain the cold more effectively.

You also can help keep food frozen longer by adding dry ice to your freezer when the power goes off. Twenty-five pounds of dry ice should hold a full 10-cubic-foot freezer below freezing for three to four days. If the freezer is half full, the same amount of dry ice will keep it stable for two to three days.

"If possible, find out where you can get dry ice before you need it," said Kantor. "Utility companies sometimes distribute dry ice free of charge during extended power outages. Listen to radio announcements (on a battery-powered radio) regarding distribution points. You can also check the yellow pages in the phone book for dry ice suppliers."

If you do purchase dry ice, make sure you handle it properly.

"Never touch it with your bare hands," Kantor said. "It can freeze your skin quite badly. Instead, transport it in a cardboard box that you can place directly in the freezer, or wear heavy gloves and use tongs when handling it. Keep the dry ice away from food items or place a piece of cardboard between the ice and food so items don't stick to it."

When dry ice vaporizes, it drives out the surrounding oxygen, so don't stick your head into the freezer and breathe vapors.

After a power failure, food will usually keep for four to six hours in a refrigerator, depending on how warm you kitchen is. If power will be out for longer than that, you may want to add block ice to the refrigerator. Don't use dry ice — it can freeze refrigerator items.

You can help insulate your refrigerator and/or freezer by covering it with a blanket, which will help prevent the loss of cold air. Just make sure you don't cover the air vents in case the power comes back on.

Once power has been restored, it's time to assess the damage. The following guidelines will help you decide which items to keep and which to throw out.

If ice crystals are visible on frozen food and its temperature has remained at 40 F or below, it is safe to refreeze, although the quality of some items may suffer. If the food has thawed completely, but still feels cold, cook it right away and then serve or refreeze.

In the case of meat, Kantor recommends using it in a recipe that allows for well-done rather than rare preparation. For example, cut a roast into thin strips and stir-fry, or use ground beef for spaghetti sauce rather than rare hamburgers.

Some foods can tolerate less time/temperature abuse than others. For example, fresh meats, poultry, lunch meats, hot dogs, eggs and milk should be discarded if they have been subjected to temperatures of 40 F or higher for more than two hours. Bacteria that cause food poisonings can multiply to unsafe levels under these conditions.

Fruits and vegetables, on the other hand, can be cooked and served as long as there is no yeasty smell, sliminess, or evidence of mold. Juices can be used, provided they look and smell acceptable, and well-wrapped hard cheeses, butter and margarine, can be kept unless mold and rancid odors develop.

Walnut Acres Celebrates Partnership With Nature

PENNS CREEK (Snyder Co.) — If you had asked Walnut Acres founder Paul Keene half a century ago what inspired his pioneering move into organic agriculture, his answer might well have been the same as today's: "Each generation should live not as if we've borrowed it from our children." This simple quote has quided three generations of Keene family farmers.

Celebrating a golden anniversary has not slowed the drive of Paul Keene or his family as they take America's most famous organic farm into the 21st Century. This year's Summer Harvest Festival at Walnut Acres on Saturday, August 10 promises to be the biggest yet.

Walnut Acres is again teaming up with the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) to offer more seminars, field demonstrations and activities than ever before — including a special appearance by Organic Gardening Editor Mike McGrath.

The Walnut Acres story began in India in the late 1930s, when young Paul Keene met Mahatma Gandhi while working there. "It was Gandhi's simple life, his powerful personality which inspired me to return to the states and learn organic food production," said Keene. In 1946 he and wife Betty began a farm of their own where they could live simply and apply techniques learned at an organic farming school, with a $5,000 loan and just $200 in cash. Walnut Acres seemed an ideal choice on the banks of the clear, pure waters of Penns Creek in picturesque Snyder County. There they began tending the soil in partnership with nature, constantly building up the fertility of the soil; always adding more than was taken away.

As the Keenes built up the soil they developed the strict program of crop rotation and natural pest control that has made Walnut Acres a model for sustainable farming. Through good and bad harvests the Keenes turned Walnut Acres into a successful working farm.

Word of Walnut Acres and their wholesome specialty foods spread as the Keenes shared their harvest. Their first food product was Apple Essence, which the Keenes prepared from organic apples cooked over an open fire. One of the highlights of the PASA Summer Harvest Festival at Walnut Acres will be a commemorative apple butter boil to recreate the magic of making that first batch of Apple Essence.

Visitors to the PASA Summer Harvest Festival at Walnut Acres can learn to apply the principles of organic farming in their own farm and gardens as field stations demonstrate the latest in sustainable farming techniques. Experts will give seminars and tours of the Walnut Acres cannery, mill, and bakery will be given throughout the day.

A wealth of activities for the entire family will include everything from country games, music and hayrides to sheepherding and draft horse plowing demonstrations, an environmental exhibit featuring birds of prey, and an actual archeological dig for Native American artifacts. And of course there will be plenty of wholesome organic food for all to enjoy.

The Summer Harvest Festival at Walnut Acres will be held on Saturday, August 10 from 10 am to 5 pm. Admission is $5 for adults 18 and over and $3 for ages 12-17. Children under 12 are admitted free. All admission proceeds benefit PASA.

On Friday, August 9 a bus tour will visit a nearby organic beef farm, an organic vegetable farm, and a composting operation. Advanced registration and a $20 tour fee are required.

For more information, contact Walnut Acres at (800) 433-3998 or PASA at (814) 349-9856.

NEW LADYBIRD BEETLES ARE A GARDEN FRIEND

Go into any "Great and Small Garden" this year and you may see something new.

Gardeners especially with orchards, forests and Christmas trees may be seeing numerous large, black, yellow and orange ladybird beetles on their trees. In some yards all stages of the multicolored Asian lady beetle (Harmonia axyridis) may be present on maples, walnuts, willow, oaks and frasier fir trees.

Dr. Al Wheeler, an entomologist for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, tells us the Asian Lady beetle was imported from Japan to the U.S. in 1977 to control aphids and scale pests on pecan trees in the South. After establishment in the South, the lady beetles have moved steadily northward, arriving in Pennsylvania in 1993. Within the last three years, the insect has established itself in many areas of Pennsylvania.

The Asian Ladybird Beetle is noticeably larger than the native lady beetles (two or more spots) normally found in our area. They are 9/32 inches long, oval or convex in shape and yellow to red in color. Some have irregular black spots on the wing covers, numbering as many as 19 spots. The larvae stage is elongated, flattened, orange/black and covered with minute spines.

Both stages of the ladybird beetle prey on numerous insect pests: aphids, scales, mites, other soft insects, and eggs of beetles and moths. They especially like feeding on colonies of aphids on leaves and bark.

The ladybird beetle lays yellow, spindle-shaped eggs on the undersides of leaves of low growing ornamentals. roses, wheat, tobacco and other crops. When aphids are abundant, the population of this exotic lady beetle explodes. In the fall, the lady beetles congregate on windows, doors, and porch decks. Although a nuisance, they are very beneficial. Collect and release these lady beetle into the garden.

These ladybird beetles do not bite, sting, or carry human diseases; nor do they feed on wood, clothing, or food. Living up to three years, an adult lady beetle clusters in buildings over the winter. In the garden the lady beetle often becomes the only practical control for insects such as the adult balsam twig aphid on frasier fir.

Becasue of the benefits they provide, most types of lady beetles are beneficial and should not be killed. More than 450 species of ladybird beetles are found in North America. If found in your home, move them to a quiet area of the garden using a broom, dust pan, or vacuum cleaner. You'll enjoy their company every day you're gardening.

Third Graders Tour Sowers Dairy

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

MIDDLETOWN, Md. — Take 145 dairy cows, 95,000 laying chickens, about 85 steers, and 30 hogs. Add 105 7-8 year old children, plus 25 teachers and parent chaperones, and an enthusiastic farm family and mix well. What do you end up with? "More fun than field day!" "Awesome!" "I want to come here again!" That was the general response from participants on a field trip to the farm of Randy and Karen Sowers recently. The youngsters, third graders from Spring Ridge Elementary in Frederick, visited the farm in conjunction with a unit on natural, capital, and human resources they had at school. For some it was the first time they had ever been near a working farm, although Frederick is the biggest dairy county in Maryland.

The trip took place thanks in part to a dynamic third grade teacher with a keen awareness of the importance of agriculture, Wendy Coyle. Ms. Coyle participated in an Ag In The Classroom training session at the Maryland Dept. of Agriculture (MDA) last summer in Annapolis. She was one of about eight teachers from Frederick County at the five-day workshop.

After attending the AITC workshop, Ms. Coyle submitted a grant proposal to MDA requesting funding for a field trip to a local agricultural operation. And she got it. "The funding was doubly important because Frederick County no longer pays for field trips," she explained, "We couldn't have come on the trip without it."

Randy and Karen Sowers, along with their children Abby and Ben, and extended family and friends pitched in to make the day come together successfully. The Sowers family has made a tradition of graciously welcoming school groups to their farm for thoughtfully prepared tours that are both fun and educational for the participants.

In the morning the children toured the farm. They could offer a bottle of water to a calf, explore the equipment, and see the pigs and chickens up close. The youngsters also spent some time examining the big bank barn. They had recently completed a unit on the German homesteader in school, according to their teacher, and seeing the bank barn complemented the lessons they had learned. They talked about how functional the barn's different sections were, and about the utilitarian design that makes both sides accessible.

The afternoon was dedicated to hayrides and a picnic lunch complete with homechurned ice cream. Following lunch there were games to play and relays to run. Finally, on their way back to board the buses to go back to school, the children streamed through the double six milking parlor to see the Sowers herd being milked.

The Sowers milk 145 cows on their farm outside of Middletown. There are 60 dry cows, and 200 heifers, from calves to springers. Eighty-six Hereford steers, over 30 hogs, and 95,000 layers round out the animal enterprises on the diversified 900-plus acre farm.

There are 400 acres planed in corn, 150 of beans, 140 of alfalfa, 150 of grass hay, 100 of small grain — some double cropped with the beans, 100 acres of hay on shares, and a couple hundred acres of pasture.

Lining up to watch the herd in the holding area.

Ewe Delivers Quads

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

DALLASTOWN (York Co.) — A purebred Romney ewe has accomplished a rare feat for her delighted York County owners, Pat and Allen McKinney and their sons Blake and Clay.

Though she hasn't followed Pat McKinney to school yet, pet lamb Little Bit likes to be cuddled, even laying her head on Pat's shoulder.

Athena, a four-year-old ewe with champion fleece awards to her credit, not only delivered but has successfully raised her own litter of four bouncing baby lambs. That just does not happen, according to the Romney purebred sheep association's secretary, John Landers, of Corvallis, Oregon.

"Quads that live long enough to be registered are more rare than a fifth Sunday in February," quipped Landers in a letter he wrote to Pat McKinney when she registered the matching set of two ewe and two ram lamb siblings. He declined to speculate what the odds might be for the ewe's successful mothering accomplishment.

Of course, Athena did have a little assistance from McKinney, as would any mother caring for four infants.

McKinney is a physical education teacher at Dallastown Senior High School. When she fed the sheep before heading to school on March 12, she felt certain Athena was about to lamb and asked Allen to keep an eye on the ewe. The second school period was a free one for Pat. She rushed home during her teaching break to find a ram lamb, instead of a ewe lamb she had been hoping for. Athena had delivered ram lambs after her two prior pregnancies.

"This was her third delivery and she always twinned. I really wanted a girl," Pat remembers. Before long, Athena obliged, delivering a healthy ewe lamb.

"She's a keeper," a delighted Pat told her husband.

But after the delivery, the veteran ewe "didn't act right." Pat recalls that Athena laid down and again began to push. With allen lending assistance, the ewe delivered the third lamb, another chubby ram.

Pat made another quick trip back home from school following lunch. Athena was still lying down and Pat feared her prized ewe, winner of champion Farm Show fleece honors in 1994, was about

King Baby First In June

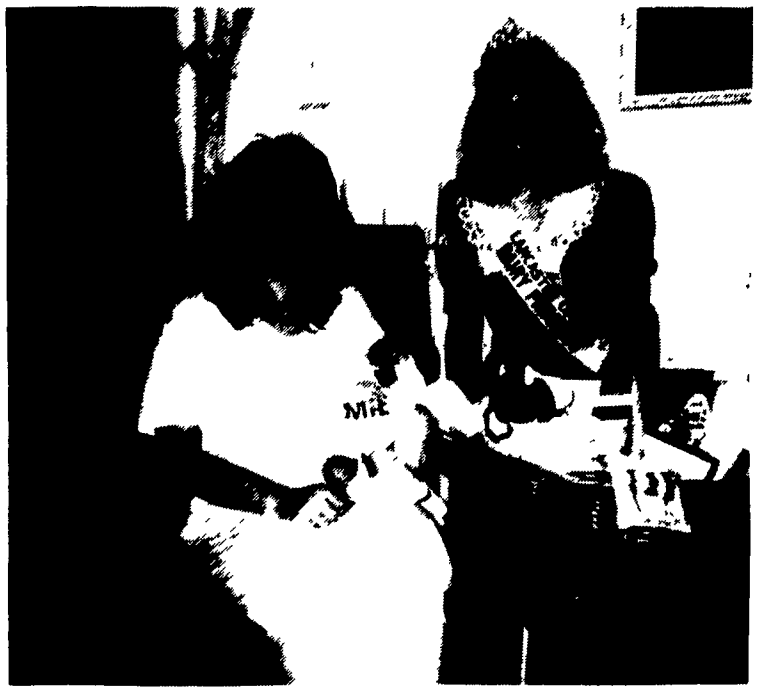
LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — To celebrate June Dairy month, Lancaster County hospitals were given baby T-shirts that read "I love milk."

Michael Jay King was Lancaster County's first June baby. Born June 1 at 12:30 a.m. at Lancaster General Hospital, he was Ray and Barbara King's second child, a first son. Along with the T-shirt, the Kings received a basketful of dairy products.

In support of June Dairy Month, add some dairy products to your diet and thank the farmer who works behind the scenes.

What Is A Farmer?
Heather Oberholtzer
Lancaster County
Dairy Princess

A farmer is someone with lots of care
Plenty of knowledge and wisdom to share
Up early every morning to greet the cows
With milkers, teat dip, and paper towels
A farmer must be very diverse
Always with an answer for the worst
Fieldwork is important, too
Rain or shine there's always something to do
Whether filling silo or baling hay
A little smile can make another's day
Later in the day it's again milking time
Pulsating milkers sound all in rhyme
Then when the milking is through
There's something tasty for me and you
This product called milk is delicious and yum
Cause it's loaded with protein and calcium
At the end of the day he's tired but pleased
With that pure milk he has helped to squeeze



Heather Oberholtzer, Lancaster County dairy princess, with the proud parents of Michael King, the first baby born in Lancaster County for June dairy month. Holding him is Barbara with Ray King.

ORANGE SHERBET SALAD

3-ounce package orange flavored gelatin
¾ cup boiling water
1 pint orange sherbet
1 cup sour cream
3 ounce package lemon gelatin
1 cup boiling water
11 ounce can mandarin orange segments
Lettuce

Dissolve orange gelatin in ¾ cup boiling water. Add sherbet (just taken from the freezer) and stir until sherbet is completely blended with the gelatin.

Pour mixture into a two-quart mold and spread sour cream over the top. Chill for one hour.

Meanwhile, dissolve lemon gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Drain juice from mandarin oranges and add enough water to juice to make 1 cup liquid. Add with orange segments to the lemon gelatin. Chill until lemon mixture just begins to set, then spoon on top of sour cream layer in salad mold. Chill for 8-10 hours.

Serve atop crisp lettuce. Makes 8-10 servings.

My husband and I enjoy reading Lancaster Farming*. We have a 100-acre farm in Armstrong County, but it is farmed and pastured by the neighboring farmer. He raises beef cattle and hogs and we get some of our meat supply from him. We live in a rural section of the county and enjoy the outdoors immensely. I certainly look forward to all the good dairy recipes that will be coming in future issues. Thank you.*

FETTUCINE ALFREDO WITH PARMESAN CHEESE

Boil 3 quarts water in kettle, add 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon vegetable oil to prevent sticking. Add 10 ounces of Fettucine noodles to boiling water. Cook 5 minutes. Drain but do not rinse noodles and cover immediately with 1½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon garlic, 1 teaspoon chicken bouillon, 2 tablespoons cream cheese and 2 tablespoons butter. Add 1 cup fresh grated parmesan cheese and 2 teaspoons flour if not thick enough. Also, add 1 cup cooked broccoli spears or ½ cup carrots or 2 cups zucchini or 1 cup asparagus spears. Mix together and sprinkle with parsley and pepper, if desired.

Serve this dish of Fettucine with baked, fried, or grilled chicken or shrimp.

I worked for school cafeterias in Perry County for 18 years. I was kitchen helper, then cook, and then manager before retiring in December 1993.

I love to cook and collect lots of recipes.

3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Arrange chopped, cooked vegetables in layers or mix together in a greased baking dish. Melt fat in a saucepan, add onions and flour.

When slightly brown, gradually add the milk and seasonings. When thickened, add cheese and melt. Pour sauce over vegetables. Sprinkle with crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

My husband Marlin and I live on a 100-acre beef and poultry operation. We have three precious children, Laura, 6; Charlotte, 4; and Benjiman, 6 months. They love the great outdoors with their many cats. I enjoy gardening and collecting recipes.

June is also Father's Day, a time to remember Dad. I spent countless hours in the barn with him milking them cows morning and night. Precious memories as a child and teenager. But oh, I hated them first calf heifers! Nothing unusual to get a kick once in a while.

Take 1 can crushed pineapple, mix together 3 cups graham cracker crumbs, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ cup butter. Put half in 9x13-inch pan and save the other half for the top.

I live on a 120-acre dairy farm. We just got two goats to mow around the manure pit. We also have 16 chickens and one rabbit.

BAKED ZITI

16-ounce box cut ziti macaroni
1 quart spaghetti sauce
24-ounces cottage cheese
2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese
1 tablespoon dried parsley
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon oregano
½ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon pepper
8-ounces tomato sauce
2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese

Cook ziti according to package directions for 10 minutes. Drain. Combine ziti, half the spaghetti sauce, cottage cheese, mozzarella cheese, parsley, egg, oregano, garlic powder, and pepper.

In at least a 9x13-inch casserole, pour the tomato sauce. If desired, additional spices may be added to the sauce according to your taste. Spread ziti mixture evenly over sauce in casserole. Top with remaining spaghett sauce and sprinkle with the parmesan cheese. Cover with foil and bake at 375 degrees for 30-35 minutes or until hot and bubbly.

My husband, Charles, and I live on a 120-acre farm in Harford County. We have raised four children and they really appreciated the opportunity to grow up here and now our grandchildren are enjoying the farm. Corn and alfalfa are the crops grown and we have one pet cow, Chocolate Chip.

Both my husband and I have to watch our fat intake so I make this recipe with fat-free cheeses. With a salad and Italian bread, we have a satisfying meal.

WHITE MOUNTAIN BASIC VANILLA ICE CREAM

2 eggs
2 cups milk
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup heavy whipping cream

Separate the eggs and make a soft custard of the milk, egg yolks, and sugar. Beat the egg whites stiff and, over them, pour the hot custard, mixing thoroughly. Add the vanilla and salt and, when cold, the whipped cream. Freeze. (Option: triple the recipe to have enough to go around.)

The Gary and Janice Shenk family loves homemade ice cream. It is usually made on special occasions such as birthdays and for the treat at the "slave" auction conducted by the church youth group.

Gary is a partner in the family business, E.E. Shenk and Sons, which his father began more than 60 years ago.

The boys — Jeromy, 23, Joel, 19, and Greg, 16 — have or are working with their dad. The girls — Jody, 15 and Gwen, 13 — wash trucks Saturday morning or mow lawn at the shop occasionally.

I run for parts sometimes and get meals to the field in harvest season.

Jeromy and his wife Katrina are in volunteer service through Eastern Mennonite Missions at Birmingham, Ala. Joel works full time at Shenks' and Greg is a student at Manheim Central. Joel plays soccer, church softball, and works part-time at Shenks'. Jody is in 9th grade and plays piano and Gwen, in 7th grade, plays string bass and soccer.

I enjoy quilting, sewing, reading, and cooking for the four hungry teenagers and their dad.

ADADC Helps Double School B-Fast Programs

WILKES-BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) and the Wilkes-Barre School District celebrated an expansion of the School Breakfast Program this spring. Now, 4,000 more students can benefit from a healthy, nutritious breakfast each morning. These new programs more than double the number of students who will have access to eating breakfast with wholesome milk to start off their school day.

To kick off the expansion, ADADC arranged for the Wilkes-Barre mayor to serve breakfast to the students and remind them of the importance of starting their day with a healthy breakfast. Local media coverage of the event included the "Citizen's Voice," the largest daily newspaper in ADADC's Pennsylvania marketing area. The article informed parents of the new availability of school breakfast for children at three additional elementary schools and a junior high school in the district.

Cloister FFA Competes At State Competition

A delegation of 22 members and three advisers from the Cloister FFA chapter attended the Pennsylvania State FFA Activities week at Penn State June 11-13.

Here the members participated in business, career development, leadership, and recreational events. Angie Pilara served as the Cloister voting delegate to all official business meetings. Other members attending the event competed in a career development activity.

Kevin Stauffer was the 1st place individual and with his teammate Bronson Reedy placed 1st as a team in the state small gas engines competition. These individuals were tested on their knowledge of engine operations and had to demonstrate their competency by finding the problems and fixing a bugged engine.

Kendra Weaver represented the eastern region of the Pennsylvania FFA in the prepared public speaking. She prepared a six to eight minute speech on using labor-intensive practices and environmentally friendly procedures in place of the mass profiteering in agriculture. Kendra placed 4th out of hundreds of students who competed statewide.

Travis Frey was recognized for his outstanding scientific research by placing first in the agriscience student recognition program. His experiment with boron as a pesticide for black nightshade in soy bean production required skill, knowledge, and dedication.

Aquatic resources involved identifying common Pennsylvania birds, mammals, plants, insects, and equipment used in and around water. It also tested the students' knowledge of conservation and water resource management. The individuals in this event were Keith Rollman placing 12th, Joe Groff placing 23, and Rodney Favinger placing 24.

Dairy Foods involved students identifying flavor defects of milk, types of cheeses, equipment quality, and real versus artificial dairy products. The students were also tested on their knowledge of milk marketing, government regulations, and dairy management. The Cloister team placed 6th with Frank Fredrick, Janelle Hoover, Jon Hurst, and Andrew Nolt.

Farm business management requires students to make decisions based on the premise of profit and loss. Students are tested on their knowledge of taxes, budgets, cash flow, and accounting. The Cloister team placed 5th with Keith Bollinger, Richard Bollinger, Dale Zimmerman, and Joanne Zimmerman.

Horse evaluation and selection challenges students to demonstrate their knowledge of horse breeds, tack, movement, and management. The Cloister team consisted of Michelle Callahan, Amy Hale, Shayna Sweigart, and Kendra Weaver.

Cumberland Valley FFA Wins Awards At State FFA Activities Week

Four members and two advisers of the Cumberland Valley High School FFA Chapter attended FFA Activities Week and Summer Convention held at the Pennsylvania State University on June 11-13.

The individuals and their contests were as follows: Heather Lehman, state officer candidate and proficiency finalist; Angela Hoffman, extemporaneous public speaking; Bill Leid, creed speaking and dairy cattle showmanship; and Jaclyn Wolf, chapter delegate.

The chapter advisers in attendance were Robert E. Leid and Bruce E. Lemmon. There were more than 1,300 FFA members from Pennsylvania competing in this year's contests and activities.

The highlight for the chapter was the selection of Heather Lehman as the 1996-1997 state FFA treasurer. Her duties will begin immediately and continue through June of 1997.

Angie Hoffman earned a Gold award in her competition and Bill Leid received a gold in creed speaking and a silver in dairy cattle showmanship. Both Angie and Bill earned their way to the state finals in the speaking contests by winning at both area and regional competition.

As the official delegate to the State FFA Convention, Jaclyn Wolf served on the conventions and camp committee, which is responsible for examining the convention programs and for improving the Pennsylvania chapter officer camp in the future.

She was presented with a gold award for her outstanding contributions to the committee. Jaclyn also received her Keystone FFA Degree, which was to be presented at the Mid-Winter Convention at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. For the first time ever, that convention was canceled due to the "blizzard of '96." In addition to the members, the chapter also entered the scrapbook contest where they received a silver award.

Heather Lehman was announced as the State Food Science & Technology proficiency winner. Her application will now be submitted for national competition. Other proficiency award winners from the chapter included: Jennifer Walbourn, 1st in south central region for equine science and technology; Amy Jahn, 1st in south central region for small animal care; Curtis Lehman, 1st in south central region for swine production; and Bill Leid, 2nd in south central region for diversified livestock production.

ANSWER — Marlene Hurst wanted the recipe for old lime or whitewash used to cover stone walls in cellars and instructions on how to apply it. Thanks to Mrs. Elam Stoltzfus, Spring Glen, who writes: First, sweep the walls clean. Take equal amounts of Miracle lime (used for construction) and white cement. Mix with lukewarm water just so it will spread nicely. Paint on with a whitewash brush. It is best to mix only a small amount at a time.

ANSWER — Thanks to Joan Pierson for writing that a great source for finding out-of-print books is Baldwin's Book Barn in West Chester, Chester County. "It's a great place to visit, browse, and buy. You cannot believe this place."

Also, Marion Adler, P.O. Box 627, Stockbridge, MA 01262 (413-298-3559) operates a book search specializing in out-of-print children's books. Write or call her with the name of the book you are looking for and she will search for it without charge. It may take up to eight weeks, but Marion will let you know if she has been successful in locating the book. If she has been, she will quote you a price. You need to let her know immediately because she is obligated to notify the seller.

ANSWER — For D. Newsom who wanted a list of church and community cookbooks, A. Moyer, Bernville, sends an address: Corner Cupboard Cookbooks, P.O. Box 171, Zionsville, IN 46077 or The Cookbook Mart, P.O. Box 209, Ossian, IN 46777.

West Snyder FFA

Members of the Pennsylvania FFA Association know that leaders aren't born, they are made.

Nine members of the West Snyder FFA Chapter believe that it takes hard work and training to develop leadership and teamwork skills.

That is why West Snyder attended the Second Annual Peacock held May 17-19 at Hartman Center in Milroy.

Peacock, short for Pennsylvania Chapter Officer Camp, is a 3-day leadership training camp designed to develop team unity and direction for chapter officer teams throughout Pennsylvania for the coming year.

The camp, run by present and past state officers, includes activities such as a team building course, workshops on team spirit and team competitions. All activities are designed to help team members bond and encourage them to set goals and form a plan of action for the lunch chapter. Peacock is just one of the ways that the Pennsylvania FFA helps its members to reach their potential for premier leadership.

We All — Swim? — For Ice Cream

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The Cumberland County Farm Bureau Women's Committee had a wonderful experience on June 15. Turkey Hill Dairy provided all the ice cream and nuts, strawberries, and chocolate syrup. The Women's Committee sponsored this event.

Exactly what can you do with 102 gallons of ice cream, 100 pounds of hot fudge, 30 pounds of strawberries, and 30 pounds of pecans?

Well, Turkey Hill Dairy provided the ice cream and built the sundae. The building of the sundae took about 20 minutes. The sundae was built in a child's swimming pool. The society handed out more than 1,200 free sundaes at the local mall.

The Farm Bureau president, Guy Donaldson, was one of many from the Farm Bureau Office in Camp Hill. The new Cumberland County dairy princess, Heather Lehman, was on hand with the dairy maids. They were giving out recipes, coloring books, and stickers promoting ice cream and milk.

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within THREE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next three years.

Farm Bureau And Breast Cancer Advocates Join Forces To Support Research Bill

ALBANY — New York Farm Bureau's State Board of Directors voted to support legislation, unveiled today by State Senate Majority Leader Joseph Bruno and supported by U.S. Senator Alfonse D'Amato, that will seek to discover any relationship between pesticides and breast cancer through scientific exploration. According to New York Farm Bureau President John Lincoln, "This legislation would tackle the issue of pesticides and breast cancer in a way that is scientifically sound, yet not overly burdensome for New York farmers.

Lincoln said the legislation would give scientists the information they need to uncover any potential relationship between pesticides and breast cancer, while protecting the viability of New York agriculture.

"If there is a relationship between pesticides and breast cancer, we want to know. Our families are closer to the situation than anyone. This new legislation creates a Cancer Science Board to coordinate the pesticide information with the scientific search for a cure for breast cancer, while protecting the confidentiality of the farms and providing the information and safeguarding them from liability when following sound agricultural practices."

Lincon concluded, "This legislation is far superior to previously introduced bills that would have required farmers to go through a burdensome pesticide reporting procedure with no organized involvement by the scientific community. The bill we support has most of the pesticide reporting by farmers done at the point of sale."

Pa. DHIA Prepares For 21st Century

David Slusser, General Manager

University Park, PA — PA DHIA has introduced two new services and has been developing a strategic long range plan to provide cutting edge technology to the 21st century dairy farmers. MUN analysis and Performance Economics when coupled with Somatic Cell Count (SCC) and other traditional services provide a powerful force to analysis and develop feeding programs and decrease the cost of production for our members. The Board of Directors of PA DHIA believe these services are so important to the profitability and survival of our members that they appoint a Strategic Long Range Planning Committee to develop a plan to guide us into the next century.

The strategic plan is at the mid-point of development, however, important aspects of our cooperative governing and businesses structure are being analyzed. They are also developing new concepts to spawn important services designed to improve the profitability and the competitiveness of our members.

Change is inevitable and fast in the dairy industry today, and our board wishes to help direct or guide that change for the benefit of our members. If dairymen do not plan a part in change through their cooperatives, the forces of change will be from outside the industry. Now is the time for the dairy farmers and their organizations to step forward in courageous leaderhsip and plan their future. To accomplish our leadership role, farm organizations need to work together in developing organizations and products cooperatively that will improve farm profit. Resources for product development are scarce, however, by teaming together great things can happen. That is a basic cooperative principle and our board plan will encourage this approach.

Opportunitites are being studied by a team approach never before used in PA DHIA. We have initiated project teams to investigage, develop, cost analyze, introduce, and market specific products or services. These teams have already proved their value in computer programs, MUN and performance economics. Presently we are studying three new services for possible introduction in the next 6 months. All three may or may not be introduced, however, before a calculated risk will be taken by PA DHIA key questions must be answered. The main questions are; will it improve the profit of our members; will it be of benefit to employees; and will it strengthen PA DHIA. The project teams, and new product development are spin-offs from the strategic long range planning process.

The goal of the committee is to finish our strategic plan by years end. Major objectives have been developed and introduced to the board and now strategies and priorities will be added in the next few months. More information will be available in the near future as the board finishes this highly important work. All of the visible changes that you have seen were important and positive, however, the strategic long range planning being done by the PA DHIA Board is very important and exciting. Your board believes that PA DHIA must provide new cutting edge programs and services or get out of the way of organizations that will.

Pa. DHIA Reduces Debt

TED BROWN
Manager of Finance

Every year in conjunction with the annual meeting we publish our annual report and distribute the report to every member. Every other month the PA DHIA Board of Directors meet to discuss issues that set the course of the organization, make policies that affect both the members and employees of DHIA, and review the finances. During the years 1993 and 1994 substantial operating losses were recorded but the trend reversed in 1995 and PA DHIA returned to profitability. The current fiscal year ends September 30th and it will be our best in many years. The favorable results are due in part to the continued planning of the board of directors and management. Employee dedication and member cooperation has provided the funds to repay debt that accumulated during the lean years. In the last eighteen months we have repaid more than $600,000, reducing our debt by more than half.

Approximately two thirds of every dollar collected is paid to employees as compensation. The balance of the receipts are used for other operating costs and capital purchases.

By increasing our profits (which includes controlling expenses), scheduling major purchases and collecting accounts receivable in a more timely manner we have been able to meet our obligations as they come due. By working closely with the members and employees, management has seen a reduction of accounts receivable to a level that any business would welcome. By decreasing what is owned to PA DHIA we have been able to live with smaller fee increases to the members.

Thanks are in order to each and every technician, because they have been in the forefront when it comes to collecting money. Adding to this unpleasant task is the fact that many of the members are friends, neighbors or someone that you have known most of their lives. The dairy business has been marginal at best in recent years, and it is through the efforts of the technicians that PA DHIA has survived. Their hard work is appreciated by not only me but by literally thousands of of others.

While our progress has been exceptional, we face problems

Pa. DHIA Recognizes Technicians

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

On Saturday, June 15, Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association technicians from all parts of the Pa.DHIA service area were honored for their achievements.

It all began with a delicious buffet breakfast early Saturday morning in the Holiday Inn at Grantville. After breakfast, all technicians and guests gathered in the Grande Ballroom for the presentation of awards.

Dean Amick, director of field operations, introduced David Bigelow, training coordinator, who announced the award winners while being assisted by the respective region managers in recognizing technician achievements.

The highlight of the awards program was the presentation of the Herb Gilmore Memorial Superior Technician award. This award was started last year to honor Herb Gilmore who was an extension dairy specialist at Pa.DHIA from 1946 to 1980.

His job duties included working closely with county agents to increase the accuracy and reliability of records, train technicians, enforce rules and regulations, use records to build educational programs, increase numbers of cows and herds on test, build leadership, and strengthen boards of directors.

The purpose of this award is to honor those technicians who deliver exceptional service to the Pennsylvania DHIA service area dairy farmers, promote good public relations and provide up-to-date

There were 5 technicians recognized for the Distinguished Service Awards, with a recipient from each of the 5 regions in the Pennsylvania DHIA service area. Each year a list of nominees for this award is accumulated. Each candidate must have completed 5 years of service and qualified for the award of merit for the previous year. One technician is chosen from each region based on the following criteria, cooperation with county personnel, dairymen, DHIA personnel, statistical performance, neatness and appearance. Technicians may only win this award once. It is required that a technician win this award prior to consideration for the Herb Gilmore Memorial Superior Technician Award. The winners each received a jacket and check for $25.00. The winners of this award are, from left to right, Region 5, Gary Williams, Susquehanna/Wayne Counties; Region 3, Lyle Packard, Bradford County; Region 2, Anne Couch, Huntingdon County; Region 1, Ralph Rudy, Centre County; Region 4, Craig Van Horn, Juniata County.

that are being addressed by management to better serve our member organization. Some of our bigger problems deal with billing and payroll. The changing face of DHIA has made it more and more difficult to properly charge for services whether they be field, lab, or data processing. There are problems and there are solutions. The Board of Directors has appointed a "billing committee" that has met and gone over a number of issues with improvements expected in the near future. We have been working on a system for payroll to standardize the method used to calculate pay to technicians. Some of the goals include a rate for each technician, rahter than using former county rates, and an overall simplification of the process. I am optimistic that results will be favorable, and well received.

Employee benefits are a major concern of the association and PA DHIA offers a generous retirement plan, vacation pay, disability coverage and an enhanced hospitalization plan. The benefit package that is available includes help with claims processing, reimbursement and participant information.

This past year we were given approval to offere membership in the Penn State Federal Credit Union and many employees have joined. This credit union is member owned and DHIA is an employer eligible to offer membership to it's employees. It is easy to join, and offers an extensive number of services at favorable rates. Direct deposit is available to all employees, either to a credit union or traditional bank. There is no cost for this service and many employees take advantage of it.

Since joining the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association in August of 1994, I have had the opportunity to work with the employees, members, and the Board of Directors. It is clear to me that the concern for the dairy industry as a whole will allow PA DHIA to enter the next century as one of the top agricultural associations in the world.

Pa. DHIA Chosen As Host For Visitor

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

PA DHIA was chosen by the United States Department of Agriculture to train Aire Pentjav, field service supervisor at the Estonian Animal Recording Center, for the longest length of time while in the United States because PA DHIA is the only stand-alone service center in the United States to provide all 3 services, field service, data processing and laboratory. Aire spent the week of June 10-15, 1996, at the PA DHIA headquarters in State College learning how to provide better field service, more accurate records and better data processing for dairy farmers of Estonia.

The government of Estonia has not been involved with the dairy industry since 1990 when Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania broke away from Russia before the collapse of the Soviet Union. Sixty-seven percent of all dairy farms are on a DHIA testing program. The average herd size is forty-five cows. Estonian red and holstein are the dominate breeds. Semen is imported from Holland and the United States for use in the breeding programs. There is a special breed which makes up about three hundred cows called Estonian Native cows which is an ancestral herd. Farmers rarely slaughter females from this herd and are paid a small fee to maintain this old bloodline. Overall, there are a total of 3 breeding organizations in Estonia.

DHIA in Estonia greatly differs from PA DHIA because farmers receive no feeding information back on the final report. There are three thousand farms on test which conists of 1.2 million samples a year with eleven tests a year because there are no samples taken in July because this is vacation time in Estonia. There is a work force of five hundred technicians which creates a large problem on how to train properly in order to assure accuracy of records.

Interesting enough Estonian dairymen have been able to rest for milk urea nitrogen since Septemer 1995. All herds enrolled on a testing program must test for fat, protein, somatic cell count and milok urea nitrogen.

Upon visiting with the staff at PA DHIA, Aire moved on to spend time at National DHIA in Columbus, Ohio, as well as pending time in Madison, Wisconsin; Florida and Raleigh, North Carolina.

Having graduated from the Estonian Agricultural University, along with working as a technician and feeding/breeding consultant, Aire is sure to succeed in her endeavors. The staff at PA DHIA enjoyed the opportunity to spend time and share ideas with Aire.

Summer Conference Presents

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

PA DHIA held its seventy-second annual technicians' summer conference on June 14-15, 1996 at the Holiday Inn in Grantville, PA. Technicians from all parts of the state traveled to Grantville to attend the 2 day conference featuring Ron Eberhard. Ron is president of Business and Estate Planning Services Unlimited, which serves clientele in over thirty states. Along with this, he is a professional member of the National Speakers Association and the Ohio Speakers Forum, and is known as a motivational seminar leader and humorist.

Technicians were treated to 2 motivational performances. On Friday afternoon, June 14, Ron spoke on the theme of "Stop, Look and Listen" which challenged the audience to stop and take a break from life and seek out new opportunities. On Saturday morning, June 15 Ron presented his program entitled "Field of Dreams." This program was motivational and humorous but at the same time drove a positive message home to the audience concerning the opportunities in life.

The summer conference is held in conjunction with the spring and fall conferences which are held each year. Holding such training activities are in compliance with quality certification through National DHIA.

Technician Achievements

The staff of PA DHIA would like to take the opportunity to congratulate the award winners on a job well done.

Rookie of the Year

The Pa.DHIA Rookie of the Year award was established to honor new technicians who have shown exceptional aptitude in learning the job of a Pa. DHIA technician. These individuals must have worked at least six and no more than 18 months and have demonstrated outstanding cooperation with the state and local DHIA associations in conducting an efficient and accurate testing program. This award consists of an engraved plaque. There are two catagories for the award; one for a fulltime employee and one to a part-time employee. This year's award for a full-time employee went to Mary Schmidt from Crawford County. The award for the part-time employee went to Amy Chilcote from Huntingdon County.

Putnam Memorial Award

The Putnam Memorial award was initiated in 1983 in honor of Dexter N. Putnam for his contributions to Pa. DHIA. Mr. Putnam was an extension dairyman from 1957 until his retirement in 1982. Dexter's dairy extension responsibilities included working with DHIA technicians to improve their accuracy in reporting data on DHIA forms. This award is given annually to the technician who commits the fewest errors per 1,000 cows tested. Technicians may only win this award once. The winner receives an engraved desk set. There are two catagories for the award, recognizing a full-time employee and a part-time employee. The award for a full-time employee went to Linda Wagner from Wayne County. The part-time employee award went to Criss Hess from Bucks County.

Carl B. Hollinger Memorial

The Carl B. Hollinger Memorial award was started in 1977 in honor of Mr. Hollinger who was a fieldman for Pa. DHIA from 1951-1974. The winner of this award is selected by the employees who work in the control milk testing lab, to recognize the outstanding technician for excellence in neatness, sample packing, size of samples, method of ordering supplies and cooperation with the lab. The winner receives an engraved desk set. The recipient of this award was James Batz from Dauphin County.

Retirement Awards

There were two recipients for the retirement award; Barbara Gary from Bradford County with more than 18 years of experience, and Bill Baucher from Luzerne County with more than 41 years experience.

Award of Merit

The Award of Merit is presented annually to each technician who achieves a high standard of performance. To be considered for this award, one must meet minimum length of service and workload requirements. Additionally, technicians must score a minimum of 90 points on a worksheet format that scores different aspects of a Pa. DHIA technician's job. A total of 53 technicians received this prestigious award. Each recipient received $25, with and additional $5 for each year the award is received consecutively. Also, 18 part-time technicians were recognized for this award based on point accumulations.

Dairying California Style

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

Recently Dean Amick, director of field operations, and David Bigelow, training coordinator at PA DHIA, met with 5 different California DHAI organizations and toured various dairy operations around the state of California. The main function of the visit was to exchange ideas and view technicians actually conducting the testing process.

The 6 day tour started in southern California in the Chino Valley which consists of herds that have an average of 2500 cows and have some farms that are made up of only forty acres. Hay and grain are the main diet for the cattle which is purchased and trucked into the farms. In this valley, that is made up of 15,000 acres, there is a population of 275,000 cows. A DHIA technician tests an average of 10,000 to 13,000 cows a month. Southern Counties DHIA provides lab service to this area as well as providing service to an independent service provider in Arizona.

Upon the completion of the tour, one can summarize that most of all Califonria dairies are large and efficient. Among everything, housing costs for cows are low because of the tropical climate weather. Cows are housed outside all year round. Most dairymen are surviving these hard times despite purchasing all or most feed. Most dairies have employees who specialize in one certain area of the business. That area is where this employee spends his or her time.

The tour was very informative and exciting. The knowledge gained in exchanging ideas in training technicians in a larger herd setting will be very useful in the future.

PA DHIA continues to enjoy growth in the membership area that is serves. Currently members are being served in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, West Virginia and Missouri.

Sights like this with miles and miles of dairy cattle lots are an everday occurance in a lot of areas of California.

Pa.DHIA On World Wide Web

PAT TORETTI
ARIS Representative

Pennsylvania DHIA's DRPC has solidified its position as the nation's top provider of Internet services for DHIA records and related information technology with the recent introduction of a World Web Page.

The Pa. DHIA DRPC can now be reached by, any of an estimated 10 million computers on the global Internet via the URL:

The page provides access to online records for registered users of the DHIA ARIS system, as well as personnel contract lists, e-mail, the latest resource material on MUN testing and reporting, DHIA research articles, benchmarks, sales and service information, and links to agriculturally related sites all over the world.

Although Pa.DHIA has only offered the access to dairy records for a few months, the program has really taken off, according to Jim Boyer, the Dairy Records Processing Center Manager for Pennsylvasnia DHIA.

"About 20 percent of our offline reports for ARIS—which is the bulk of our access by consultants — are now received by way of the Internet. Not bad when you consider that program only went off pilot basis a few weeks ago. The Internet is hot, and we are there."

Dave Slusser, Pa.DHIA's general manager said, "We see nothing but possibilities. At a time when people — especially those with their own personal computers — are questioning the value of DHIA, the new services we're implementing showcase the great benefit of belonging to a cooperative association."

Sparked by customer interest in the Web, DHIA is considering a series of classes on Internet use at various locations in the state during the later part of the summer. While PA DHIA's particular services will be promoted, the focus will be on developing general skills for the beginner and intermediate user to exploit the capabilities of the Internet.

Romney Ewe Delivers Quads

"I sat here in the barn for about 10 minutes with her. She got up, laid down again and started to push. And this teeny little ewe lamb was born, so tiny but perfectly formed. I had taken from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. for all the lambs to be delivered. I couldn't believe it was even alive," grins Pat, still marveling at the memory of the surprise.

However, the ordeal had taken quite a toll on Athena. The largest ram lamb weighed in at 10.5 pounds, while its brother and larger sister each weighed nearly nine pounds. Little Bit, the tiny infant, tipped the scale at a mere skin-and-bones five pounds.

After the births, Athena's udder was full and distended. The lambs soon learned to lay down next to her and nurse. Bottles every three hours supplemented Athena's milk and warming lights kept the babies from gettin chilly. Pat's sleep suffered for the next few weeks, since part of every night was spent in the barn, bottle feeding lambs.

"I sat out part of the March ice storm duringn the night in the barn," she relates of the rather frightening event. "At 2 a.m., tree limbs were almost constantly crashing down outside."

With vitamins, rest, and Pat's tender, loving care, Athena regained her strength and in four days was back on her feet. An excellent mother, she knew instantlyk when one of the lambs was out of her sight. Little Bit was kept on bottle feedings and became the classic bottle-fed lamb, scampering along behind Pat as she tended the others. She soon learned to crawl up on Pat's lap and put her head on her shoulder.

It was the acquisition of a pony that originally put the McKinneys into the sheep business.

"We got a pony years ago for the boys, from a friend of ours," explains Pat. "It got out and ran loose for several hours around the neighborhood. We decided to get it a lamb for company and were told a single lamb would get lonely."

"And that's how the boys got into 4-H Lamb Club," she adds. "The first lambs were bought because they were cute. We were always dead last in the show ring and were happy if they ever won anything other than a brown ribbon."

Blake, however, did win numerous fitting and showmanship awards during his 4-H sheep exhibitor years.

But every year when it came time to sell the lambs, tears flowed all around the family. So market lambs were given up in favor of breeding sheep and the first Romney was purchased from a New Jersey breeder. With its quality bloodlines and superior fleece characteristics, the McKinney's new acquisition soon changed their brown show ribbons to purple champion rosettes. In recent years, Blake and Clay have forgone sheep showing for sports participation, leaving their mother as the family's head shepherd.

Pat is an accomplished spinner and knitter of the wools from the small flock, along with marketing fleeces to other wool crafters. The lustre and crimp of the Romney fleeces make them especially popular with the artisans who use wool in their various creative pursuits.

Though the quads show some individuality in their fleece characteristics, they all show quality. Pat plans to keep both Little Bit and her sister, Hannah, as part of the small breeding flock. One ram lamb is already sold and she hopes to market the other to a breeding flock where his parental champion bloodlines can be passed on to other generations of lambs.

Capernicus, the flock's ram and sire of the quads, was lost to an unfortunate accident during this past winter. A massive 300-pounder, he was a former supreme ram over all breeds winner at the York Fair junior shows. But the ram had in recent years gotten a bit rambunctious in his play. After one of the winter snows, Blake and Clay were sledding on the pasture hill and the ram took to chasing them, crashing his head into a tree during the pursuit. He died a few days later.

The McKinneys expect to replace their ram over the summer and rebreed Athena and her flockmate ewes later in the fall. One thing they do not expect is a repeat of the surprise quadruplet birth.

For Athena's sake, Pat McKinney would probably be happy with just one good-sized, healthy ewe lamb next season.

Westfalia Names Top Dealers

ELK GROVE VILLAGE, Ill. — Westfalia Systemat recently named Interstate Dairy Equipment, Inc. one of the top five dealers in the United States at its recent North American National Dealer Meeting.

Richard Strite, one of the owners of Interstate Dairy Equipment, Inc., a dealer representing the East Coast area, has been with Westfalia for five years.

According to Ray Middel, national sales manager for Westfalia, "Interstate Dairy Equipment, Inc. has demonstrated outstanding commitment to Westfalia and, based on their overall sales volume for 1995, is an obvious choice for a Top Dealer Award."

Recipients of Westfalia's Top Dealer Award must be a dealer in good standing and are evaluated according to their total sales volume of both new products and parts in their respective trade areas.

Babson Brothers Selects President

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — Babson Bros. Co. has appointed Harold P. Franze to the newly created position of president and chief operating officer.

Franze will be responsible for the day-to-day direction of all company operations, including the development and implementation of the company's annual business plan.

The announcement was made recently by Nicholas C. Babson, who will continue as chairman and chief executive officer of the company.

Prior to joining Babson Bros. Co., Franze was president of Automated Machinery Systems, a manufacturer of high speed, industrial baking and specialty pharmaceutical equipment. The Richmond, Virginia-based firm is a division of AMF Companies. Previously, Harry was general manager of AMF's Capital Equipment Division, a company he joined in 1989.

Harold P. Franze

A native of northeast Ohio, Franze received a pre-med degree from Walsh College, North Canton, Ohio in 1978. While in school, Franze operated Randolph Tool Company, a precision tool and die company serving the tire aerospace industries. He left Randolph Tool to join General Electric in 1983.

Tetraponics Produces Year-Round Crops

WORCESTER (Montgomery Co.) — Will we ever forget the winter and spring of 1996? Probably not. But one farmer was able to produce succulent vegetables during the first part of this year.

By using the principles of aerospace design and applying them to traditional hydroponic technology, Rudy Behrens, president and founder of Aurora Farms, has developed a controlled environment called the I-1 to grow his crops.

Behrens designed this environment from the ground up to specifically address the unique regional economic and environmental issues. By fully controlling all the elements, including the light, these non-greenhouse enclosures proved to be more effective and dependable.

This technology, known as Tetraponics, is the backbone of the I-1. The unit is very economical to own and uses about a half acre. In about half the time and at half the cost of traditional field cultivation, the I-1 can produce crops all year long.

Behren's son Derek tends the "tetraponic" crops.

On Sunday, June 30, there will be an Open House at Aurora Farms for regional agriculturalists. A small scale working model will be on display and Behrens will be on hand to answer your questions.

Lancaster Producer Wins Soybean Contest

MARIETTA (Lancaster Co.) — Dwight Hess of Marietta has won the 1995 Pennsylvania State Soybean Yield Contest. His winning entry, Asgrow A4045, is an STS variety that yielded 70.4 bushels per acre.

A4045 is one of four Asgrow STS varieties tolerant to sulfonylurea herbicides, resulting in improved weed control without crop injury.

Hess grows corn, barley, and soybeans on 265 acres in Lancaster County.

"We planted the 1995 soybean crop on May 15," said Hess, "and we were fortunate enough to experience a very, very good growing season. We harvested the crop in early October."

The beans were planted in 30-inch rows at 65 pounds per acre. "I'm very happy with the Asgrow STS bean," he said. "I've used it in the past, and I'm continuing to do so."

To mark his victory, Asgrow will present Hess with 10 free units of A4045. Seedway is Hess' local Asgrow agent.

To enter the contest, applicants' yields were observed by an independent county agent. The winner was selected solely on the basis of yield per acre.

Rotary Disc Windrower Has Power, Performance

ATLANTA, Ga. — Designed specifically for large-acreage hay and forage producers, Hesston's Model 8500 self-propelled rotary disc windrower boasts advanced rotary-disc cutting technology.

Model 8500 offers numerous features that provide power and performance in all types of field conditions.

The stable footing improves performance and comfort over rough terrain. Cutterbed flotation and angle are both hydraulically controlled and monitored from the cab.

Hydrostatic control of ground speed and cutterbed disc speed allow the operator to match crop conditions and terrain. The 8500 is powered by a 359-cubic-inch, Cummins six-cylinder diesel engine for high torque rise and exceptional power.

According to Hesston's general marketing manager, Ron Hess, the 8500 represents years of hard work and planning. "We determined that large acreage hay and forage producers wanted increased productivity while retaining clean cutting and aggressive conditioning. So we gave them the best of both worlds with a 15-foot, three-inch header, a modular disc mower cutterbed and wide conditioner rolls."

The Hesston 8500 self-propelled rotary disc windrower offers increased productivity, clean cutting, and aggressive conditioning for large-acreage hay and forage producers.

Catcher, Mulcher Deliver Manicured Lawns

MOBILE, Ala. — The manicured appearance of clipping-free lawns are available to golf courses and commercial turf operators through new attachments for Bush Hog's line of zero turn mowers.

The new grass catcher attachment saves operator time with its large, 15-cubic-foot capacity and fast, reliable, mechanical dump system. It uses a suction fan that runs off the jackshaft to capture clippings and produce a smooth, manicured appearance. The grass catcher is available for all Bush Hog® zero turn mowers.

Operators who want to produce a manicured appearance while also eliminating the time and expense of disposing of grass clippings can choose the new mulcher attachment. Available on all Bush Hog zero turn mowers, it mulches grass to small particles that are then spread evenly over the lawn. By using the new mulching attachment, operators can eliminate the time and costs of grass clipping collection and disposal.

The Bush Hog zero turn mowers are available with 18 and 22 HP Kohler Command engines.

Silver Scurf Control Possible

PLANO, Texas — As growers head into another sesaon of potato production in the northern United States, a relatively new disease problem will be on producers' minds — silver scurf.

A member of the Rhizoctonia family of diseases, silver scurf causes a shiny, silvery fungus on the outside of the potato. Though the disease does not usually detract from taste, it can result in a spongy feel, a shriveled appearance, and a reduced storage life, any of which can make potatoes unmarketable.

Pat Keegan, Keegan's Inc., Twin Falls, Idaho, has seen the number of potatoes affected by silver scurf increase since the disease was established. "Silver scurf has been getting progressively worse over the last four or five years," said Keegan.

Ritchie Celebrates 75 Years

CONRAD, Iowa — Thomas Ritchie, an Iowa farmer, patented his first automatic livestock waterer in 1921.

Connected to an underground waterline, the new invention consisted of a float valve which kept water in the trough and a kerosene lamp was used to keep the water from freezing in the winter.

The company was incorporated and moved to Marshalltown, Iowa in the 1930s. In 1943, the company's few assets were purchased by C.D. Wilson, a Conrad, Iowa blacksmith and moved to a remodeled 24 foot by 48 foot machine assembly and storage building in Conrad.

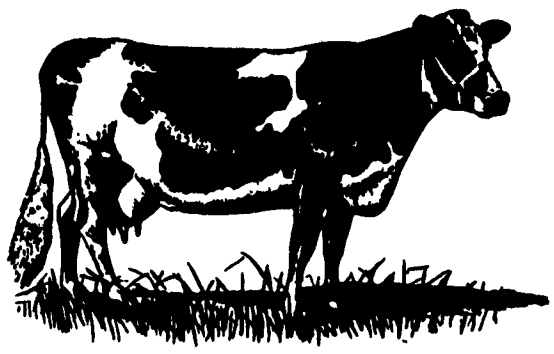
C.D. Wilson continued to operate the blacksmith shop along with the manufacturing plant until 1953. At that time Cliff Wilson, Jr. returned home from the army to join in the management of the company and the blacksmith shop was closed.

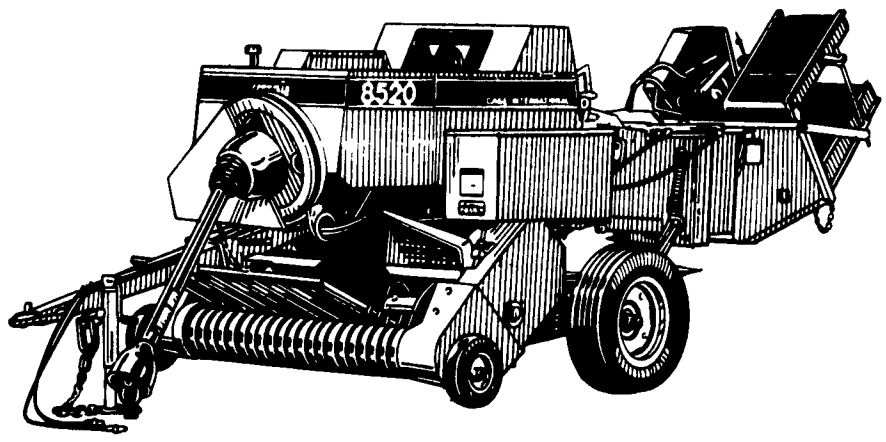
The Wilsons operated the company together until the death of C.D. Wilson, Sr. in 1979 at which time Cliff, Jr. took over the operation and manages it today.

The product offering has expanded from the original kerosene heated unit to a full line of electric and gas heated fountains and plastic electric free fountains.

Special 75th anniversary commemorative items have been selected to promote the anniversary at various trade shows and distribution programs this year.

"Her" Choice





If Holsteins could talk, the conversation around the hay manger would be "Case IH Center Line Balers".

Why? More leaves per bale.

Our low profile pickup allows alfalfa hay to retain more dry leaves. We don't lift the windrow as high, saving leaves at the pickup. We also start to compress the hay before it enters the chamber to lock in leaves throughout the flake...leaves don't settle to the bottom and fall out the back of the baler to the degree of older style square balers.

More leaves means more milk, without increased overhead. Many studies show increased production of $1,000 per year over a milking herd of 100 with 2% leaf savings!

Record Exports Give Cattle Industry A Lift

DENVER, Colo. — Record beef exports in 1995 gave a significant lift to American cattle producers and allied industries last year, according to a recent study by CF Resources, an independent research firm in Denver, Colo.

Export sales of U.S. beef and beef variety meats, the study notes, were responsible for 12.7 percent of the wholesale value of total U.S. beef production last year — up from 10.5 percent in 1994 and three times the figure of just 10 years ago.

"We're very pleased with the results of this latest impact study," said U.S. Meat Export President Philip M. Seng. "You can't help but get excited about the future once you've looked back at what has been accomplished in export markets."

The study finds that U.S. cattle prices benefit substantially from increased demand for high-quality, grain-fed U.S. beef in foreign markets. Given production levels and demand last year in the United States, export sales of U.S. beef in 1995 added $106.26 per head to the value of fed cattle, $101.93 per head to feeder cattle, and $96.80 per head to calves.

The United States exported a record-shattering 938,000 metric tons of beef and beef variety meats in 1995, valued at $3.3 billion. This is a 148 percent increase in export volume since 1986 when U.S. beef exports totaled 377,000 mt worldwide. The study points out that U.S. beef exports in 1995 were equivalent to 2.57 million slaughter cattle.

The industry's growth in foreign markets, said Seng, is just the tip of the iceberg. "We're now at 938,000 mt and our goal is to top 1.8 million metric tons in the year 2000," he said.

The study by CF Resources also points to significant benefits to the feedgrain and soybean industries that result from growing sales of high-quality U.S. red meat products to foreign consumers. In 1995, the study noted, U.S. beef and pork exports accounted for 205 million bushels of feedgrain utilization in livestock rations, valued at $526 million. They also accounted for 23 million bushels of soybeans, valued at $132 million.

Seng credits access to new markets, quality products, and effective market development programs for the industry's export growth. "The entire fabric of our industry has allowed us to achieve more, and with fewer resources, than our competition," said Seng. "This includes critical support from the producer checkoff program."

Shareholders Approve Stock Split

DEKALB, Ill. — Shareholders of Dekalb Genetics Corporation voted to approve an amendment to the company's restated certificate of incorporation that will effect a three-for-one split of both the Class A and Class B Common Stock, the company said.

Following the special meeting of Class A and Class B shareholders, the amendment was filed with the state of Delaware, where Dekalb is incorporated.

Dekalb also said that its board of directors declared a dividend of 7 cents per share on its Class A and Class B Common Stock, a 5 percent increase compared with the rate prior to the stock split. The dividend is payable June 14, 1996 to shareholders of record on May 31, 1996.

As a result of the split, the total number of outstanding Class A shares will rise from approximately 800,000 to approximately 2.4 million, and the Class B shares will increase from approximately 4.9 million to approximately 14.6 million.

USMEF, NCBA Forge New Partnership

DENVER, Colo. — The U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF) and the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) began a new era of cooperation and support with the signing of the first ever partnership agreement between the two organizations at the mid-year meeting of the USMEF Board of Directors in Chicago last week.

"We're building strength on strength," said USMEF President and CEO Philip Seng. "This new agreement will enable each organization to focus on what it does best, eliminating duplication and enhancing performance as it relates to the industry's long range plan," said Seng.

NCBA CEO Chuck Schroeder said the new agreement is about partnership and building a foundation for marketing U.S. beef globally in the future.

"The relationship described in this agreement between USMEF and NCBA is, indeed, a true partnership where organizations and individuals with like objectives and complementary skills agree to join forces for the good of the industry," said Schroeder. "Absent that spirit, this agreement would not have been possible, certainly not in the time frame in which is was completed," he added.

While the USMEF/NCBA agreement won't officially take effect until Oct. 1, 1996, Seng noted that the spirit of the agreement has been evident for months as the two organizations worked together to develop a global marketing plan and budget for the coming year.

Under the agreement, USMEF will contract with NCBA to develop international markets for the American beef industry. The agreement touches all aspects of the USMEF/NCBA relationship, including marketing, trade policy, communications and association services.

USMEF's current checkoff contract for international market development is with the Cattlemen's Beef Board. This contract expires on Sept. 30, 1996, and will be replaced by the new USMEF partnership agreement with NCBA.

For its financial investment in USMEF, the NCBA will appoint 13 directors to serve on the USMEF board of directors — 12 from the marketing/checkoff side and one from the dues/policy side. Most of these directors, if not all, are expected to serve on the USMEF Beef and Allied Industries Committee.

Export sales of U.S. beef and beef variety meats to international markets hit a record 938,000 metric tons in 1995 and were valued at $3.3 billion. This, according to CF Resources, Inc., amounted to 12.7 percent of the wholesale value of total U.S. beef production, up from 4.2 percent just 10 years ago.

According to the latest USDA date, U.S. beef exports (including beef variety meats) were up 23 percent for the Jan-March 1996 period, compared to the same period last year.

The U.S. Meat Export Federation is a national trade association responsible for developing international markets for the American beef industry. USMEF receives funding support from USDA, exporting companies, the beef checkoff program and a number of state corn, sorghum and soybean groups.

Headquartered in Denver, USMEF has foreign offices is Seoul, Tokyo, Osaka, Taipei, Hong Kong, Singapore, Mexico City and Hamburg. USMEF also has representatives in Beijing, Beirut, Moscow, Tel Aviv and the Caribbean.

EPA Approves Postemergence Labels

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Just in time for use on corn this spring, EPA has registered Dual II®, Bicep II® and Bicep Lite II® for postemergence applications.

Ciba Crop Protection sought the expanded label to give producers even more application flexibility when using these products. The labels already allowed early preplant, incorporated, and preemergence applications.

"The new postemergence label provides total application flexibility if weather keeps growers out of the field early, or if they want to add another layer of residual control," said Frank Knight, product manager for Bicep II and Bicep Lite II.

The new postemergence label for Dual II is approved for field corn, sweet corn, and seedcorn. Bicep II and Bicep Lite II postemergence labels are approved for field corn, sweet corn and seedcorn. In addition, a postemergence directed application was approved for Bicep II and Bicep Lite II to allow corn growers to treat taller corn (5-12 inches) for more application flexibility.

Elk Velvet Is Exported To Korea

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Carl and Carol Rowser were looking for something different. "Something that would get me away from being a truck mechanic," said Carl.

American elk are members of the deer family, but unlike other deer, are raised primarily for their velvet antlers.

A mature elk can produce 12 or more pounds of velvet annually which sells for $60 a pound. "A really good bull can produce more than 40 pounds," said Carl.

Velvet has been used as an ingredient in Asian medicines for thousands of years and, today, it is sold to firms that produce these medicines for various ethnic markets.

Elk are also raised for breeding stock, meat, and other by-products. "They use everything but the intestines," said Carl. "Almost as good as a pig. Most people don't realize elk even have two ivory teeth."

Carl and Carol bought their first elk from the king of elk farmers, Rush Johnson, president of the North America Elk Breeders Association.

It's an inexpensive undertaking. The Rowsers spent $4,000 on their calves, $6,500 on cows, and $7,500 on a bull. "But you need good stock to get started," Carl said.

The Rowsers had the ideal location for their new venture with a small farm bordering on their back door and a pleasant stream meandering through the lush green meadow.

"All it took was fencing," Carl said. "And it does take that. By state law, fences must be at least 10 feet high."

Elk convert pasture efficently into protein and can be raised on marginal land. Labor requirements are minimal while the profit potential can be much greater than for a comparable beef cow-calf operation.

Today there are almost 32,000 elk on U.S. farms. The advantages of raising this breed include a high fertility rate and a long reproductive breed line.

Their calm dispositions make them easy to handle and transport.

"Nutrition is easy," said Carl. They eat mostly pasture, trees, and brush. Grasses should be varieties that will stand up under close cropping and constant trampling by hooves. The Rowsers add a food supplement which is especially prepared by Farm Bureau. Total food consumption is about ⅓ as much as a beef cow.

"Elk love the cold weather, which was a plus this year," said this former beef farmer, "but they also tolerate hot weather.

"All elk need exercise, and especially so when pregnant. Some farmers will put the water at one end of the pasture and food at the other just to make certain they have to move around.

"Our main change on this farm has been to add plenty of fencing," Carl said.

Velvet is gotten by extracting the entire antler — a tough job, made easier by specially designed "squeeze shoots." Carl said the entire antler is removed and stored in an upright position (because the blood is the important part) in the freezer.

Korean research at Invermay AgResearch and Kyung Hee University hospital in Korea indicates that the medical effects of velvet vary according to which part of the antler it comes from.

The top part contains growth hormones which are very effective for children and anemia.

Velvet is prepared for use by first drenching in alcohol for good color and rapid absorption.

The velvet is then sliced and dried before mixing with other herbal medicines.

"Our biggest concern is worms," Carl said. "Brain worm from the white tail deeer is a large threat. Consequently we worm twice a year."

By law, elk brought into Pennsylvania that are more than six months old must test negative for brucellosis and bluetongue within 60 days of importation and must test negative for tuberculosis within 90 days of importation, according to recommended USDA protocol.

Emergency Forages Fill Feeding Void

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Livestock producers facing a feed shortage because of winter-injured alfalfa stands or corn that was not planted in the wet spring have some forage options, said Mark Sulc, Ohio State University forage agronomist.

Summer annual grasses — forage sorghum, sudangrass, sorghum-sudangrass hybrids and pearl millet — grow quickly in the late spring and summer and can be planted up to July 1 in northern Ohio and July 15 in the south. The feed value of these grasses is not as good as alfalfa or corn silage, but when managed correctly they can provide good quality forage, Sulc said.

"Producers should choose which grass they plant based on how they plan to use it," Sulc said.

Forage sorghum is the best of the grasses for silage. Silage from forage sorghum is the closest nutritional feed substitute to corn silage, said Bill Weiss, dairy scientist at Ohio State University's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center. High-energy, low-protein forage sorghum silage has about 85 percent of corn silage's feed value.

Forage sorghum grows well in light-textured, shallow soils that tend to be dry and could outperform corn in these fields, Sulc said.

Sudangrass generally has thinner stems than sorghum-sudangrass and is the best option for making hay or grazing. However, the finer stems usually mean lower yields than the other summer annuals, Sulc said. Sudangrass hybrids usually bring a slightly higher yield than sudangrass as comparable stages of growth.

Sorghum-sudangrass hybrids and pearl millet can be used as either silage or hay. Pearl millet tends to have smaller stems and be more leafy than sorghum-sudangrass. If used for grazing, these grasses should be planted thicker to encourage finer stems, Sulc said.

Sudangrass, sorghum-sudangrass, and pearl millet have about 40 percent less energy than corn, but are slightly higher in protein, Weiss said. Overall, they have about 70 percent of corn's feed value.

The advantage sudangrass, sorghum-sudangrass and pearl millet have over forage sorghum is that they regrow after cutting, Sulc said. It may be possible to get more than one harvest off of these grasses before frosts begin this fall.

Yields for these three grasses are 3 to 5 tons per acre after drying. This is less than alfalfa's 4 to 8 tons and corn silage's 7 to 9 tons, but not bad, Sulc said.

In a normal year, summer annual grasses can be harvested 45 to 60 days after planting, Sulc said. The time to harvest may be shortened by hotter weather or lengthened by cold temperatures.

Producers should remember to cut these grasses before heads appear or at about 4 feet tall, Sulc said. Forage quality declines rapidly once heads appear. Use a hay conditioner to mow and crush the stems to speed drying.

Second, forage sorghum, sorghum-sudangrass hybrids, and sudangrass are all in the sorghum family and produce prussic acid. Prussic acid is present in immature sorghum grasses and mature sorghum grasses after a frost, drought, or other stressful conditions and is toxic to many animals.

All summer annual grasses have the potential for nitrate toxicity in livestock. To avoid prussic acid and nitrate toxicity, growers should wait to harvest summer annuals until after the grasses are 24 inches tall, Sulc said. After a frost, wait at least one week for plants to dry before grazing or cutting.

Finally, some herbicides should not be used on grasses fed to livestock. Livestock producers should check herbicide labels for details before applying them to summer-annuals, Weiss said.

Curriculum Changes To Benefit Next Generation

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's Board of Trustees has approved changes in the Department of Agricultural and Biological Engineering's undergraduate program. They also approved changing the name of the undergraduate major and minor in agricultural engineering to agricultural and biological engineering.

"We will begin offering the new agricultural and biological engineering undergraduate curriculum starting in August 1996," said department head Dr. Dennis Buffington. "The revised curriculum is designed to give our students the appropriate educational experiences to better prepare them for exciting careers in the next century."

Many students are surprised by the range of opportunities offered by agricultural and biological engineering. "It's a lot more than farm equipment," Buffington said. "Graduates are involved with engineering aspects of agricultural, food, and biological systems.

"Agricultural and biological engineers work in all areas that involve the production of food and biological materials, the processing systems for these materials, and natural resources conservation and management," he said.

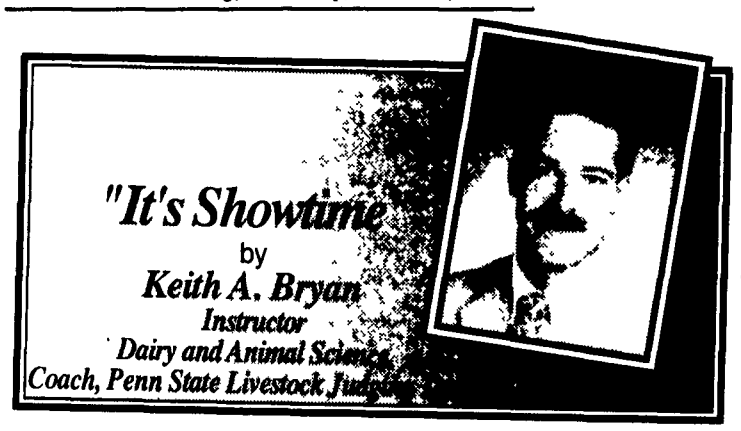
"Our graduates tackle problems ranging from finding new ways to package and process food products, to designing better machinery and production systems and improving waste management techniques."

The core courses in the new curriculum will be biological systems, modeling methods for biological systems, transport processes for biological production, power and structural systems in agriculture, engineering properties of food and biological materials, and agricultural measurements and control systems.

Students in the new curriculum also will choose at least two of the four senior-level design courses: design of fluid power systems, design of wood structures, food and biological process engineering, and design hydrology and sedimentology. Each student also will complete a capstone design course entitled optimization of biological production and processing systems.

For more information about opportunities in agricultural and biological engineering, contact the Department of Agricultural and Biological Engineering, The Pennsylvania State University, 250 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, or visit the department's World Wide Web site on the Internet at http://server.age.psu.edu/.

MILK



SAYINGS

With each passing month, I anticipate the arrival of Reader's Digest.

I enjoy reading all of the quotes, quips, and humorous antecdotes that are published in the most widely read monthly publication in the world.

I especially enjoy reading the section "Quotable Quotes." The quotes are often from famous people who have, in a sentence or two, provided valuable insights into life's little idiosyncrasies.

As we look to the future of junior livestock programs and focus our attention toward ethics, potential confrontation, and success, we can learn from the perspectives of others the value of these aspects of life.

Ethical Considerations

Never assume the obvious is true. — William Safire

The elegance of honesty needs no adornment. — Merry Browne

A sense of shame is not a bad moral compass. — Colin Powell

What lies behind us and what lies before us are small matters compared to what lies within us. — Ralph Waldo Emerson

We worry about what a child will be tomorrow, yet we forget that he is someone today. — Stacia Tauscher

When you teach your son, you teach your son's son. — The Talmud

The truth of the matter is that you always know the right thing to do. The hard part is doing it. — Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf

What is right is often forgotten by what is convenient. — Bodie Thoene

The biggest threat to our well-being is the absence of moral clarity and purpose. — Rick Shuman

Live so that when your children think of fairness and integrity, they think of you. — H. Jackson Brown, Jr.

Confrontation

Well-timed silence is the most commanding expression. — Mark Helprin

You can make your world so much larger simply by acknowledging everyone else's. — Jeanne Marie Laskas

We are all inclined to judge ourselves by our ideals; others, by their acts. — Harold Nicolson

Life shrinks or expands in proportion to one's courage. — Anais Nin

Hastily made, correct decisions are far better than slowly derived, incorrect decisions. The dilemma is the appropriateness of a hastily made incorrect decision compared with a slowly derived, incorrect one. — Anonymous

It's better to be boldly decisive and risk being wrong than to agonize at length and be right too late. — Marilyn Moats Kennedy

Proactive or reactive, the important aspect is to be active. — Anonymous

Often we have no time for our friends, but all the time in the world for our enemies. — Leon Uris

It is easy to sit up and take notice. What is difficult is getting up and taking action. — Al Batt

Success

A hero is someone we can admire without apology. — Kitty Kelley

Success is never final, but failure can be. — Bill Parcells

Great successes are built on taking your negatives and turning them around. — Sumner Redstone

Success is how high you bounce when you hit bottom. — Gen. George Patton

Success is always temporary. When all is said and done, the only thing you'll have left is your character. — Vince Gill

Success is more a function of consistent common sense than it is of genius. — An Wang

There is no greatness where there is not simplicity, goodness and truth. — Leo Tolstoy

The "success" of junior livestock programs depends on "ethics." In order to provide programs based on ethical principles, we may have "confrontations" with people who disagree with the collective ideals of the program.

Deadline Approaches To Sign Flexibility Contract

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Farm Service Agency (FSA) announces that July 12 is the final date to sign a production flexibility contract.

Farmers in Lancaster County have this one-time opportunity to enroll in the 7-year program designed as a transition away from the traditional price supports for corn, wheat, barley, grain sorghum, and oats.

Any producer or landowner who reported his crop acreages to the Farm Service Agency in at least one year from 1991 to 1995 can qualify for an automatic payment.

Farmers are not limited on what they grow on continued acreage with the exception of fruits and vegetables. There is no need to idle any acreage for "set aside."

If the crops are not presently insured under a policy either through USDA or a private agency, farmers can sign a waiver from receiving any government disaster benefits. The waiver, however, will not preclude one from obtaining emergency loan assistance.

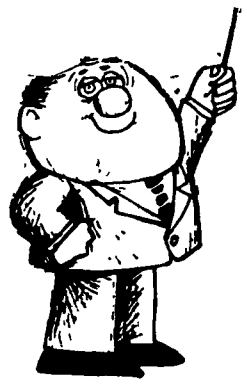
Farmers must continue to farm with an approved conservation plan. These can be obtained from the Natural Resource Conservation Service.

If a farmer cash leases a farm on a year-to-year basis, he or she can still enroll and receive this year's payment. The contract can be updated each year. A contract may be terminated without penalty. Contracted acreage may include the previous 5-year average for the crop enrolled. Payment will be made on 85 percent of the contracted acreage using the FSA yield established for the farm. The low range estimated payments for 1996 on a per bushel basis are corn, $.24; sorghum, $.31; barley, $.32; oats, $.03; wheat, $.87. The seven-year average payment for corn is $.32.

Payments will be limited to $40,000 per person per year. Marketing assistance loans are still available under the new farm law.

Luke Brubaker, chairman of the FSA Committee, encourages all farmers to consider this option as a supplement to the decision making farmers will assume when he plants according to the markets. These payments can reduce the risks of managing production based on expected prices and other factors.

Again, this is the one and only enrollment period. Notify the Farm Service Agency before July 12 of your intentions. The Farm Service Agency is located at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, PA 17601.



A LESSON WELL LEARNED...

"I saved money replacing my worn out bottom unloader with a Big Jim B.U C.S. I like the trouble-free operation, auto fill, auto unload. The machine's distribution capacity and unloading volume is more than satisfactory."

REMEMBER

The Summer and Fall of 1995???? The extreme heat, the early dry-down of the corn crop, and then the rapid rise in corn prices? And those corn prices are having a dramatic effect on your profits in 1996.

"THE NEED FOR QUALITY FEED AND GRAIN STORAGE IS GREATER TODAY THAN AT ANY TIME IN RECENT HISTORY!"

How can we help to make sure that you get a quality corn storage unit constructed before the expected rush in August and September?

Give us a call to discuss early discounts, financing, and unloader options.

Before spending a lot of money to dry, store, handle, and transport your corn crop, you will do well to consider the many advantages of a poured concrete silo to store and protect your valuable corn.

Also, by storing hi-moisture shelled corn (about 25% moisture), you save field losses, and increase digestibility.

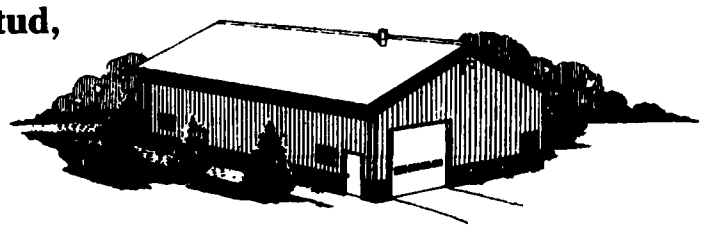
The Building you want.

The Lease you need.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

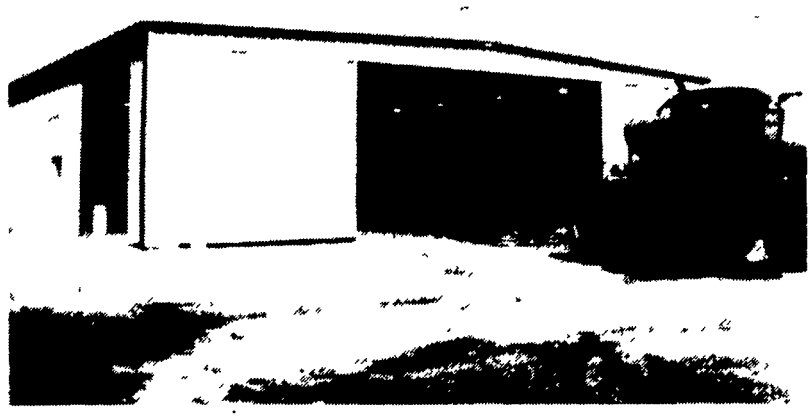
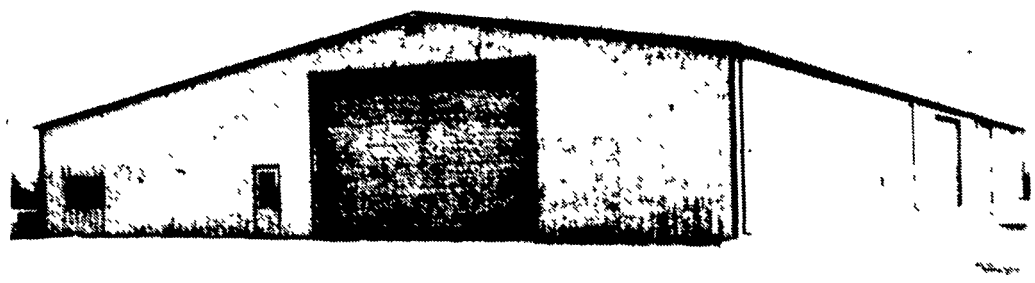
BUTLER™ RURAL-BUILDER

No matter what type of building you're looking for shop, retail store, community building or storage facility - we build durable Butler® rural steel buildings with attractive architectural appeal.

Butler shop buildings are built to give you years of high-use value, low maintenance and maximum comfort. Solid, practical design and rugged steel construction make Butler buildings durable and functional for years to come.

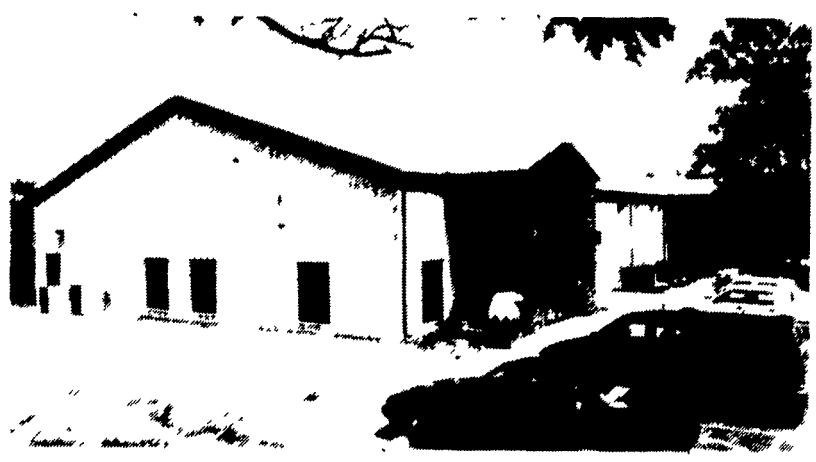


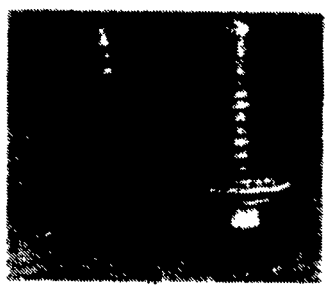


Outside: Your Choice

The appearance of your new building is a critical factor. You just tell us what you'd like and we can build it!

Our structural systems are designed to give you complete freedom in planing the size and shape of your building.





Products that Perform from the Building Systems Industry Leader

You can count on Butler to provide the best materials available.

For example, our standard exterior coating for painted panels is Butler-Cote® 500 FP finishing system, a full strength, 70% Kynar 500® & Hylar 5000® coating. Our coating will resist chalking and fading better than industry standard coatings.

Our fasteners represent another area where Butler offers more for your money. The Scrubolt™ fastener by Butler, available on the Butlerib wall and roof systems and the Shadowrib® wall system, is larger and more resistant to the pull-out forces of wind than industry standard fasteners.

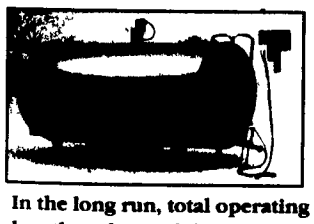
DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller* milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$41 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

Contact your Mueller distributor for further comparisons.

"Our customers heaviest weaning calves are usually Simmental influenced"

Jim Leachman
Owner Leachman Cattle Co
Billings, Montana

When you manage five breeds of cattle and sell 2,000 animals per year you see breed differences. That's why Jim likes American Simmental. The calves wean off heavy and the cows fall rebreeds early. Simmental provide accelerated growth, lean muscling and high milk production. Those traits help you sell cattle. They're the traits that pay.

QUALITY HAY EQUIPMENT

TO PRESERVE YOUR QUALITY HAY CROPS

10 REASONS YOU SHOULD CONSIDER ROUND BALE SILAGE!

1. High quality forage.
2. Harvest when crop is ready.
3. Reduces reliance on drying time.
4. Lower field losses.
5. Different grades of hay can be kept separate.
6. Low capital investment compared to conventional method.
7. Low horsepower and fuel requirement.
8. Possibility of extra cut, earlier and later in the season.
9. Bales can be sold as cash crop.
10. Better herd health with long stem fiber.

TANCO... The Wrapper That Wraps Bales Other's Won't

10 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY A TANCO BALE WRAPPER TO DO IT!

1. Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.
2. Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.
3. Adjustable extendable axle: On trailed models the extendable axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counterweights.
4. Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.
5. Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp". Once it "burps" the bale does not re-seal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.
6. Optional "High Rise" axle kit for soft ground conditions.
7. Models available to fit every individual need, including machines to wrap big square bales. Tanco was first to build a large square bale wrapper, & continues to produce advancements in bale wrapping technology.
8. Positive bale positioning: While being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.
9. Durability: Tanco's subframe is one of the heaviest of any machines available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users.
10. Price: From a basic 3 point Model AW250, to the trailed Model AW550 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices are very competitive. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.

DEUTZ FAHR

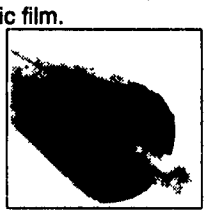
SILAGE BALING

Firm, well shaped bales of uniform size are easiest to wrap and store. Due to the nature of high moisture hay, the baler must be designed for the task. Although most conventional round balers will make silage bales, premature structural failure, plugging, and inconsistent bale density should be expected after a relatively short time. Optimum bale size is 4'x4'. Larger bales can be wrapped, but due to the extra weight, have a tendency to sag which increases the risk of splitting plastic film. Larger bales also require heavier equipment to handle bales when ready to feed. Both "hard center" and "soft center" balers will work, but the "rope" in the middle of "hard center bales, encourages mold and can result in wasted feed.

A properly prepared 4'x4' silage bale can weigh from 1400# - 1600#. Due to weight and pressure required to exclude as much air as possible, the bale chamber must be designed with extra strength. A heavy duty drive system, consistant density control, and reliable pick-up mechanism are also required.

Balers equipped with a built in cutting mechanism are able to increase bale density by up to 20%, and prechopped material can be easily fed.

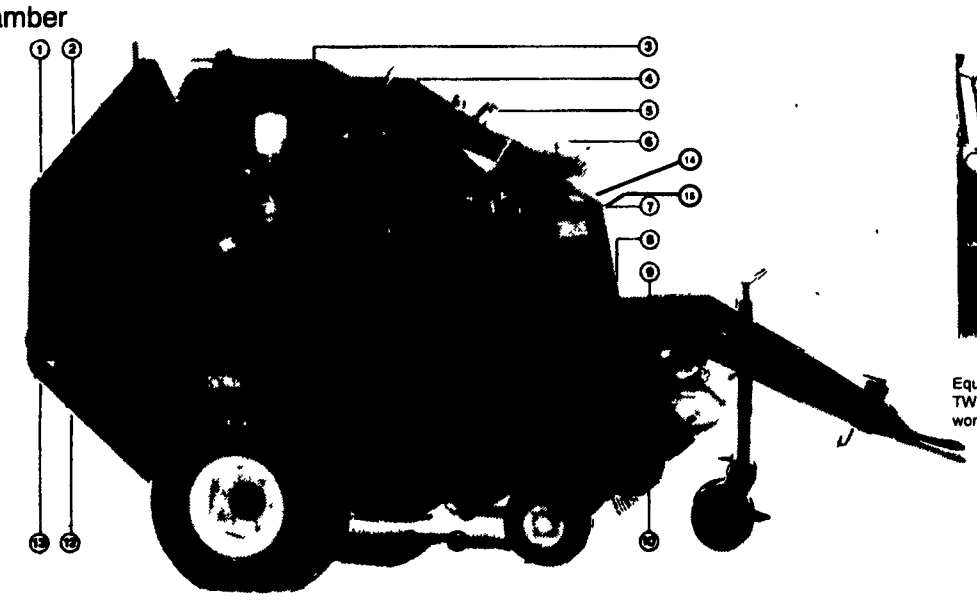
Be sure to use untreated sisal, plastic or nylon twine if you intend to wrap high moisture bales. Treated Sisal twine produces a chemical reaction that will burn through plastic film.

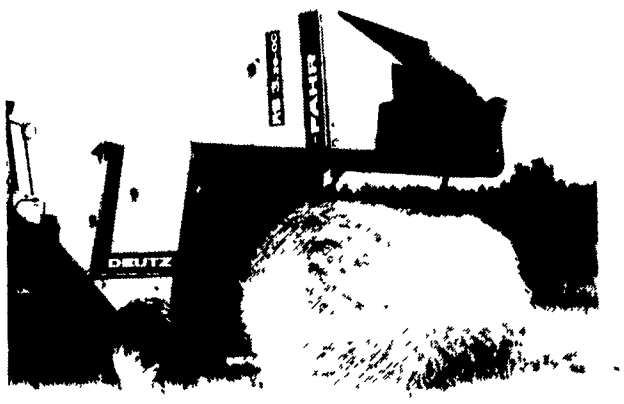


17 Thick walled ribbed steel rollers produce consistent results. Smaller diameter rollers reduce wedging and leaf loss is kept to a minimum. Splined shafts are used on all drive rollers for maximum efficient power transfer.

Special features on DEUTZ-FAHR round balers are why they are able to produce consistent bales year after year of use.

1. Roller bearings mounted on the outside of the bale chamber.
2. Automatic chain lubrication system.
3. Reinforced bale chamber for extra strength.
4. Closely spaced small diameter rollers.
5. Automatic "TWIN-FIX" twine tying system.
6. Netwrap option with a capacity of 270 bales per roll.
7. Easily accessible twine box holding (4) twine balls.
8. Universal drawbar with 16 positions and swivel wheel jack.
9. Adjustable baffle plate.
10. Hydraulic lift pickup.
11. Pneumatic tire pickup gauge wheels.
12. Mechanical tailgate lock.
13. Six bale density settings.
14. Splined drive shafts.
15. Extra heavy drive chain.





Equipped with optional WIDE PICK UP, OPTI-CUT pre-cutting mechanism, combination TWINE and NET WRAP, the DEUTZ-FAHR RB3200 OC is the ideal machine for custom work

Check Out DEUTZ FAHR Balers Before you make a major purchase. You'll be impressed!

Scout For Nutrient Deficiencies

NORCROSS, Ga. — Plants provide clues to nutrient problems in the field if we pay attention to the symptoms they show. Unfortunately, by the time visual symptoms are observed, the potential yield of the crop has probably been severely reduced. This "hidden hunger" is one of the biggest yield robbers.

Know the growth stages and expected development rate of a healthy crop. This will be helpful in identifying deviations from normal growth — often the first sign of nutrient deficiences. If growth is unusually slow or if plants appear stunted, take leaf samples for laboratory analysis. Know the common nutrient deficiency symptoms for the crops you are growing. For many crops, nitrogen deficiency causes yellowing of the leaf tissue (along the midrib of grassy plants), usually visible on lower leaves first. Supplemental nitrogen application may help recover some lost yield potential if the crop is not yet fully developed.

Potassium deficiency causes leaf margins to turn yellow and eventually die. Lower leaves exhibit symptoms first, because part of the potassium is moved from them to the more actively growing parts of the plant when insufficient amounts of potassium are available for normal growth. Response to supplemental potassium applied after symptoms develop is not very likely, but increasing potassium on that area next year may help prevent recurrence of the problem.

Phosphorus deficiency shows up as a purple coloration of newly developed leaves. Since phosphorus is critical to sugar utilization in plants, its deficiency leads to a buildup of sugar in the leaves and reduced chlorophyll content, allowing the purple pigments to be more visible. Phosphorus deficiency may be induced by restricted root growth or cool temperatures. Nutrient applications can be adjusted to prevent recurrence of the deficiency in successive years. The symptoms may disappear as the root system expands and growing conditions improve.

Nutrient deficiency symptoms are often actually caused by other problems such as insect feeding, compaction, poor root development, disease injury, competition from weeds, poor drainage or mechanical injury to the plant. These problems inhibit the uptake or utilization of available nutrients. The real cause may be masked by other symptoms, so don't be too quick to diagnose the cause-effect relationships. On the other hand, maintaining adequate nutrient availability will often reduce the impact of these other yield limiting factors.

Make use of old tools as well as new technology to help detect, identify and correct nutrient problems. Soil testing is one source of clues. With the availability of more intensive sampling data, areas of low nutrient levels may be easier to locate. Make a special effort to check such areas. Plant analysis is another useful tool for identifying nutrient deficiencies. Take samples from suspected deficient plants and also from healthy plants for comparison. Standard sufficiency threshold values are available for most crops, but the comparison approach may be more useful in field diagnostics. Quick-test kits can be used as a first cut analytical tool. Such tissue tests should be confirmed with laboratory analysis before making major nutrient management decisions.

Ion-specific electrode tools are useful for in-field analysis. A sample of plant sap (or a diluted sample) is squeezed onto the electrode and the electronic display provides a reading calibrated for the relative nutrient content of the plant sap. Here again, confirmation with laboratory analysis is desirable, but research has shown these electrodes are reliable if properly calibrated.

If possible, use global positioning systems (GPS) to document the specific geographic location of deficiency symptoms and where soil and plant samples are taken for analysis. The GPS coordinates can link these observations to other data bases such as soil survey, soil test data and yield maps. These tools are all helpful in determining the true cause-effect relationships resulting in the nutrient deficiency. If GPS is not available, take detailed notes on where symptoms occur in the field. This will be valuable for future management decisions.

Forester Offers Tips On Hazardous Trees

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Safety-conscious homeowners and municipal officials, ever-vigilant of deep potholes and cracked sidewalks, often ignore hazardous situations that are hiding in plain sight — aging or declining trees.

According to William Elmendorf, instructor and coordinator of the urban and community forest program in Penn State's School of Forest Resources, many accidents involving falling trees or branches can be prevented by inspecting trees each year and by prioritizing and performing any maintenance as soon as possible.

"Ignorance is not bliss when it comes to tree safety," Elmendorf said. "Municipalities and homeowners are responsible for safe streets, and avoiding a tree management decision isn't going to make the problem go away."

Elmendorf says detecting hazardous trees can be tricky. "A tree can look healthy and beautiful, but it might have rot or structural problems within the roots or other areas that are hard to detect," he said. Elmendorf recommends hiring a professional arborist to perform an in-depth examination of the tree before taking any action.

Still, there are some danger signs that untrained homeowners or municipal officials can watch for.

• Cracks. Watch for deep, open cracks in the trunk or branches. Any tree wound is an opening for decay. Vertical cracks on opposite sides of the trunk can be a sign of severe injury.

• Forked trunks. Forked trunks are signs of potential weakness, particularly if the fork is growing outward rather than upward.

• History. Unexplained loss of large branches can be a sign of internal problems. "If a tree loses a big branch one year and it happens again the next year, you should consider the safety of the tree," said Elmendorf.

• Root rot. Look for fungal growth or mushrooms on or near the base of the tree, which can weaken or decay roots. Construction can cause root injury or severed roots.

• Limbs and branches. Dead limbs can fall at any time, even in the slightest wind, Elmendorf said. Crossed or rubbing branches can lead to weak spots and should be pruned immediately. Long, heavy, horizontal limbs often can be weak spots, even on large trees. Oddly shaped branches with kinks or curves should be examined.

• Architecture. Trees that lean or exhibit unbalanced growth should be monitored and examined every year, Elmendorf said.

In some cases, older trees cannot be pruned or removed for historical or sentimental reasons. Elmendorf suggests that homeowners or communities eliminate hazards by landscaping or removing the "targets" of a possibly hazardous tree.

"It's a bad idea to put a swing set or a picnic table underneath an older tree," he said. "You can plant hedges or reroute walks to avoid the tree or you can plant groundcovers that would make resting under the tree uncomfortable."

Elmendorf emphasizes that the best way to avoid hazardous trees is to provide consistent care when the tree is young. Young trees should be pruned each year to help develop a strong branch structure. In addition, homeowners and community foresters should inspect the root systems of new trees before they are planted, checking for circling or stunted roots.

"People also should plant the right tree in the right area," Elmendorf said, "Big trees need large areas in which to grow. For instance, you shouldn't plant an oak right next to your house or in a small sidewalk soil bed."

Homeowners can perform preliminary inspections by standing back from the tree and walking all the way around it, noting any abnormalities. "You should look at the canopy of the tree first, using binoculars if necessary," Elmendorf said. "You also can estimate the height of a tree by comparing it to nearby houses."

Aging or declining trees can be supported by cables, but Elmendorf emphasizes that such support systems should be professionally designed, installed, and maintained. "Even then, cable supports are no guarantee against failure," he said.

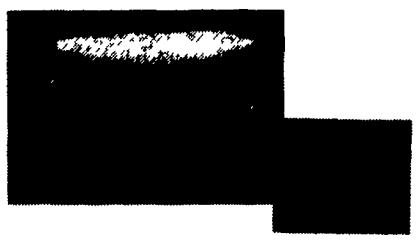
New Holland Natural Fiber Twine --

Your Natural Choice For Round Or Square Balers

- Uniform thickness- no thicks or thins
- Entirely biodegradable
- Treated for mildew resistance
- Consistent tensile/ knot strength



- A bale of New Holland natural twine always contains the exact footage shown on the label. This isn't the case with other brands. For instance, a bale of twine labeled 7,200 feet by another manufacturer may actually contain only 6,800 feet. This kind of inaccuracy could make a big difference in your production costs. And, in your profits.

NEW HOLLAND NATURAL FIBER TWINE

Feet Per Bale	Knot Strength	Gross Weight (Lbs.)	End Use Application	Sale Price!
7,200*	160	40	Square Bale	$20.79 per bale
9,000*	130	40	Square Bale	$20.79 per bale
10,000*	115	40	Square Bale	$20.79 per bale
16,000*	180	40	Round Bale	$22.80 per bale

(tensile strength)

What's the importance of the terms tensile strength and knot strength?

Tensile strength refers to the amount of resistance twine provides before breaking. But it's also it's also important to consider a twine's strength. That's because when twine is tied into a knot, its strength is reduced by almost 60%.

New Holland natural twine has enhanced knot strength because we use only specially selected high tensile strength fibers to provide you with the best possible knot strength. New Holland twine comes from Brazilian plantations where the leaves are hand selected and cut from the hardy sisal plant. We harvest only the mature leaves at the bottom of the plant because of their longer, and much stronger, fibers. This kind of careful attention continues through the entire twine-producing process. In fact, there are a series of progressive quality controls through the various production stages to ensure twine uniformity and high tensile strength.

"FARMERS ARE BUYING ZETOR-POWER NOT JUST ZETOR'S LOW PRICES,"

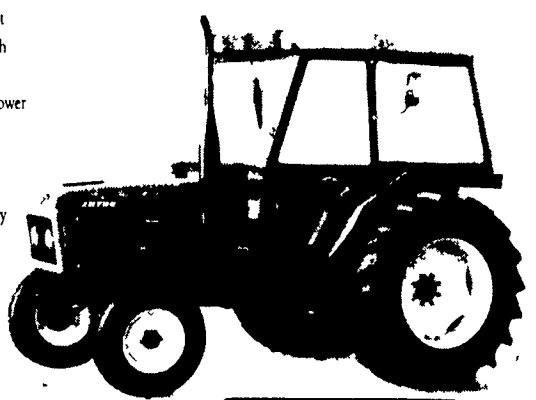
says Lyndell Shuey of Shuey's Sales & Service

Zetors low tractor prices used to be the quickest way to get sales But Zetor Power has taken over as the most important selling point

Zetors up to date engineering and heavy cast iron chassis provide a balanced power to weight ratio That means a Zetor tractor does more with less horsepower

The perfect examples of Zetor Power are Zetor models 6320 (2WD) and 6340 (4WD) which deliver 70 HP 10 speeds forward and two reverse And, like all Zetor tractors they carry a brand new Two Year Warranty

"Customer satisfaction is more important to to me than a quick sale So call me at the number listed below and get real Zetor Power It's guaranteed!"



Stop in and Test Drive a Zetor today!
